Introduction to Academic Work

Course Code: DLBCSIAW01

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The application of good scientific practice is one of the basic academic qualifications that should be acquired while studying. This course deals with the distinction between everyday knowledge and science. This requires a deeper understanding of the theory of science, as well as the knowledge of basic research methods and instruments for writing scientific texts. The students therefore gain initial insight into academic research and are introduced to the basic knowledge that will help them in the future to produce scientific papers. In addition, the students receive an overview of the different IU examination forms and insight into their requirements and implementation.

Principles of Hospitality Management

Course Code: BWHO01-01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The course imparts the basic knowledge around the special business fundamentals and characteristics of the hospitality industry. The classification of the hospitality industry in the tourism industry allows, in addition to the presentation of specific structural features, an initial examination of the characteristics of this industry. Furthermore, in-depth knowledge is acquired with regard to the production of services and the evaluation of performance standards. This knowledge helps in analyzing the range of services in the hospitality industry and lays the foundation for understanding hotel management. The remainder of the course will focus on hotel management in greater depth. Here, the focus is on the areas of organization and planning. This will enable students to prepare and analyze planning and organizational decisions. Finally, students will gain an understanding of the specifics of managing hotel and gastronomy operations and will take a closer look at the development of the industry so that they are able to incorporate this knowledge into planning and implementation decisions.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- classify the hospitality industry in the context of the tourism industry.
- apply in-depth knowledge of the structural characteristics and service provision of the hospitality industry.
- classify and analyze hotel ratings and identify different types of hotel concepts against each other.
- apply basic knowledge of the management areas of a hotel.
- classify and analyze special features and developments in the hospitality industry.

Course Description

Whether social work, marketing, management or nursing professions – the digital transformation as a megatrend determines a profound change that affects every individual and all levels of society. This course is about understanding the causes of change and change as such with its effects. From this understanding, skills – Digital Skills – are developed to deal with digitalization in different (professional) contexts. Fundamentally, aspects of digital transformation and digital communication are discussed and how the economy, society and communication have changed and are changing are presented. Among other things, this affects work and collaboration. Methods such as design thinking, tools such as Slack or content management systems such as WordPress have interdisciplinary relevance. Social media and mobile are an integral part of everyday life, shaping (media) socialization and digital marketing. Under the aspect "Digital in the enterprise", selected scenarios are considered, such as Digital HR or Digital and Social. A basic understanding of digital technologies such as cloud computing or big data is essential in order to be able to accompany and control digital processes and assess trends such as quantum computing.

Course Description

Mathematics is one of the foundational courses in the field of Business Studies and provides access to quantitative methods across disciplines. These basics are required in a variety of other courses and modules, for example in the field of investment and finance theory, micro- and macroeconomics, logistics or marketing, to name some examples. Consequently, mastery in Business Mathematics is a prerequisite for business economists and political economists alike to gain access to more advanced content. Following this approach, this course in Business Mathematics focuses on the economic application of mathematical methods.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- identify basic economic mathematical tools and methods, recall them if necessary and apply them to other economic problems.
- understand mathematical derivations in later modules.
- access their own analytical conclusions.
- recognize quantitative relationships independently.

Managerial Economics

Course Code: DLBBWME01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The source for (almost) all economic questions is the issue of scarcity. Building on this insight, this course considers three central elements. First, an analysis of the interplay between supply and demand on markets is made. Secondly, the course will consider the development of insights into the behaviour of consumers in markets. In a third part, the course will focus on entrepreneurial decisions that depend, among other things, on production technology available and competitive conditions in markets. These three core elements are taught from an application-oriented standpoint, in which references to (current) challenges of the management of companies are established. The course includes both the examination of economic theories and their application in business practice.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand basic economic interrelationships and apply them to different markets.
- explain the importance of supply, demand and market balance.
- assess the determinants of consumers' willingness to pay.
- discuss the determinants of production decisions and identify peak entrepreneurial strategies.
- assess the influence of different types of markets on production and price decisions.
- analyse strategic interactions between companies.
- critically question traditional economic models on the basis of findings from information and behavioural economics.

Destination Management

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand the tourist destination as a regional added value system of complementary industries and, on this basis, to know approaches to typologize tourist destinations.
- know necessary production factors to create the product "Stay in a Destination" (including in particular attractions and attraction points).
- identify the main characteristics of tourism demand and their segmentation criteria.
- understand the interaction of macro- and microeconomic framework conditions, demand structure, and resource disposition in the context of current approaches to modeling destination competitiveness.
- understand the role and tasks of the destination management organization (DMO) as coordinator of different stakeholders of a destination, and to know its financing possibilities.
- apply the previously acquired insight into planning and governance aspects of tourismdestination, especially with regard to the development process of a tourism concept.apply the previously acquired insight into current trends such as experience staging or sustainable destination management.

Course Description

International business activities necessarily happen in an environment of different legal systems. Significant differences exist not only in legal norms and basic principles, but also with regard to applying and interpreting the law as well as the procedures for enforcing rights before courts and authorities. To make things even more complex for foreigners, such national characteristics are often based on historical and cultural peculiarities. The course addresses the essential basics of civil law, which dominates in the European legal system, and common law, which dominates in the Anglo-Saxon legal system, and highlights the respective differences, special features and characteristics. In addition, the course gives a short overview over other legal systems and presents the basics of private international law - the area of law that determines the legal rules of which state actually apply to cross-border activities. European Union law plays a special role for international business activities due to many reasons: First, the EU is becoming more and more important as an economic area. Second, European Union law is supranational in a sense that it interacts with or even derogates national law of the EU member states. Given, third, the abundance of EU legislation and administrative action, EU law today constitutes an essential framework for economic activities within the EU. The course therefore provides students with a basic understanding of the sources of EU law, its application and interpretation as well as its enforcement in national and EU courts. Further, the course shows the impact of EU law on national legal systems. Finally, the course gives an overview over the major areas of EU economic regulation as well as the implications of EU primary law on economic activities.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- identify and distinguish between the main legal systems.
- develop an intercultural sensitivity for the different legal systems and the application of legal rules in the respective systems.
- apply the basic rules of private international law.
- understand the legal framework and interpret legal acts of the European Union.
- comprehend the impact of EU law on national legal systems.
- understand the areas of EU economic regulation and the implications of EU primary law on economic activities.
- understand the impact of the respective legal system(s) on entrepreneurial decisions.

Management Accounting

Course Code: DLBMAE01

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

Management accounting is an important function to operate an organization. Managers need to understand this function in order to be able to run an organization efficiently. In most organizations, decisions, actions and human behavior are directly linked to the feature, use and focus of management accounting information. This course is about understanding the preparation and use of information provided by management accounting. Cost accounting as a central part of the management accounting informs the management about the profitability of its core business. The cost and performance measurement serves the internal decision, control and budgeting process.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- differentiate the management accounting and control function from the financial accounting and the financial management function.
- understand the cost structure and discuss the cost aspects of business operation.
- analyze and apply the tools for viewing and differentiating costs and utilize them to ameliorate business decision-making.
- discuss how the budgeting process and variance analysis works to implement the management control function.

Contents

1. Introduction to Management Accounting
 - 1.1 Financial vs. Management/Cost Accounting
 - 1.2 Definition of Cost
 - 1.3 Considering the Contemporary Business World Context
 - 1.4 Cost Behavior: Fixed and Variable Costs
2. Cost-Volume-Profit Analysis
 - 2.1 Break-Even Analysis
 - 2.2 Cost Structure and Operating Leverage
 - 2.3 Cost Structure and Variabilization

3. Simplistic Methods of Cost Allocation
 - 3.1 Cost Behavior: Direct and Indirect Costs
 - 3.2 The Need for Cost Allocation
 - 3.3 Predetermined Overhead Rate
 - 3.4 Departmental Overhead Rate
 - 3.5 Over- and Under-Application of Overhead
4. Activity-Based Costing
 - 4.1 The Rationale of Activity-Based Costing
 - 4.2 Implementing Activity-Based Costing
5. Overhead Analysis Sheet
 - 5.1 Departmental Cost Allocation
 - 5.2 Reciprocal Method
 - 5.3 Step Method
6. Relevant Cost Concepts
 - 6.1 Foundational Cost Concepts
 - 6.2 Replacement of Equipment
 - 6.3 Make or Buy
 - 6.4 Special Order

Course Description

Statistical description and analysis are the foundations for data-driven analysis and prediction methods. This course introduces the fundamentals, beginning with a formal definition of probabilities and introduction to the concepts underlying Bayesian statistics. Random variables and probability density distributions are then discussed, as well as the concept of joint and marginal distributions. The importance of various discrete and continuous distributions and their applications is stressed. Characterizing distributions is an important aspect of describing the behavior of probability distributions. Students are familiarized with expectation values, variance, and covariance. The concepts of algebraic and central moments and moment-generating functions complement the characterization of probability distributions. Finally, this course focuses on important inequalities and limit theorems such as the law of large numbers or the central limit theorem.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- define probability, random variable, and probability distribution.
- understand the concept of Bayesian statistics.
- grasp the definition of joint and marginal distributions.
- calculate expectation values and higher moments.
- comprehend important inequality equations and limit theorems.

