

Felted Wool Carpets

Why Felted?

Felted wool carpet combines all the natural advantages of wool with the added strength and texture of the felted process.

We begin with New Zealand grown wool and compress it through a combination of heat, moisture, and agitation binding the fibres together to form a strong dense yarn.

This process produces a beautifully tactile, low-shed loop pile carpet made entirely here in Aotearoa that retains its crisp shape even under pressure. It also improves the carpet's durability and dimensional stability, ensuring it resists crushing and matting over time.

Think of the wind-sculpted dunes of Te Henga (Bethells Beach), the rhythmic ripple of waves, and the fine lines of ancient lava rock. Profiles draws on nature's geometry—both refined, consistent, and architectural. Its straight-line loop design brings calm, sculptural clarity to interiors, and is crafted from premium New Zealand felted wool, densely compressed for a crisp, low-shed finish.

Apiary celebrates the perfectly imperfect geometry of the nature—from the honey bee's hexagonal combs to the striking basalt columns of Ōhira Bay in the Chatham Islands—channelling nature's most efficient shape. The result is a carpet that combines structural strength with soft warmth, crafted from premium New Zealand felted wool, densely compressed for a crisp, low-shed finish.
