COLOMBIAN MAGIC TOWNS

BARICHARA - SANTANDER In the center of the region of Santander is located Barichara, a colonial town carved entirely in rock. Extreme sports such as paragliding, 'rafting' and 'rappelling' attract the attention of those adventurers who go in search of unusual activities.

JARDIN - ANTIOQUIA To the southwest of Antioquia is Jardín, another one of the Heritage Villages of Colombia. It has a wide range of activities such as mountaineering, torrentism, hiking and paragliding. Something indispensable to do is to mount on the aerial cable, a transport service that works between the urban helmet of the municipality and the hill of Cristo Rey, whose hillside is planted with banana and coffee.

MOMPOX - BOLIVAR Santa Cruz de Mompox was declared a National Monument by the Government in 1959, and World Heritage of Humanity by Unesco in 1995. It remains in the department of Bolivar. The churches of Santo Domingo, San Juan de Dios, San Agustín and Santa Bárbara highlight their religious architecture and their Sevillian style. It belongs to the Network of Peoples Heritage of Colombia. Also the birth place of 'La filigrana Momposina' a craft renown world wide for its aplications

GUADUAS - CUNDINAMARCA Guaduas, the homeland of Policarpa Salavarrieta, was founded in 1972 and its old sector was declared in 1959 as the National Monument o Colombia. It offers its tourists the possibility to learn about the history of Colombia through its ancient streets and its culture marked by tradition.