3. Joint Distributions
 - 3.1 Joint distributions
 - 3.2 Marginal distributions
 - 3.3 Independent random variables
 - 3.4 Conditional distributions
4. Expectation and Variance
 - 4.1 Expectation of a random variable, conditional expectations
 - 4.2 Variance and covariance
 - 4.3 Expectations and variances of important probability distributions
 - 4.4 Algebraic and central moments
 - 4.5 Moment-generating functions
5. Inequalities and Limit Theorems
 - 5.1 Probability inequalities
 - 5.2 Inequalities for expectations
 - 5.3 The law of large numbers

Business Simulation: Tourism, Hospitality and Event

Course Code: DLBHMPTHE01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

In the Business Simulation "Destination Management", students deal with topics from the fields of Tourism, Hospitality and Event in an application-oriented manner. The students assume the entrepreneurial responsibility of a hotel, tourism or event business. In doing so, each student is primarily responsible for ensuring the success of her/his own business and for meeting her/his own targets. At meetings of the tourism association, the students also decide together on strategies and projects that are to be implemented collectively to secure the future of the destination as a whole. With the Business Simulation, almost all areas of a tourism operation or company are addressed and covered (e.g. mission statement development, market analysis and segmentation, marketing mix incl. public relations and corporate identity, range/depth of offers, quality management, image and customer satisfaction). In addition, internal accounting with detailed cost accounting (cost-benefit analysis / contribution margin accounting, investment and capacity planning), financing and cash flow planning as well as market research reports provide the basis for students' decisions. The complexity of the tasks and decisions increases in the course of the simulation, while the time sequences remain the same.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- identify current topics in tourism, hospitality or event and to reflect on the context.
- point out general conditions for economic success in a dynamic competitive environment and take them into account.
- select and implement strategies to achieve targets.
- analyze and evaluate business data.
- make effective decision-making in a team.
- assess the implications of decisions

Contents

- In the PC and cloud-based business simulation "TOPSIM - Destination Management", students take on the management of various local tourism businesses (e.g. hotels, mountain railroads, sports/event service providers, tourism organization) in a mountain resort in the Alps. In the conflict between cooperation and competition, they have to represent their own interests with negotiating skills without losing sight of the bigger picture (success of the destination). The students discuss the advantages and disadvantages of various tourism promotion measures in this business simulation and develop negotiation skills for representing their own interests. In addition, they decide and determine the long-term competitive strategy for the entire destination as a team. With the support of analyses, the participants select the instruments of the marketing mix in accordance with the needs of the various target groups. In addition, the students determine the capacity utilization of the entire destination and derive from this the investment requirements for their own operations and the destination. By carrying out a cost-benefit analysis, they determine the optimal seasonal duration of the destination and carry out operational financial and liquidity planning for both their own business and the destination.

LiteratureCompulsory Reading*Further Reading

- Participants will be provided with the business simulation manual and all required documents as a download.
- The participants are required to read the manual at the start of the simulation, because it is used for active work.
- The documents are structured in such a way that students can work on them at their own choice of location and independently of time. The course materials are supplemented by tutorials from the simulation leader.

Course Description

This course introduces students to the targets and scope of corporate finance and the role of financial markets. The separation of ownership and control is a constituent feature of corporations; students explore the resulting agency problems and the mechanisms available to mitigate the costs of agency relationships. Students will be introduced to fundamentals of theory and practice regarding principles of modern corporate finance. They will learn to read and analyze financial statements from a financing point of view and develop a detailed understanding of concepts such as the time value of money, interest rates, and cost of capital. After introducing basic concepts, equity and debt financing will be discussed at length. The financial leverage effect on rates of return will be explored and leasing and hybrid financial instruments as an alternative to pure equity and debt financing are presented. Students will study how corporations apply short-term measures of financing and how effective cash and working capital management is used to reduce short-term financing needs and costs. This course will conclude with a discussion on the investment processes of corporations with a particular focus on the challenge of estimating expected cash flows. Students will learn how to include risk as a factor in the decision process and be able to analyse applied investment rules and methodologies.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- recognize the targets and scope of corporate finance and the role of financial markets .
- understand agency-problems in corporations and how incentives and institutional and market mechanisms are used to mitigate agency costs .
- interpret financial statements and key performance indicators and draw conclusions about financing alternatives and potentials of a corporation.
- consider the time value of money and calculate the cost of capital used to optimize future project cash flow streams.
- implement a long-term financing strategy and structure for corporations based on an appropriate mix of equity, debt, leasing, and hybrid financial instruments.
- effectively utilize cash management and working capital management to reduce short-term financing needs and costs.
- prepare investment decisions, estimate expected project cash flows and incorporate cash flow related risks into the decision process.
- apply investment decision methodologies to evaluate and select favorable corporate investment projects.

Course Description

The qualification objectives correspond to levels A1, A2, B1 and B2 according to the criteria of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR). Using everyday subject areas, chosen areas of specialization, and using basic and advanced grammatical structures, the use of Italian as a foreign language is taught and practiced according to a CEFR placement test.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- meet the qualification objectives according to the chosen level (A1, A2, B1 or B2) according to the criteria of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR).
- use the foreign language Italian according to a CEFR placement test on the basis of everyday topics, selected areas of specialization and by adapting basic and advanced grammatical structures.

Contents

- Depending on the CEFR placement, students will be proficient
 - to understand and use familiar, everyday expressions and very simple phrases aimed at satisfying concrete needs. They can introduce themselves and others and ask other people questions about themselves - e.g. where they live, what kind of people they know or what kind of things they have - and they can give answers to questions of this kind. They can communicate in a simple way if the person they are talking to speaks slowly and clearly and is willing to help. (Level A1)
 - to understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of immediate importance (e.g. personal and family information, shopping, work, local area). You can communicate in simple, routine situations involving a simple and direct exchange of information about familiar things. You can describe by simple means your own background and education, immediate environment and things related to immediate needs. (Level A2)
 - to understand the main points when clear standard language is used and when it's about familiar things from work, school, leisure, etc. You can handle most situations encountered while traveling in the language area. You can express yourself simply and coherently on familiar topics and personal areas of interest. You can talk about experiences and events, describe dreams, hopes and goals, and give brief reasons or explanations for plans and opinions. (Level B1)

- to understand the main content of complex texts on concrete and abstract topics; and to understand specialist discussions in their own area of specialization. You can communicate so spontaneously and fluently that a normal conversation with native speakers is quite possible without major effort on either side. You can express yourself clearly and in detail on a wide range of topics, explain a point of view on a topical issue and state the advantages and disadvantages of various options. (Level B2)
- Grammar:
 - Level A1 - present and past tenses, sentence structure, prepositions, etc.
 - Level A2 - among other things tenses of the past, differences in the past tenses, imperative, subordinate clauses, pronouns (dative, accusative)
 - Level B1 - including introduction of past perfect, conjunctions, introduction of passive voice, adverbs, adjectives (difference), future tense
 - Level B2 - among others verb constructions, conditional clauses, indirect speech

Intercultural and Ethical Decision-Making

Course Code: DLBCSIDM01

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

In this course, students acquire the necessary knowledge to understand intercultural competencies and current developments in the fields of diversity and ethics. Students will understand how to systematically plan and implement learning processes for the development of competences important in these areas. First, important terms are clarified and differentiated from each other, and cultural aspects are explained from different perspectives. In addition, students learn that cultural issues are relevant at different levels, for example, within a state, company, or other group. In this context, students also recognize the connection between ethics and culture with different interdependencies. On the basis of this knowledge, students are then familiarized with the different possibilities and potentials of intercultural and ethical learning and working. Practical cases are used to illustrate the importance of the relationships learned for today's work context in many companies. The students then work on a case study in which the acquired knowledge is systematically applied.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- explain the most important terms in the areas of interculturality, diversity, and ethics.
- distinguish different explanatory patterns of culture.
- understand culture at different levels.
- plan processes of intercultural learning and working.
- understand the interdependencies of culture and ethics.
- independently work on a case study on intercultural competence.

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The course introduces students to the basic concepts, principles and practices of sustainable development both with a global perspective and related to the context of tourism, hospitality and events. Following an overview of commonly used terminology in sustainability, the basic principles of sustainable development are discussed. The course will analyze the environmental, social and economic impacts of the tourism industry. Further, students will learn to define and analyze sustainable management systems that provide tourism, hospitality and event companies to minimize or avoid environmental damage and ensure fair social exchange while staying profitable. The course also covers the application of certification schemes: using self-evaluation by tourism and hospitality companies or third-party audits. In addition to eco-labels in tourism, hospitality and events, the concept of corporate social responsibility will be introduced. Furthermore, the principles of sustainable design are explained in order find construction measures in the context of sustainability. Finally, the phenomenon of overtourism is discussed, so that the students learn about its causes and effects as well as possible counteractions.

