

Soothing Tactility

OPULENT WEAVE - 14 Burlap

The desire to introduce a sense of restfulness and soothing aura in the home has been apparent recently with a significant shift towards spaces that prioritise comfort and a connection to the natural world.

TRE
-ND

This trend references a vast palette of colours, ranging from soft beiges, basalt, warm greys, off-whites, and muted earth tones of pink clay. Soothing tactiles is best conveyed with these colours paired with materials that invite touch and create a multisensory experience. Textures play a crucial role in the trend, with an emphasis on materials like wool, organic cotton, linen, and artisanal ceramics. These elements together foster environments that are calming and grounded in nature.

@feltexcarpets

www.feltex.com

DIGITAL DETOX

In an age dominated by technology, natural tactility offers a counterpoint that encourages physical engagement and a break from digital saturation. Interiors designed with this trend in mind serve as sanctuaries from the high-paced, screen-focused lifestyle.

BARLEYSTONE - 1 Grasscloth

BERKLEY - 41 Bone

GREAT DIVIDE - 1 Feathertop

GREAT DIVIDE - 48 Tambo

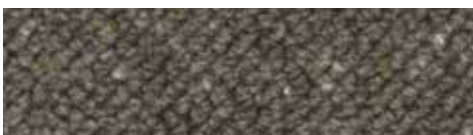

SALISBURY - 93 Stone Lintel

SALISBURY - 11 Druid Stone

SPINIFEX - 13 Earth

SPINIFEX - 97 Cliff Rock

THE TACTILE EXPERIENCE OF TEXTURED CARPETS

Enrich the sensory appeal of minimalist designs.

This trend embodies a collective aspiration for environments that not only enhance well-being but also cultivate a profound connection with the natural world. The future of interior design appears set to celebrate the subtlety, richness, and adaptability of natural tactiles, heralding a new epoch of interiors that are as aesthetically pleasing as they are beneficial to our well-being.