

Ana Moura | Casa Guilhermina | March 2024

The owner of an unparalleled career, looking to the future with the eagerness of someone who knows she has something new and different to pass on, Ana Moura released her seventh studio album in 2022. "Casa Guilhermina" was the album that gave birth to a reborn and plural artist that Portugal and the world have learned to love and applaud. Ana Moura emerged reborn, plural, aware of the different traditions that formed her but interested in exploring the best that the present has to offer. "Casa Guilhermina" was the first album in which Ana Moura took on the responsibility of writing, giving her voice over to what she feels and what her own hand has written. Several of the album's songs stood out, becoming radio and streaming hits: "Andorinhas" and its cry for freedom, "Jacarandá" in an ode to Prince, the passionate "Agarra em Mim" with Pedro Mafama or the impetuous "Arraial Triste" - in "Casa Guilhermina", the sales record holder brought us a home with open doors, a full table, warm smiles and vivid memories.

If in 2021 Ana Moura had already been considered the most listened to female artist on Spotify in Portugal, the following year "Casa Guilhermina" reached #1 in the National Sales Top and a Gold award. The song "Andorinhas" stood out at the Golden Globes 2022 with the "Best Song" award and at Play 2022 it won the "Best Music Video" and "Best Female Artist" categories.

At the end of last year, Ana Moura released "Lá Vai Ela", her first song after the success of "Casa Guilhermina". This year, she released "Lá Vai Ela (Remix)" in collaboration with MJ Nebreda, proving the disruptive and differentiating evolution of what the artist has done so far.