International Contract Management

Course Code: DLBINTIWR01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The internationalization of economic life has progressed steadily in recent decades. While business considerations often change little when borders are crossed, legal issues show quite a different pattern. After all, every country has its own legal system. By law, the rights and duties of those involved in economic life in different countries can vary or even contradict each other. However, the laws of the individual legal systems are primarily created for domestic situations. Also, questions arising in international economic transactions are largely answered by the individual states themselves, again quite independently and in their individual way. Often, only specialists in private international law are able to evaluate which rights and obligations apply by law. However, the acquisition of such special knowledge is neither practicable nor necessary for daily business practice. This course focuses on the subject area of contract management. Instead of submitting to an unclear legal situation, companies - even across national borders - can often determine their own binding rights and obligations. The means to achieve this is the contract. A contract is nothing more than the mutual promise of the parties to do something for each other. The questions to be answered follow the business logic of the transaction. If, for example, goods or services are purchased by payment, the parties must agree, for example, on when and where the goods are to be delivered, in which currency payment is to be made, and what is to be done in the event of a defect. Efficient contract management is therefore crucial for the success of the company, especially in an international context. In this course, its objectives, contents and methods will be presented. This course follows the chronological sequence of a project and identifies the four phases of contract management: proposal preparation, negotiation, execution and analysis. In each phase, contract management must face specific challenges. When preparing an offer, it is particularly important to transfer the business model into a contractually meaningful form. During negotiations, the practicability and profitability of the business model must be maintained. In the execution phase, the main focus is on securing and increasing results. Finally, the analysis enables "lessons learned" to be drawn for future business activities.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- identify and explain the four phases of contract management.
- describe essential elements of an international treaty.
- explain which contractual clauses are fundamental to the business model.
- understand which and how contractual risks can be quantified.
- distinguish how to negotiate different contractual clauses.
- show how revenue can be increased in the offer phase and processing phase.

Hospitality Revenue Management

Course Code: DLBHORM01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

This course teaches the basics of Revenue Management in the hotel industry and discusses current Hospitality Revenue Management approaches based on digital technologies. For example, reservation and yield management systems for different segments and their respective advantages and disadvantages will be presented. In addition, students will understand how demand and its various drivers influence the pricing of products and services in the hospitality industry. Moreover, students will be able to calculate optimal prices using different pricing techniques and models. Further, students will gain knowledge of how managers in the hospitality industry use various performance measures to calculate demand models and adjust them according to current market conditions. The course also teaches the effects of competition and how strategic decisions play out in an interactive marketplace. Likewise, competitive effects due to sales promotional measures are examined and their effects on the operational business are analyzed. Students will learn how Hospitality Revenue Management can be used to calculate and analyze the various forecasts and to use the results for developing sales strategies. In addition, the course teaches the use and application of various Hospitality Revenue Management approaches to actively manage fluctuations in demand. Finally, students will learn how online sales channels can be used professionally and effectively with the help of a Hospitality Revenue Management strategy. The effects of booking portals on hotels are discussed, as is the current debate on the pros and cons of booking and rating portals.

Crisis Management in Tourism, Hospitality and Event

Course Code: DLBHMKMTHE01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

Currently - and more than ever - effective crisis management is an indispensable management tool in Tourism, Hospitality and Event. The professional establishment of a crisis management concept enables the respective companies on the one hand to ensure operational continuity and on the other hand, at best, to gain a competitive edge and an enhanced image. It is important to consider the framework conditions that make crisis management in Tourism, Hospitality and Event indispensable: the general security aspect in connection with travel as well as the crisis vulnerability of the industry as a whole. In addition to the basic theoretical knowledge of crisis management in general and crisis typology, the course also provides a practical approach to establishing professional crisis communication respectively a systematic crisis management cycle in the company. Furthermore, the extent to which professionally applied crisis management may contribute both to customer retention and loyalty is discussed. Finally, (current) best practices within the fields of Tourism, Hospitality and Event for the anticipatory introduction of a crisis management concept or active crisis management are presented.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- apply the fundamentals of crisis management both theoretically and practically.
- convince Stakeholder groups of the necessity to establish a systematic crisis management concept in tourism-, hospitality- and event-related companies.
- independently evolve a crisis communication concept for a company.
- establish a crisis management cycle within in a company.
- evaluate the importance of crisis management on customer retention and loyalty.

Course Description

In our highly mobil society, Food Away From Home (FAFH) is becoming increasingly important. The diverse gastronomic landscape can be divided into four areas: In the hotel industry, gastronomy is a key business area and, depending on the given structure and orientation, also a major driver of the turnover. At the same time, it also tends to generate the biggest operational cost pool. As a rule, the gastronomy sector consists of the restaurant, bar, café, banquet department, floor service, kitchen, purchasing, merchandise usage control, dishwashing and crockery (stewarding), service bar/coffee kitchen, and possibly party or catering services. This course first looks at the history of gastronomy and the various terminologies used, before identifying and analyzing the different service systems and associated processes. In addition to organizational workflows, the course also examines various aspects of restaurant design. Given the pre-eminent role of cost control in restaurant management, cost structures and pricing in the restaurant industry are explained and analyzed in great detail. Furthermore, the course explores the different steps involved in trade show organization. In addition to the current trends and challenges facing the restaurant industry in today's digital age, various aspects of sustainable gastronomy are analyzed and critically reflected.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand and outline the historical evolution of gastronomy.

Course Description

The in-depth course first provides an overview of the design of experiences in tourism. After a synopsis of the most important modes of transport and their importance for tourism, the aviation market is identified as an essential upstream industry. With business models, yield management and low-cost concepts, management techniques and strategies are illustrated and applied to core tourism sectors. With tour operators as the producers of travel and the distribution of tourism products, the topics covered in the introductory course are completed with two core topics of the industry. For this purpose, first the term and the tasks of the tour operator are defined with the corresponding legal consequences and the product package tour with its characteristics is discussed. This is followed by a presentation of the developments in the tour operator market and a discussion of the current competitive situation of tour operators with current competitive strategies of tour operators. For the distribution of tourism products, the classic direct and indirect distribution channels are explained, and their characteristics are elaborated. The growing importance of online distribution is highlighted and the resulting changes in the competitive parameters in tourism distribution (especially for travel agencies) are conveyed. The course concludes with an overview of the relationship between tour operators and travel distribution, covering the topics of commissions, the current market position of traditional distribution, new challenges in the relationship with customers, and an outlook on upcoming changes and their impact on market participants.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- assess the importance of experiences and apply techniques to create experiences.
- assess the importance of different modes of transport and identify influences on tourism from the analysis of the developments in aviation and transfer as well as discuss strategies to tourism sectors.
- understand different submarkets in tourism in their historical development until today so that they are able to evaluate, anticipate, and contextualize future developments and derive implications and necessary actions for the various competitive participants.

Applied Sales I

Course Code: DLBDSEAS01

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The demands on sales thinking are growing every day. Globalized demand combined with high competition is making it increasingly difficult for companies to compete for customers. At the same time, customers are becoming better informed, while traditional supply markets are saturated and at overcapacity. In order to be successful in such an environment, sales thinking and action are required along with a new type of salesperson. Within the course Applied Sales I (Introduction), the participants are familiarized with the basic concepts of applied sales. You will learn about sales organization, dealing with alternative sales channels, and get to know the dedicated sales planning process. The contents of the module are complemented by the successful acquisition of new customers, whereby particular attention is paid to the organization and implementation of customer visits and the conduct of discussions and negotiations.

Applied Sales II

Course Code: DLBDSEAS02

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The course Applied Sales II builds on the basics taught in the course "Applied Sales I" and broadens and deepens them. First, the tension between marketing and sales is examined in more detail. Based on this, essential backgrounds and central target figures for successful sales management (e.g., customer satisfaction and loyalty as well as the customer life cycle) are derived and operationalized in order to create the basis for efficient and effective customer relationship management. As the process progresses, attention will also be paid to mental processes and consumer behavior in general. In addition, strategies and paths to successful negotiation are deepened and supplemented by convincing communication techniques. The course concludes with a case study in the course of which the students have the opportunity to apply what they have learned in a practice-oriented manner.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand the interaction and the respective areas of responsibility of marketing and sales.
- reflect on and classify the goals and measures within the framework of the applied sales system.
- assess the relevance of customer satisfaction and retention. In addition, the students will be familiar with the central design elements of CRM.
- reflect on and assess alternative approaches to customer loyalty and relationship management and apply them in business practice.
- understand the meaning of the terms customer life cycle and customer value, and develop approaches to manage them in the sense of the respective sales targets.
- use descriptive presentation techniques in order to convince customers and other sales partners.
- understand the relevance of networking and develop strategies to broaden the contact base.
- develop and evaluate their own market analyses and sales concepts on the basis of practical experience within the framework of the case study.

