Logging in to i-law

To access the resources on i-law, you need to log in to the platform.

You can do this using the 'Log In' button on the homepage ¹. If you attempt to access content without logging in you will be prompted to do so. Enter your username (email) and password when prompted to do so ².

If it is your first time logging in to i-law you will be asked to verify your email address. This is done via an email sent to your registered email address.

Note: If you are accessing i-law via your institution they might grant you access via 'transparent IP'. This means you are able to access i-law without logging in as the system will recognise your IP address.

If you are having trouble logging in, please contact your account manager or contact the client success team:

Navigating content

The i-law homepage is where you can access your subscribed content and find out about new and updated titles. You can return to the homepage using the 'Home' link at the top of the page 1.

Accessing your titles

You can access and browse content by practice area ² or publication type. ³

Titles are displayed in alphabetical order and include the cover image for easy identification. You can search by title or author / editor. 4

New and updated content

'What's new' sections are displayed on both the homepage and on each practice area. These highlight new titles and volumes, recent cases from our Law Reports series, and important and topical content chosen by our editors. 5

Hint

You can minimise or expand the practice area list on the left of the screen using the three-line icon on the top left.

Browsing content

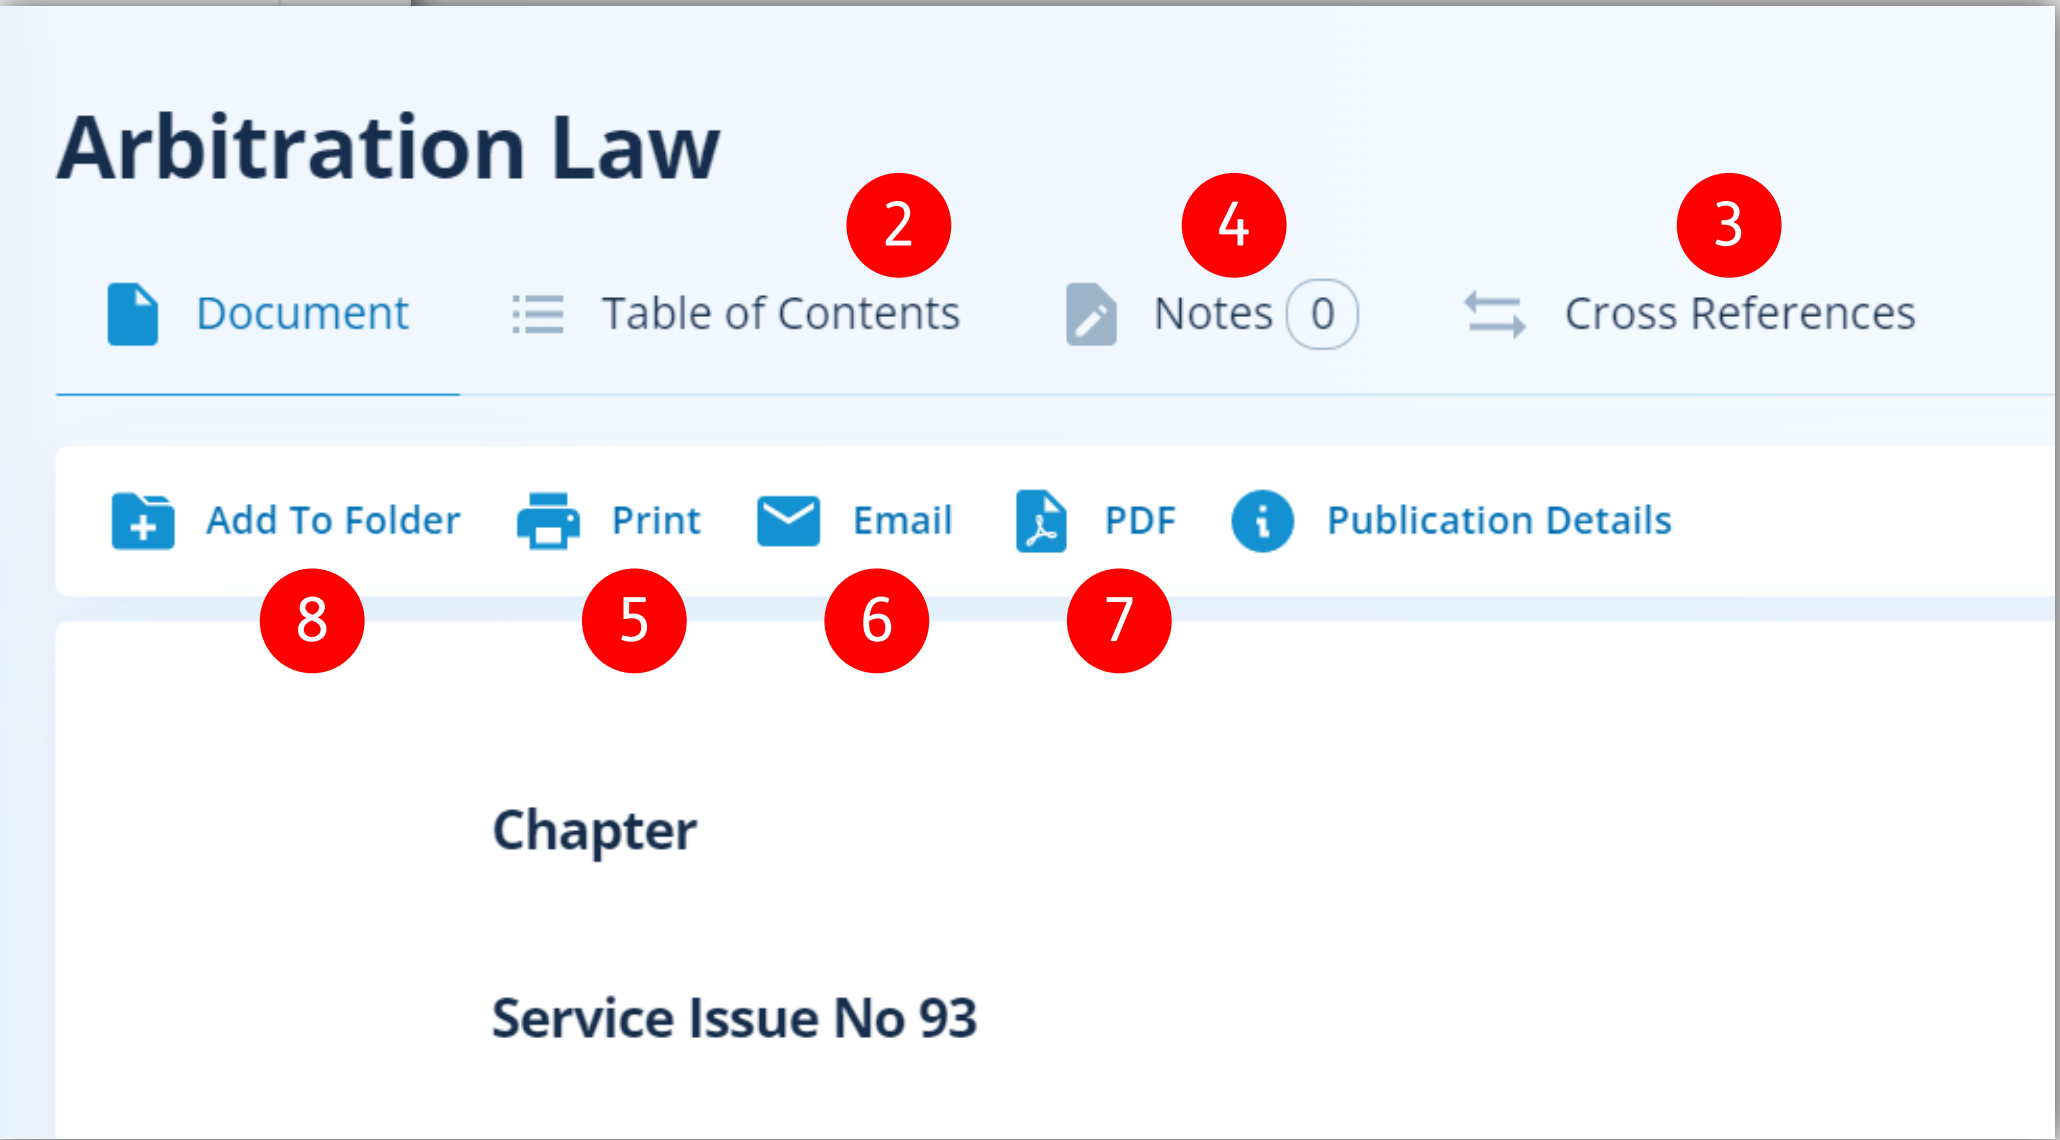

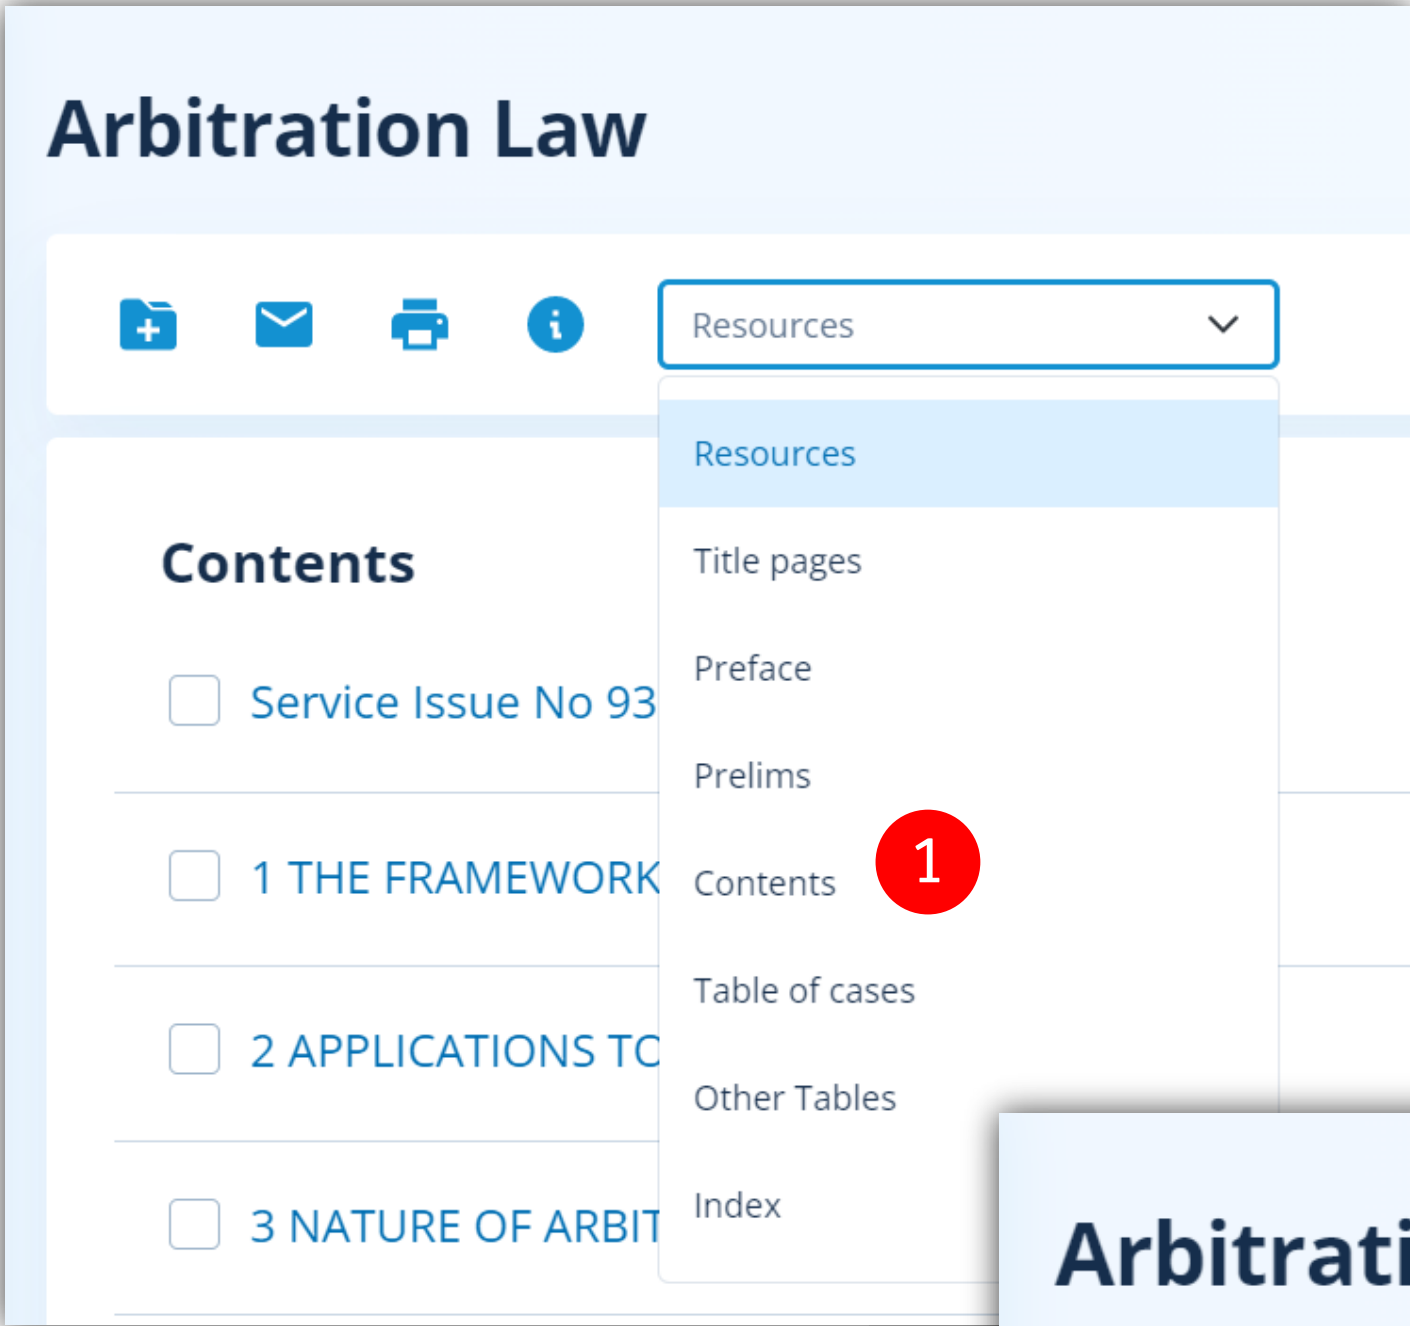

Once you have found the content you want to read (either by searching or using the left-hand menu and selecting from the title list), you can easily find the relevant chapter/section by using the Contents index 1.

