

BEYOND THE CURVE

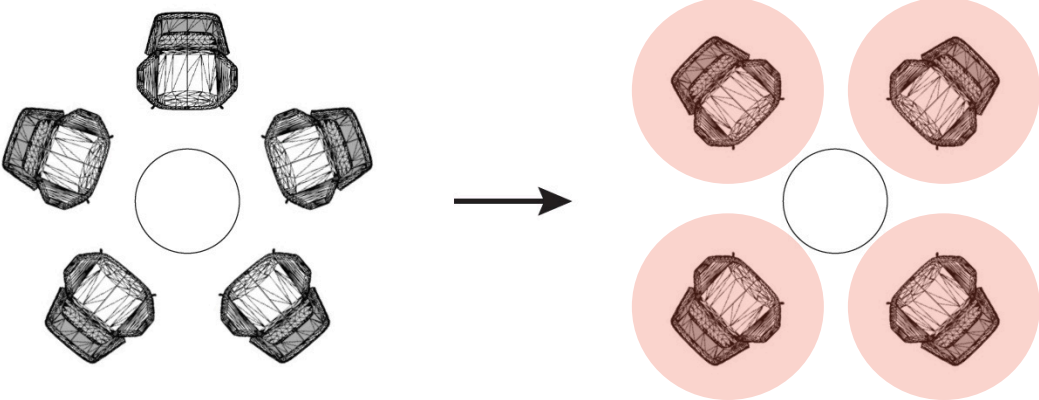

Applications for the New Workplace

As we return to the office, companies are striving to protect their employees while instilling trust that their workplace is safe. Continuing research will further illuminate how safe our workplaces can be, although consistent guiding principles from the healthcare community have already been widely endorsed...and many of these guidelines are illustrated here, using HBF products.

An equally consequential aspect of our return to the communal workplace reminds us to create a place people want to return to. In our effort to make the workplace safe we should avoid making it clinical, and dismissing our desire to work in spaces that inspire us. While the convenience of working from home proved more productive than many anticipated, the desire to return to the workplace is largely rekindled by our need to emotionally reconnect with others. And this emotional reconnection will be more rewarding when the environments our employees return to, are at least as inspiring as the homes they left.