Course Description

This course uses interdisciplinary fundamentals that enable students to deal with the topic of Online Marketing in an operative and strategic way. This includes business and economic principles as well as communicative multimedia basics or the consideration of the basic tonality of Online Marketing channels. This holistic view is essential for strategic planning: In addition to considering the positioning of companies in the World Wide Web, the course will also work out how Online Marketing appearances can be optimized. The measurement of success and evaluation of relevant key figures complete the comprehensive basis for the whole module. The Online Marketing course teaches basic technical terms and concepts. These include the online communication process, added value of Online Marketing as well as electronic value creation and business models. Based on this knowledge, the course discusses aspects of product suitability, pricing policy, distribution policy, the various forms of marketing and distribution on the Internet. The course expands the understanding of the strategic and especially operational Online Marketing elements such as the planning and realization of advertising campaigns through various sales channels. In addition, the increasing development of mobile communication is taken into account and Mobile Marketing is considered as part of the Online Marketing Mix. To understand the behavior of online customers the course deals with the specific effects of advertising in regards to Online Marketing. Based on the principles of customer acquisition, the course discusses customer retention and loyalty in Online Marketing, strategies and tactics for increasing customer numbers, online campaigns and the importance of online relationships. Students learn the ropes of legal aspects and the principles of the German Data Protection Ordinance (DSGVO) relevant to Online Marketing to legally substantiate advertising campaigns and customer approaches. This course offers students the opportunity to get to know and implement the various aspects of Online Marketing Management in practice. They learn how to assess Online Media Planning through Web Analytics and targeted monitoring. For this, students learn the relevant Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) of Online Marketing, which are an essential condition for optimizing online strategies.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- classify and strategically consider the basics relevant for Online Marketing (online communication process, electronic value creation, ...)

Course Description

How did Social Media become Social Media Marketing? Social Media has developed from a private communication medium to a commercialized advertising tool. A basic understanding of this development, the social implications of Social Media as well as the networked communication strategies on the Internet is the basis for an active examination of Social Media Marketing. Social Media Marketing is considered both strategically and operationally. The strategic perspective includes the aspect of strategic positioning of Social Media in the company as well as the integration into the overall marketing mix. In addition to fundamental aspects of strategy development, students will deal with the instruments of today's Social Media Marketing and the channels to use them specifically for further marketing measures and strategies in a success-oriented manner. For the active operative examination of Social Media Marketing, Social Media channels such as Facebook, Instagram, Pinterest, etc. are examined in detail in order to use them specifically for further marketing measures and strategies. Digital advertising measures that are used in Social Media are an integral part of this course. Their usage will also be considered from a legal perspective. Thus, the Social Media Marketing course teaches basic concepts such as the development of a Social Media strategy, including aspects such as content management, editorial planning or target group analysis. It deals with the usage and monitoring of different Social Media channels in a practice-oriented way and it considers the area of operative Social Media Marketing. Hence, this course provides students with a well-founded holistic view of the field of Social Media Marketing and develops the ability to use Social Media for innovation management.

Course Description

More and more companies leave their bureaucratic systems and hierarchical structures behind and adopt an agile style of work. Knowledge is both increasing and outdated at an increasing rate. Autonomy and creativity become of greater importance in more and more companies. Increasingly, processes and departments are set up according to agile principles. Work experiences an increasing dissolution of boundaries with both positive and negative effects. The question of how structures and corporate culture adapt better and faster to shorter innovation cycles and environmental changes affects all companies and their human resources management. It is more important than ever for knowledge and qualifications to be state of the art; consequently continuous learning needs to take a more prominent role in the work place. In the context of social and demographic change, work and organizations are moving further and further away from Taylorism and towards integral, evolutionary organizations whose work is characterized by self-management, a holistic view and meaningful tasks. This is accompanied by a change in orientation, away from bureaucracy towards democratic structures and empowerment. This course provides an introduction to the complex and contemporary theme of the new working world and work structure. Starting with a classification of the topic, we will define social megatrends as essential factors influencing human resource management and organization. Building on this, we will discuss the dipole of rigid and agile organizational structures and the resulting effects on leadership, personnel management and employees. Further, we will look at the concepts of cooperation and leadership during the implementation of new work structures and methods as well as necessary competencies. Competence development addresses how learning, attitudes and abilities are set to interact to provide companies with agile processes. Finally, we will critically reflect upon the new work concept, looking at advantages and disadvantages for those involved, predominantly in the context of legal and social conditions.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- identify and understand the challenges of technological and societal change.
- transfer the emerging challenges to human resources management and the leadership culture in companies.
- understand the concepts of agile and fluid organizations and the resulting consequences.
- identify solutions for complex environmental factors on leadership and human resources management.

Course Description

Decisions in complex situations do not follow the rules of logic, but are determined by the features of market participants' behavior. In order to better understand this behavior and to make reliable forecasts based on it, economics is recommended to include discoveries in the field of psychology. After an introduction to business psychology and its influencing factors, students are familiarized with the various theories on motivation, cognition and interaction. This course then looks into business psychology at the macro- and microeconomic level. Students learn about the psychological view on the development of countries and societies as well as the psychology of organizations and groups. In addition, the psychology of work in relation to human resources in general and job satisfaction in particular is examined. Students learn about and understand the importance of change in organizations and the principle of the learning organization. The ability to learn faster than the competition is one of the most important competitive factors. Learning organizations promote joint and individual learning and increase employee motivation towards work.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

Course Description

In a globalized working world, international meetings, cooperation and activities have become a matter of course. In most cases, these encounters between culturally different people are successful and satisfying for both sides. However, it is not uncommon for critical situations to arise in which the behavior of the other person is seen as threatening, inappropriate or useless and does not meet one's own expectations. In this course, students learn to understand and react appropriately to cultural differences and to deal with them in situations relevant to their jobs. The areas of intercultural differences, specifics and cooperation in intercultural teams and organizations are addressed, as well as the orientation of advertising communication in different cultural contexts. After a presentation of the different approaches of psychology as Intercultural Psychology, Cultural Psychology and Cultural Psychology and the culture-specific research, practice-relevant topics such as Intercultural Management, Intercultural Marketing and Intercultural Training will be addressed. Particular attention is paid to the areas of diversity management and value management in the corporate environment.

International Brand Management

Course Code: DLBDSEIMB02

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The aim of this course is to deepen and expand the knowledge acquired in the introductory elective course International Marketing. The value of a brand is a decisive competitive advantage for companies in international business. Brands create long-term and profitable customer relationships. Brands are therefore valuable assets for companies and organizations. Students learn the basics of brand management before moving on to the concepts and success factors of international brand management. Students also become familiar with the structure of brand architectures and the possibilities of brand extensions. The fact that different stakeholder groups must be taken into account in brand management is communicated to the students on the basis of the stakeholder concept. In addition, the students get to know the various methods for measuring brand value and brand controlling. The aspects of trademark protection that are particularly important in an international environment will be dealt with conclusively.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- recognize the significance of a brand and the general conditions under which brands operate, as well as the associated tasks of brand management.

Corporate Communication

Course Code: DLBPRWCCPR01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

In this course students are encouraged to fully grasp all internal and external communication activities of a company. Corporate communication is part of corporate identity and serves to communicate the corporate image. Here, for example, the focus can be on "sustainability" or "being hip". With the rise of saturated markets and global competition, the corporate image is becoming increasingly important. Corporate image and communication are increasingly becoming competitive advantages because it is becoming more and more difficult for companies to achieve and maintain product-related competitive advantages. This course combines targeted theoretical and strategic principles with practical knowledge of the content, methods, instruments and structures of corporate communication.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- comprehend the essence of corporate identity, corporate design and corporate image, differentiate them from and relate them to one another.
- understand and explain corporate communication as a sub-discipline of corporate communications.
- distinguish corporate communication from public relations.

Contents

1. Introduction to Corporate Communication
 - 1.1 Principles and Definitions
 - 1.2 Internal vs. External Corporate Communications
 - 1.3 Image Building and Brand Development
 - 1.4 Best Practice Examples in an International Context
2. Corporate Communication and PR
 - 2.1 Sub-Disciplines of Corporate Communications
 - 2.2 Differentiation from Public Relations
 - 2.3 Historical Development and Milestones

3. Corporate Philosophy as a Means of Corporate Management
 - 3.1 Corporate Soul
 - 3.2 Corporate Language
 - 3.3 Corporate Culture
4. Corporate Identity in Focus
 - 4.1 Visual Branding: Corporate Design
 - 4.2 Non-Visual Branding: Corporate Identity
5. Corporate Communication and Digitalization
 - 5.1 Challenges of Multi-Channel Communication
 - 5.2 Outlook: Trends and Developments in the Age of Digitalization

Course Description

The course "International Accounting" covers financial reporting in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS). The objective is to provide students with a working knowledge of general purpose financial reporting under IFRS, especially in comparison to accounting consistent with the German Commercial Code (HGB). The focus is on IFRS and not US-GAAP as global reporting language as the former is becoming increasingly important for German companies (i.e. obligation of listed parent companies to prepare consolidated financial statements in accordance with IFRS from the years 2005 or 2007 onwards).