You can see a more granular breakdown of content into sections by using the table of contents 2 or by checking cross-references in the Cross References tab 3.

If you want to add notes to a title you can do so using the 'notes' tab 4.

You can print 5, email 6, or download sections as a PDF 7. PDF sections are print-equivalent, meaning they look identical to the printed version of the title – ideal for creating court bundles.

You can also add content to your folders 8.

Searching content

Search can be accessed from the 'quick search' link on the homepage 1 or via the 'advanced search' link 2.

Quick search

To conduct a quick search, please select the type of content you want to search using the tick boxes ³. This is particularly useful if you want to quickly search for a specific citation from a law report. Use the information button for hints on how to format your citation search.

Searching Content: Advanced search

Use the Free Text 1 field to search across all practice areas and content types. You can search for a phrase, a specific search term, a citation, or a combination.

Our search works with Boolean search terms.

Hint: Use the ‘Search Tips’ information button 2 to find out more about how to use these.

Refining your search

Advanced Search lets you refine your search criteria 3 by practice area, title, date, and other specific criteria relevant to the content type you are searching.

Hint: Try selecting different content types to see the search and filter options. For example, selecting ‘Law Reports’ allows you to search or refine your search by vessel name or judge, Books and Looseleafs by chapter title, etc.

Hint: You can delete specific search terms 4 to widen your search results without having to re-start a search.
