Delivering Meaningful Change

With a sophisticated, neutral palette, the new space offers a clean, modern aesthetic. New panel systems with clear glass stackers provide access to natural light for employees. In addition to the new work areas, Security National Bank also developed an area within the building for the local community to use for meetings and events.

Fostering New Behavior

After deciding to move into an area of the city on the verge of a development boom, Security National Bank tore down an existing branch facility and built an updated space to address the needs of the new district. Security National Bank's long-standing business relationship with their dealer and Allsteel were crucial in working towards the best solution for their new space and their community.