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand the objectives, characteristics and principles of IFRS reporting in an international context and compare them to national accounting principles (HGB)
- apply recognition and measurement rules of IFRS
- describe IFRS standards as they relate to the recognition, measurement, presentation and disclosure requirements in general purpose financial statements

Course Description

To remain competitive, all organizations are subject to constant change. To shape this change positively is a key function of the responsible managers and a sign of successful management. Frequently, reasons such as the discontinuation or the development of new business fields, mergers and relocations are decisive, but also continuous company growth; technological improvements and social changes are reasons for partly far-reaching measures for the further development of organizations. This knowledge is of central importance for implementing changes. This course shows the most important human relation theories that serve as a basis for organizational development. Since the corporate culture is a central component of organizational development, both the analysis and the development of the corporate culture are presented. It also discusses the most important aspects of learning organization.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- explain the basic principles of organizational development.
- name the human relation theories in organizational development.
- explain points of criticism of organizational development.
- name the implications of Systemic Organizational Development.

These developments offer growth opportunities for companies - new business models, merging markets, changed customer behavior. To utilize future potentials, companies need to implement changes effectively and quickly. To do this, it is essential to know the meaning, structure, roles of the people involved, possible bottle neck situations and communication within the framework of change management. A great number of change programs regularly fail in the operational implementation. Therefore, knowledge of the systematic approach to the change process is necessary to successfully manage change in and of the company. People and processes play a central role in this procedure.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- explain the management of change in its broadest sense.
- identify the characteristics and procedures by which necessary changes in companies can be identified and designed.
- grasp the basics of processes in change management and communicate them to other participants.
- identify and analyze the need for change.
- outline typical tasks of managers in initiating and accompanying change processes.
- explain essential and effective techniques and tools of change processes and apply them.
- evaluate the success of change processes and measures.
- develop meaningful ways of dealing with resistance that arises in the change process.

Course Description

The aim is to provide a bird's eye view of special features, opportunities, risks and challenges in both country-specific and cross-national human resources management. To this end, the concept of culture will be discussed and different ways of looking at culture will be debated. On this basis, the course tackles country-specific personnel management with its respective peculiarities. This is followed by a discussion on the transnational personnel management of Multinational Corporations (MNCs). Building on this, the topics of international staff deployment, secondments and the influence of host countries on the management process of MNCs and their foreign subsidiaries will be addressed. A discussion on special features of human resources management in cross-border mergers and acquisitions rounds up this part of the course. In a second thematic approach, the course looks at the requirements for the development of transnational managers in MNCs and discusses measures such as secondment and ongoing training. Finally, the introduced models and concepts will be applied to two example regions in Asia (Japan/Taiwan and China/Vietnam) and the USA.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand and identify the challenges of human resource management in multinational companies.
- take into account cultural particularities in personnel management in different countries and to apply these to transnational mergers and acquisitions.
- name opportunities and risks as well as factors for success in the assignment of expatriates and to identify optimization factors.
- identify elements for developing transnationally qualified managers.
- identify specific risks and opportunities in international personnel deployment with regard to selected regions.

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

Today, competitiveness depends more than ever on continuous innovation. This puts new demands on the management of companies. The task of successful leaders in innovation and business is no longer to offer direction and solutions, but to create a framework in which others develop innovations. This change, which is currently taking place with full force in companies, requires further developments on classic leadership concepts and its principles. Against the background of digital change and the advance of artificial intelligence, established business models are constantly being put to the test. On the one hand, it is important to work on several projects simultaneously and to adapt flexibly to changing conditions at any time; on the other hand, employees want to be integrated into the work process in a different way. Consideration and flexibility for their personal and family situation play an increasing role. Innovation and business leaders can only meet all these diverse challenges with Leadership by inspiring others to think ahead and act inter-divisionally, in other words, to be visionary. This course tries to convey knowledge, understanding and tools for this challenging field of work.

Course Outcomes

Business Ethics

Course Code: BETH01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	keine

Course Description

Business Ethics deals with the application of ethical principles to business activities. The actions of individuals and companies are thus integrated into a context of social and ethical responsibility. Business Ethics derives its legitimacy from the effects that all economic activities have on other people, institutions and the environment. Social justice and sustainability are therefore among the most important norms of Business Ethics and are explained and described in the course. The aim of the course is providing general guidance on how to arrive at ethical decisions, rather than offering general solutions. In that sense, students are enabled to develop moral judgment in an informed manner and then make ethical decisions accordingly.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- identify conflicting interests between profit making and ethical behavior.
- name the different ethical problem situations in the daily business.
- understand business ethics theories and concepts.
- systematically integrate aspects of business ethics in daily business routine.
- use instruments of business ethics in order to sanction misconduct and to encourage ethical decision-making.

Contents

Course Description

The goal of market research is to collect information in order to support management decision-making. Market research information can be obtained in many different ways. The Market Research course provides students with a basic knowledge about the approach to market research and the methods used. All steps of the market research process are presented. The data which is generated through research focusses on topics such as determining the market potential, image analyses or customer satisfaction measurement.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- know the basic methods of market research.
- understand the basic techniques of research approaches, survey methods and data analysis with emphasis on the interpretation and evaluation of results.
- systematically collect and analyze data to make decisions based on sound criteria.
- evaluate the importance, benefits and limitations of market research data.

Contents

1. Basics of Market Research
 - 1.1 Definition and relevance to marketing
 - 1.2 Tasks and the process of market research
 - 1.3 Providers and users of market research data
2. Overview: Choice of Research Approach; Explorative, Descriptive and Causal Studies
 - 2.1 Overview: Choice of research approach
 - 2.2 Exploratory studies
 - 2.3 Descriptive studies
3. Choice of Survey Method: Secondary Research
 - 3.1 Advantages and disadvantages, sources of secondary research
 - 3.2 System platforms in the context of market research
 - 3.3 Practical benefits of market research using Porsche as an example

4. Choice of Survey Method: Primary Research I
 - 4.1 Primary research methods
 - 4.2 Survey and exploration
 - 4.3 Group discussions, in-depth interviews and experiments
5. Choice of Survey Method: Primary Research II
 - 5.1 Observation
 - 5.2 Online surveys
 - 5.3 Panels and trend studies
6. Operationalization process for measuring and scaling of variables
 - 6.1 Definitions
 - 6.2 Measuring
 - 6.3 Scaling
 - 6.4 Operationalization
7. Data Collection
 - 7.1 Editing
 - 7.2 Coding
 - 7.3 Error control
 - 7.4 Missing data
8. Descriptive Data Analysis; Uni-/Bivariate Methods
 - 8.1 Univariate procedures
 - 8.2 Bivariate procedures
9. Multivariate Analysis
 - 9.1 Dependencies
 - 9.2 Interdependencies
 - 9.3 Sources of error
10. Multivariate Data Analysis using the Example of Customer Satisfaction
 - 10.1 Determining customer satisfaction
 - 10.2 Considerations for developing a survey
 - 10.3 The finished survey

Course Description

Innovation management has a high relevance for the success of a company. Students receive a basic understanding of innovation management and its significance from an economic and business perspective. In addition to the different innovation strategies, the function and organization of innovation as well as the innovation culture in a company and the phases of the innovation process are presented in detail and classified within strategic management and product management. For each phase of the innovation process concrete instruments are introduced and their advantages and disadvantages will be examined. After the discussion of selected creativity techniques for the generation of ideas, the Lead User Approach, the Open Innovation approaches and the Conjoint Analysis Methodology will be discussed. In the innovation evaluation phase, students will be familiarized with instruments such as scoring models. As the final stage of the innovation process, an understanding of the implementation of innovations on the market will be conveyed. Finally four concrete case studies are going to be explained for the purpose to demonstrate the innovation practice in different companies.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- explain the importance of innovation as a driving force for the overall economic development as well as for the start-up or further development of a company.
- describe the design of an innovation strategy and explain the different organizational forms of the innovation function.
- understand the importance of a supportive innovation culture and how innovation management is designed as part of strategic management.

Gastronomy Management

Course Code: DLBHOGUC01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

In our highly mobil society, Food Away From Home (FAFH) is becoming increasingly important. The diverse gastronomic landscape can be divided into four areas: In the hotel industry, gastronomy is a key business area and, depending on the given structure and orientation, also a major driver of the turnover. At the same time, it also tends to generate the biggest operational cost pool. As a rule, the gastronomy sector consists of the restaurant, bar, café, banquet department, floor service, kitchen, purchasing, merchandise usage control, dishwashing and crockery (stewarding), service bar/coffee kitchen, and possibly party or catering services. This course first looks at the history of gastronomy and the various terminologies used, before identifying and analyzing the different service systems and associated processes. In addition to organizational workflows, the course also examines various aspects of restaurant design. Given the pre-eminent role of cost control in restaurant management, cost structures and pricing in the restaurant industry are explained and analyzed in great detail. Furthermore, the course explores the different steps involved in trade show organization. In addition to the current trends and challenges facing the restaurant industry in today's digital age, various aspects of sustainable gastronomy are analyzed and critically reflected.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand and outline the historical evolution of gastronomy.
- explain the main concepts of gastronomy.
- name and apply organizational procedures in the food service industry.
- compare the different forms of services in the gastronomy sector.
- outline the cost structures in the restaurant industry and perform a calculation, including a break-even analysis.
- explain and apply the principles of inventory management.

