TheBestSchools.org Publishes Its Rankings and Resources for Students of Faith

PELLA, IOWA (Oct. 24, 2017) — TheBestSchools.org, a leading online publication for ranking schools and degree programs, has now released three essential online publications for students of faith:

“The 30 Best Online Christian Colleges”

<https://thebestschools.org/rankings/best-online-christian-colleges/>

“The 20 Best Online Master of Divinity (MDiv) Degree Programs”

Through these rankings and resources, TheBestSchools.org offers essential information to students either pursuing online postgraduate studies in religion or online undergraduate studies through a college or university with a Christian statement of faith. Also provided is an extensive list of scholarships and grants available to students from a wide range of religious practices (Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism, and more), including information on award values, deadlines, and links to qualifications and applications.

“Online options for top-ranked programs studying faith and religion were limited in the past,” says Dan Edelen, director of marketing services for TheBestSchools.org. “But with the expansion of online courses and a need to adapt to changing educational needs, many Master of Divinity programs and undergraduate Christian colleges and universities are creating outstanding opportunities online. We’re helping both to raise awareness of these online options and to provide prospective students with the best information available, not only for their studies but also for funding them.”
