TREND REPORT

Regenerative Living

Living intentionally
by returning to our roots.

Petra 545 Renaissance

Pioneer 555 Spotted Gum

Introduce nourishing colours in your furniture, décor and even wallpapers too. For example, statistics have shown that from year-to-year, Pinterest searches in the UK have shown that 'terracotta wall colour' is up 29% from the previous year.

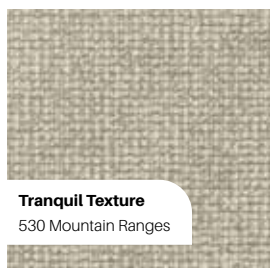

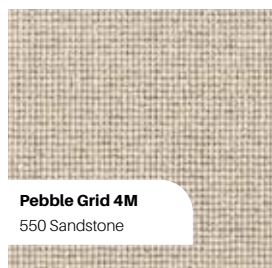

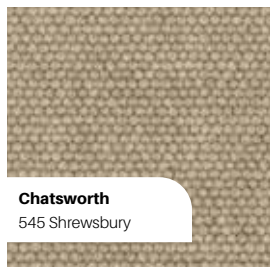

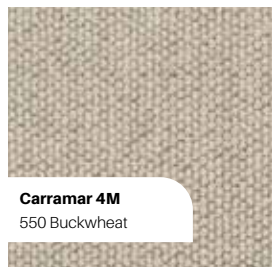

The trend is showing that warmer, earthier tones are consistently growing in homes as of late, specifically the brown and desert inspired colours in textiles, decorative objects and large furnishings.

Insulative Wool

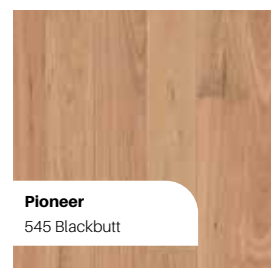

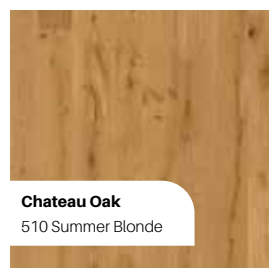

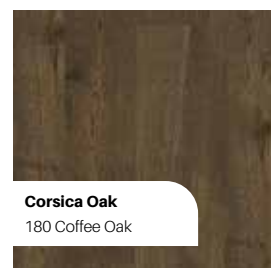

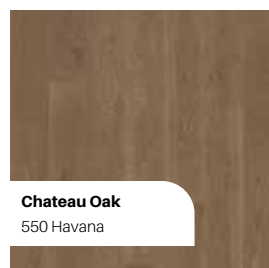

Wool carpets are made from the finest natural wool fibres, which are renewable and biodegradable.

Wool carpet is also naturally insulative with humidity control for a comfortable indoor environment, making it cooler in summer and warmer in winter.

Sunbaked Hues

We are recommending the use of deep spiced tones to contemporary furnishings and the use of tonal colour-blocking to ornamental elements, while seeing depth being layered through glass objects or lacquered surfaces.

Rich Timber

Timber flooring is a great amplifier to include in your home, as no two timber boards are the same.

Each board is built up of their own knots and grains, making it as unique and as natural as can be. This gives a regenerative and authentic feel to your home, attributing to this trend.