Course Description

The in-depth course first provides an overview of the design of experiences in tourism. After a synopsis of the most important modes of transport and their importance for tourism, the aviation market is identified as an essential upstream industry. With business models, yield management and low-cost concepts, management techniques and strategies are illustrated and applied to core tourism sectors. With tour operators as the producers of travel and the distribution of tourism products, the topics covered in the introductory course are completed with two core topics of the industry. For this purpose, first the term and the tasks of the tour operator are defined with the corresponding legal consequences and the product package tour with its characteristics is discussed. This is followed by a presentation of the developments in the tour operator market and a discussion of the current competitive situation of tour operators with current competitive strategies of tour operators. For the distribution of tourism products, the classic direct and indirect distribution channels are explained, and their characteristics are elaborated. The growing importance of online distribution is highlighted and the resulting changes in the competitive parameters in tourism distribution (especially for travel agencies) are conveyed. The course concludes with an overview of the relationship between tour operators and travel distribution, covering the topics of commissions, the current market position of traditional distribution, new challenges in the relationship with customers, and an outlook on upcoming changes and their impact on market participants.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

Course Description

The demands on sales thinking are growing every day. Globalized demand combined with high competition is making it increasingly difficult for companies to compete for customers. At the same time, customers are becoming better informed, while traditional supply markets are saturated and at overcapacity. In order to be successful in such an environment, sales thinking and action are required along with a new type of salesperson. Within the course Applied Sales I (Introduction), the participants are familiarized with the basic concepts of applied sales. You will learn about sales organization, dealing with alternative sales channels, and get to know the dedicated sales planning process. The contents of the module are complemented by the successful acquisition of new customers, whereby particular attention is paid to the organization and implementation of customer visits and the conduct of discussions and negotiations.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand the fundamentals of applied sales and place them in the context of the company.
- understand the interaction of the individual facets of applied sales.

Applied Sales II

Course Code: DLBDSEAS02

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The course Applied Sales II builds on the basics taught in the course "Applied Sales I" and broadens and deepens them. First, the tension between marketing and sales is examined in more detail. Based on this, essential backgrounds and central target figures for successful sales management (e.g., customer satisfaction and loyalty as well as the customer life cycle) are derived and operationalized in order to create the basis for efficient and effective customer relationship management. As the process progresses, attention will also be paid to mental processes and consumer behavior in general. In addition, strategies and paths to successful negotiation are deepened and supplemented by convincing communication techniques. The course concludes with a case study in the course of which the students have the opportunity to apply what they have learned in a practice-oriented manner.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand the interaction and the respective areas of responsibility of marketing and sales.
- reflect on and classify the goals and measures within the framework of the applied sales system.
- assess the relevance of customer satisfaction and retention. In addition, the students will be familiar with the central design elements of CRM.
- reflect on and assess alternative approaches to customer loyalty and relationship management and apply them in business practice.
- understand the meaning of the terms customer life cycle and customer value, and develop approaches to manage them in the sense of the respective sales targets.
- use descriptive presentation techniques in order to convince customers and other sales partners.
- understand the relevance of networking and develop strategies to broaden the contact base.
- develop and evaluate their own market analyses and sales concepts on the basis of practical experience within the framework of the case study.

Course Description

This course uses interdisciplinary fundamentals that enable students to deal with the topic of Online Marketing in an operative and strategic way. This includes business and economic principles as well as communicative multimedia basics or the consideration of the basic tonality of Online Marketing channels. This holistic view is essential for strategic planning: In addition to considering the positioning of companies in the World Wide Web, the course will also work out how Online Marketing appearances can be optimized. The measurement of success and evaluation of relevant key figures complete the comprehensive basis for the whole module. The Online Marketing course teaches basic technical terms and concepts. These include the online communication process, added value of Online Marketing as well as electronic value creation and business models. Based on this knowledge, the course discusses aspects of product suitability, pricing policy, distribution policy, the various forms of marketing and distribution on the Internet. The course expands the understanding of the strategic and especially operational Online Marketing elements such as the planning and realization of advertising campaigns through various sales channels. In addition, the increasing development of mobile communication is taken into account and Mobile Marketing is considered as part of the Online Marketing Mix. To understand the behavior of online customers the course deals with the specific effects of advertising in regards to Online Marketing. Based on the principles of customer acquisition, the course discusses customer retention and loyalty in Online Marketing, strategies and tactics for increasing customer numbers, online campaigns and the importance of online relationships. Students learn the ropes of legal aspects and the principles of the German Data Protection Ordinance (DSGVO) relevant to Online Marketing to legally substantiate advertising campaigns and customer approaches. This course offers students the opportunity to get to know and implement the various aspects of Online Marketing Management in practice. They learn how to assess Online Media Planning through Web Analytics and targeted monitoring. For this, students learn the relevant Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) of Online Marketing, which are an essential condition for optimizing online strategies.

Social Media Marketing

Course Code: DLBMSM02-01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

How did Social Media become Social Media Marketing? Social Media has developed from a private communication medium to a commercialized advertising tool. A basic understanding of this development, the social implications of Social Media as well as the networked communication strategies on the Internet is the basis for an active examination of Social Media Marketing. Social Media Marketing is considered both strategically and operationally. The strategic perspective includes the aspect of strategic positioning of Social Media in the company as well as the integration into the overall marketing mix. In addition to fundamental aspects of strategy development, students will deal with the instruments of today's Social Media Marketing and the channels to use them specifically for further marketing measures and strategies in a success-oriented manner. For the active operative examination of Social Media Marketing, Social Media channels such as Facebook, Instagram, Pinterest, etc. are examined in detail in order to use them specifically for further marketing measures and strategies. Digital advertising measures that are used in Social Media are an integral part of this course. Their usage will also be considered from a legal perspective. Thus, the Social Media Marketing course teaches basic concepts such as the development of a Social Media strategy, including aspects such as content management, editorial planning or target group analysis. It deals with the usage and monitoring of different Social Media channels in a practice-oriented way and it considers the area of operative Social Media Marketing. Hence, this course provides students with a well-founded holistic view of the field of Social Media Marketing and develops the ability to use Social Media for innovation management.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

Introduction to New Work

Course Code: DLBNWENW01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

More and more companies leave their bureaucratic systems and hierarchical structures behind and adopt an agile style of work. Knowledge is both increasing and outdated at an increasing rate. Autonomy and creativity become of greater importance in more and more companies. Increasingly, processes and departments are set up according to agile principles. Work experiences an increasing dissolution of boundaries with both positive and negative effects. The question of how structures and corporate culture adapt better and faster to shorter innovation cycles and environmental changes affects all companies and their human resources management. It is more important than ever for knowledge and qualifications to be state of the art; consequently continuous learning needs to take a more prominent role in the work place. In the context of social and demographic change, work and organizations are moving further and further away from Taylorism and towards integral, evolutionary organizations whose work is characterized by self-management, a holistic view and meaningful tasks. This is accompanied by a change in orientation, away from bureaucracy towards democratic structures and empowerment. This course provides an introduction to the complex and contemporary theme of the new working world and work structure. Starting with a classification of the topic, we will define social megatrends as essential factors influencing human resource management and organization. Building on this, we will discuss the dipole of rigid and agile organizational structures and the resulting effects on leadership, personnel management and employees. Further, we will look at the concepts of cooperation and leadership during the implementation of new work structures and methods as well as necessary competencies. Competence development addresses how learning, attitudes and abilities are set to interact to provide companies with agile processes. Finally, we will critically reflect upon the new work concept, looking at advantages and disadvantages for those involved, predominantly in the context of legal and social conditions.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- identify and understand the challenges of technological and societal change.
- transfer the emerging challenges to human resources management and the leadership culture in companies.
- understand the concepts of agile and fluid organizations and the resulting consequences.
- identify solutions for complex environmental factors on leadership and human resources management.

