State Violence in Thai Society:

Political Regimes, Social Movement
Strategies, and Ideological Contestation
(2005–present)

10:00-11:30 JST
13 OCTOBER 2026 TUE.

@Main Conference Room,
Institute for Advanced Studies
on Asia, Utokeyo

Focusing on public protest dynamics in Thailand from 2005 to the present, this seminar examines the structural patterns of state violence and the state's underlying security logic. The study analyzes state coercion through three interrelated analytical dimensions: political regime typology, policy frameworks governing mass mobilization, and the mindsets of both high-level decision-makers and frontline security personnel.
