

Presumption

Think
Wrong

Something based upon evidence with a probable outcome, but of which you cannot be certain—the conclusion is taken for granted and will not be investigated.

(Write one presumption per card.)

We presume that...

because...

Presumption

Size

e.g. What is the relative scope of this presumption?

Criticality

e.g. How dangerous is this presumption to our success, how much is built upon it, is it prerequisite?

Strength

i.e. How strong is your confidence in the presumption's conclusion?

Helps to answer

Circle the appropriate question

Is it wanted?

Can we do it?

Is it worth it?

Assumption

We have a starting point that might be based on what we think we know, believe, or imagine.
Requires investigation to deduce an outcome.

Write one assumption per card

We assume that...

Think Wrong

Assumption

Size

e.g. What is the relative scope of this assumption?

Small  Large

Use a pencil to mark an X

Criticality

e.g. How dangerous is this assumption to our success, how much is built upon it, is it prerequisite?

Low  High

Strength

i.e. How strong is your confidence in the assumption's outcome?

Weak  Strong

Ability to answer

i.e. What are your capabilities to discover an answer to this assumption?

Low  High

Helps to answer

Circle appropriate question.

Is it wanted?

Can we do it?

Is it worth it?

Order# _____

The order in which this assumption will be answered.

Knowledge

We have observable evidence that provides enough certainty to accept something to be true or false.

(Write one piece of knowledge per card.)

We know that...

Think Wrong

because...

Knowledge

Size

e.g. What is the relative scope of this knowledge?

Criticality

e.g. How crucial is this knowledge to our success, how much is built upon it, is it prerequisite?

Strength

i.e. How strong is your confidence in the supporting evidence?

Helps to answer

Circle the appropriate question

Is it wanted?

Can we do it?

Is it worth it?