Business Psychology

Course Code: DLBMPS01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

Decisions in complex situations do not follow the rules of logic, but are determined by the features of market participants' behavior. In order to better understand this behavior and to make reliable forecasts based on it, economics is recommended to include discoveries in the field of psychology. After an introduction to business psychology and its influencing factors, students are familiarized with the various theories on motivation, cognition and interaction. This course then looks into business psychology at the macro- and microeconomic level. Students learn about the psychological view on the development of countries and societies as well as the psychology of organizations and groups. In addition, the psychology of work in relation to human resources in general and job satisfaction in particular is examined. Students learn about and understand the importance of change in organizations and the principle of the learning organization. The ability to learn faster than the competition is one of the most important competitive factors. Learning organizations promote joint and individual learning and increase employee motivation towards work.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- describe central economic assumptions and their influencing factors and critically question them in relation to concrete action and decision making.
- discuss important theories in the field of motivation, cognition and interaction and explain their significance for economic tasks and contexts.
- explain fundamental psychological conditioning factors and explanatory models of macroeconomic processes and phenomena and apply them to central economic issues.
- present the importance of work and essential influencing factors from a psychological perspective and derive operational possibilities for shaping work.
- differentiate essential psychological models and concepts for describing and influencing human behavior in organizations and groups.
- assess the possibilities and limits of the targeted development of organizations on the basis of central psychological theories and models and to develop behavioral recommendations.
- discuss basic psychological concepts of the learning organization and design measures for everyday working life.

Course Description

In a globalized working world, international meetings, cooperation and activities have become a matter of course. In most cases, these encounters between culturally different people are successful and satisfying for both sides. However, it is not uncommon for critical situations to arise in which the behavior of the other person is seen as threatening, inappropriate or useless and does not meet one's own expectations. In this course, students learn to understand and react appropriately to cultural differences and to deal with them in situations relevant to their jobs. The areas of intercultural differences, specifics and cooperation in intercultural teams and organizations are addressed, as well as the orientation of advertising communication in different cultural contexts. After a presentation of the different approaches of psychology as Intercultural Psychology, Cultural Psychology and Cultural Psychology and the culture-specific research, practice-relevant topics such as Intercultural Management, Intercultural Marketing and Intercultural Training will be addressed. Particular attention is paid to the areas of diversity management and value management in the corporate environment.

International Brand Management

Course Code: DLBDSEIMB02

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

The aim of this course is to deepen and expand the knowledge acquired in the introductory elective course International Marketing. The value of a brand is a decisive competitive advantage for companies in international business. Brands create long-term and profitable customer relationships. Brands are therefore valuable assets for companies and organizations. Students learn the basics of brand management before moving on to the concepts and success factors of international brand management. Students also become familiar with the structure of brand architectures and the possibilities of brand extensions. The fact that different stakeholder groups must be taken into account in brand management is communicated to the students on the basis of the stakeholder concept. In addition, the students get to know the various methods for measuring brand value and brand controlling. The aspects of trademark protection that are particularly important in an international environment will be dealt with conclusively.

Corporate Communication

Course Code: DLBPRWCCPR01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

In this course students are encouraged to fully grasp all internal and external communication activities of a company. Corporate communication is part of corporate identity and serves to communicate the corporate image. Here, for example, the focus can be on "sustainability" or "being hip". With the rise of saturated markets and global competition, the corporate image is becoming increasingly important. Corporate image and communication are increasingly becoming competitive advantages because it is becoming more and more difficult for companies to achieve and maintain product-related competitive advantages. This course combines targeted theoretical and strategic principles with practical knowledge of the content, methods, instruments and structures of corporate communication.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- comprehend the essence of corporate identity, corporate design and corporate image, differentiate them from and relate them to one another.
- understand and explain corporate communication as a sub-discipline of corporate communications.
- distinguish corporate communication from public relations.

Contents

1. Introduction to Corporate Communication
 - 1.1 Principles and Definitions
 - 1.2 Internal vs. External Corporate Communications
 - 1.3 Image Building and Brand Development
 - 1.4 Best Practice Examples in an International Context
2. Corporate Communication and PR
 - 2.1 Sub-Disciplines of Corporate Communications
 - 2.2 Differentiation from Public Relations
 - 2.3 Historical Development and Milestones

3. Corporate Philosophy as a Means of Corporate Management
 - 3.1 Corporate Soul
 - 3.2 Corporate Language
 - 3.3 Corporate Culture
4. Corporate Identity in Focus
 - 4.1 Visual Branding: Corporate Design
 - 4.2 Non-Visual Branding: Corporate Identity
5. Corporate Communication and Digitalization
 - 5.1 Challenges of Multi-Channel Communication
 - 5.2 Outlook: Trends and Developments in the Age of Digitalization

Course Description

The course "International Accounting" covers financial reporting in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS). The objective is to provide students with a working knowledge of general purpose financial reporting under IFRS, especially in comparison to accounting consistent with the German Commercial Code (HGB). The focus is on IFRS and not US-GAAP as global reporting language as the former is becoming increasingly important for German companies (i.e. obligation of listed parent companies to prepare consolidated financial statements in accordance with IFRS from the years 2005 or 2007 onwards).

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand the objectives, characteristics and principles of IFRS reporting in an international context and compare them to national accounting principles (HGB)
- apply recognition and measurement rules of IFRS
- describe IFRS standards as they relate to the recognition, measurement, presentation and disclosure requirements in general purpose financial statements
- classify and prepare elements of IFRS financial statements
- explain principles of business combinations and consolidated financial statements
- understand the requirements for a first-time adoption of IFRS and transition to IFRS

Course Description

To remain competitive, all organizations are subject to constant change. To shape this change positively is a key function of the responsible managers and a sign of successful management. Frequently, reasons such as the discontinuation or the development of new business fields, mergers and relocations are decisive, but also continuous company growth; technological improvements and social changes are reasons for partly far-reaching measures for the further development of organizations. This knowledge is of central importance for implementing changes. This course shows the most important human relation theories that serve as a basis for organizational development. Since the corporate culture is a central component of organizational development, both the analysis and the development of the corporate culture are presented. It also discusses the most important aspects of learning organization.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- explain the basic principles of organizational development.
- name the human relation theories in organizational development.
- explain points of criticism of organizational development.
- name the implications of Systemic Organizational Development.
- outline the importance and design of corporate culture within organizational development.

Course Description

The pace of change in markets, technologies and customer behavior has increased significantly. These developments offer growth opportunities for companies - new business models, merging markets, changed customer behavior. To utilize future potentials, companies need to implement changes effectively and quickly. To do this, it is essential to know the meaning, structure, roles of the people involved, possible bottle neck situations and communication within the framework of change management. A great number of change programs regularly fail in the operational implementation. Therefore, knowledge of the systematic approach to the change process is necessary to successfully manage change in and of the company. People and processes play a central role in this procedure.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- explain the management of change in its broadest sense.
- identify the characteristics and procedures by which necessary changes in companies can be identified and designed.
- grasp the basics of processes in change management and communicate them to other participants.

Course Description

The aim is to provide a bird's eye view of special features, opportunities, risks and challenges in both country-specific and cross-national human resources management. To this end, the concept of culture will be discussed and different ways of looking at culture will be debated. On this basis, the course tackles country-specific personnel management with its respective peculiarities. This is followed by a discussion on the transnational personnel management of Multinational Corporations (MNCs). Building on this, the topics of international staff deployment, secondments and the influence of host countries on the management process of MNCs and their foreign subsidiaries will be addressed. A discussion on special features of human resources management in cross-border mergers and acquisitions rounds up this part of the course. In a second thematic approach, the course looks at the requirements for the development of transnational managers in MNCs and discusses measures such as secondment and ongoing training. Finally, the introduced models and concepts will be applied to two example regions in Asia (Japan/Taiwan and China/Vietnam) and the USA.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- understand and identify the challenges of human resource management in multinational companies.
- take into account cultural particularities in personnel management in different countries and to apply these to transnational mergers and acquisitions.
- name opportunities and risks as well as factors for success in the assignment of expatriates and to identify optimization factors.
- identify elements for developing transnationally qualified managers.
- identify specific risks and opportunities in international personnel deployment with regard to selected regions.

Leadership 4.0

Course Code: DLBWPLS01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

Today, competitiveness depends more than ever on continuous innovation. This puts new demands on the management of companies. The task of successful leaders in innovation and business is no longer to offer direction and solutions, but to create a framework in which others develop innovations. This change, which is currently taking place with full force in companies, requires further developments on classic leadership concepts and its principles. Against the background of digital change and the advance of artificial intelligence, established business models are constantly being put to the test. On the one hand, it is important to work on several projects simultaneously and to adapt flexibly to changing conditions at any time; on the other hand, employees want to be integrated into the work process in a different way. Consideration and flexibility for their personal and family situation play an increasing role. Innovation and business leaders can only meet all these diverse challenges with Leadership by inspiring others to think ahead and act inter-divisionally, in other words, to be visionary. This course tries to convey knowledge, understanding and tools for this challenging field of work.

Business Ethics

Course Code: BETH01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	keine

Course Description

Business Ethics deals with the application of ethical principles to business activities. The actions of individuals and companies are thus integrated into a context of social and ethical responsibility. Business Ethics derives its legitimacy from the effects that all economic activities have on other people, institutions and the environment. Social justice and sustainability are therefore among the most important norms of Business Ethics and are explained and described in the course. The aim of the course is providing general guidance on how to arrive at ethical decisions, rather than offering general solutions. In that sense, students are enabled to develop moral judgment in an informed manner and then make ethical decisions accordingly.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- identify conflicting interests between profit making and ethical behavior.
- name the different ethical problem situations in the daily business.
- understand business ethics theories and concepts.
- systematically integrate aspects of business ethics in daily business routine.
- use instruments of business ethics in order to sanction misconduct and to encourage ethical decision-making.

