

Godfrey Hirst

TREND REPORT

Nurtured Spaces

Subtle richness, evoking a cosy yet sophisticated environment.

Bellavista 550 Pebble Bay

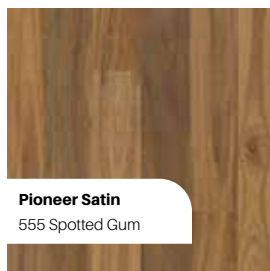

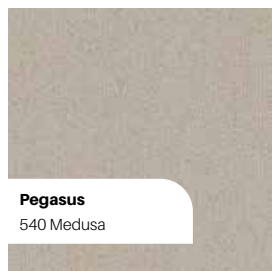

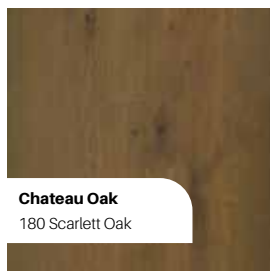

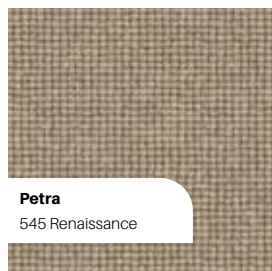

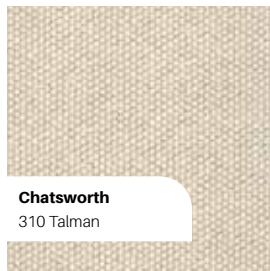

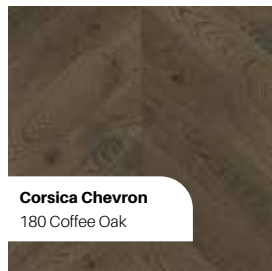

Corsica Oak 790 Cinder Oak

In 2025, the interior trend Nurtured Spaces is set to reshape how we design spaces, reflecting a growing focus on wellness, care, and emotional balance. The trend emphasises the power of surfaces and textures to create restorative, inviting atmospheres.

The colour palette includes dusty pinks, blushes, plum, red, rust and caramel. Together, these hues add subtle richness, evoking a cosy yet sophisticated environment.

www.godfreyhirst.com

Textiles in Nurtured Spaces, like bamboo and wool, lean into natural materials that encourage touch and offer a gentle sheen or matte finish. These materials provide not just warmth, but a depth that can only come from organic fibres.

Wool carpet is a perfect fit for Nurtured Spaces, offering natural warmth, resilience, and tactility that invites relaxation. Its softness underfoot enhances comfort, while its insulating properties help create a cosy atmosphere.

For hard surfaces, materials that radiate calmness are preferred. Frosted glass, semi-opaque decals, and silky woods are central to this trend, each contributing to a softer, almost ethereal look.

Nurtured Spaces champions the idea that our environments can actively support well-being. By prioritising tactile surfaces, gentle hues, and minimalistic elements, this trend offers a blueprint for creating interiors that nurture both mind and body.

Scan the QR code to discover the full trend report.

www.godfreyhirst.com