Innovation Management

Course Code: DLBEPWIP01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

Innovation management has a high relevance for the success of a company. Students receive a basic understanding of innovation management and its significance from an economic and business perspective. In addition to the different innovation strategies, the function and organization of innovation as well as the innovation culture in a company and the phases of the innovation process are presented in detail and classified within strategic management and product management. For each phase of the innovation process concrete instruments are introduced and their advantages and disadvantages will be examined. After the discussion of selected creativity techniques for the generation of ideas, the Lead User Approach, the Open Innovation approaches and the Conjoint Analysis Methodology will be discussed. In the innovation evaluation phase, students will be familiarized with instruments such as scoring models. As the final stage of the innovation process, an understanding of the implementation of innovations on the market will be conveyed. Finally four concrete case studies are going to be explained for the purpose to demonstrate the innovation practice in different companies.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- explain the importance of innovation as a driving force for the overall economic development as well as for the start-up or further development of a company.
- describe the design of an innovation strategy and explain the different organizational forms of the innovation function.
- understand the importance of a supportive innovation culture and how innovation management is designed as part of strategic management.
- analyze and design the important steps that a successful innovation process involves
- explain the elements of a creative innovation development and a subsequent innovation evaluation and selection.
- describe the market launch of an innovation.

Project: Design Thinking

Course Code: DLBINGDT01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	none

Course Description

In this course students will receive a practical introduction to Design Thinking. In addition to teaching the individual basic principles, the procedures in Design Thinking will also be examined in detail. In order not only to understand Design Thinking but also to experience it, selected methods for the individual process steps will be presented and practiced on an example project.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- know the mindset of Design Thinking.
- know the individual phases of the incremental micro cycle and carry them out on an example project.
- know the individual stages of prototyping and apply them in an example project.
- know and use methods and tools for the individual steps of the micro cycle.
- know different space concepts for Design Thinking work environments.
- know examples for the application of Design Thinking by means of business case studies.

Contents

1. Basic Principles of Design Thinking
2. The Design Thinking Micro Process
3. The Design Thinking Macro Process
4. Methods for Early Phases of the Process
5. Methods for Idea Generation
6. Methods for Prototyping and Testing
7. Examples and Case Studies

Studium Generale I

Course Code: DLBSG01_E

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		5	None

Course Description

In the course "Studium Generale I", students deepen their knowledge in a self-selected subject area by completing an IU course outside their applicable curriculum. This gives them the opportunity to look beyond their own subject area and acquire further competencies. The associated option enables students to self-determine their study content to focus even more on issues relevant to them and/or to strengthen or develop selected competencies.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- apply acquired key competencies to issues in their field of study and/or in their professional environment.
- to deepen one's own skills and abilities in a self-directed manner.
- to look beyond the boundaries of their own area of expertise.

Contents

- The course "Studium Generale I" offers students the opportunity to take courses outside of their curriculum and the result can be credited as an elective subject. In principle, all IU bachelor courses that fulfill the following requirements can be chosen for this purpose:
 - They are not part of an integral part of the applicable mandatory curriculum.
 - They do not have admission requirements or students can prove that they have met the admission requirement.
- The examination of the selected courses must be taken in full and finally passed in order to be credited as part of the 'Studium Generale'.

Course Description

The qualification objectives correspond to levels A1, A2, B1 and B2 according to the criteria of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR). Using everyday subject areas, chosen areas of specialization, and using basic and advanced grammatical structures, the use of Italian as a foreign language is taught and practiced according to a CEFR placement test. Upon successful completion, students will receive a certificate corresponding to their chosen level.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- meet the qualification objectives according to the chosen level (A1, A2, B1 or B2) according to the criteria of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR).
- use the foreign language Italian according to a CEFR placement test on the basis of everyday topics, selected areas of specialization and by adapting basic and advanced grammatical structures.

Contents

- Depending on the CEFR placement, students will be proficient
 - to understand and use familiar, everyday expressions and very simple phrases aimed at satisfying concrete needs. They can introduce themselves and others and ask other people questions about themselves - e.g. where they live, what kind of people they know or what kind of things they have - and they can give answers to questions of this kind. They can communicate in a simple way if the person they are talking to speaks slowly and clearly and is willing to help. (Level A1)
 - to understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of immediate importance (e.g. personal and family information, shopping, work, local area). You can communicate in simple, routine situations involving a simple and direct exchange of information about familiar things. You can describe by simple means your own background and education, immediate environment and things related to immediate needs. (Level A2)
 - to understand the main points when clear standard language is used and when it's about familiar things from work, school, leisure, etc. You can handle most situations encountered while traveling in the language area. You can express yourself simply and coherently on familiar topics and personal areas of interest. You can talk about experiences and events, describe dreams, hopes and goals, and give brief reasons or explanations for plans and opinions. (Level B1)

- to understand the main content of complex texts on concrete and abstract topics; and to understand specialist discussions in their own area of specialization. You can communicate so spontaneously and fluently that a normal conversation with native speakers is quite possible without major effort on either side. You can express yourself clearly and in detail on a wide range of topics, explain a point of view on a topical issue and state the advantages and disadvantages of various options. (Level B2)
- Grammar:
 - Level A1 - present and past tenses, sentence structure, prepositions, etc.
 - Level A2 - among other things tenses of the past, differences in the past tenses, imperative, subordinate clauses, pronouns (dative, accusative)
 - Level B1 - including introduction of past perfect, conjunctions, introduction of passive voice, adverbs, adjectives (difference), future tense
 - Level B2 - among others verb constructions, conditional clauses, indirect speech

Course Description

The qualification objectives correspond to levels A1, A2, B1 and B2 according to the criteria of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR). Using everyday subject areas, chosen areas of specialization, and using basic and advanced grammatical structures, the use of Spanish as a foreign language is taught and practiced according to a CEFR placement test. Upon successful completion, students will receive a certificate corresponding to their chosen level.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- meet the qualification objectives according to the chosen level (A1, A2, B1 or B2) according to the criteria of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR).
- use the foreign language Spanish according to a CEFR placement test on the basis of everyday topics, selected areas of specialization and by adapting basic and advanced grammatical structures.

Contents

- Depending on the CEFR placement, students will be proficient
 - to understand and use familiar, everyday expressions and very simple phrases aimed at satisfying concrete needs. They can introduce themselves and others and ask other people questions about themselves - e.g. where they live, what kind of people they know or what kind of things they have - and they can give answers to questions of this kind. They can communicate in a simple way if the person they are talking to speaks slowly and clearly and is willing to help. (Level A1)
 - to understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of immediate importance (e.g. personal and family information, shopping, work, local area). You can communicate in simple, routine situations involving a simple and direct exchange of information about familiar things. You can describe by simple means your own background and education, immediate environment and things related to immediate needs. (Level A2)
 - to understand the main points when clear standard language is used and when it's about familiar things from work, school, leisure, etc. You can handle most situations encountered while traveling in the language area. You can express yourself simply and coherently on familiar topics and personal areas of interest. You can talk about experiences and events, describe dreams, hopes and goals, and give brief reasons or explanations for plans and opinions. (Level B1)

- to understand the main content of complex texts on concrete and abstract topics; and to understand specialist discussions in their own area of specialization. You can communicate so spontaneously and fluently that a normal conversation with native speakers is quite possible without major effort on either side. You can express yourself clearly and in detail on a wide range of topics, explain a point of view on a topical issue and state the advantages and disadvantages of various options. (Level B2)
- Grammar:
 - Level A1 - present and past tenses, sentence structure, prepositions, etc.
 - Level A2 - among other things tenses of the past, differences in the past tenses, imperative, subordinate clauses, pronouns (dative, accusative)
 - Level B1 - including introduction of past perfect, conjunctions, introduction of passive voice, adverbs, adjectives (difference), future tense

Bachelor Thesis

Course Code: DLBBT01

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		9	none

Course Description

The aim and purpose of the bachelor's thesis is to successfully apply the subject-specific and methodological competencies acquired during the course of study in the form of an academic dissertation with a thematic reference to the major field of study. The content of the bachelor's thesis can be a practical-empirical or theoretical-scientific problem. Students should prove that they can independently analyze a selected problem with scientific methods, critically evaluate it, and work out proposed solutions under the subject-methodological guidance of an academic supervisor. The topic chosen by the student from their respective field of study should meet the acquired scientific competences, deepening their academic knowledge and skills in order to meet the future needs of the field.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- work on a problem from their major field of study by applying the specialist and methodological skills they have acquired during their studies.
- independently analyze selected tasks with scientific methods, critically evaluate them, and develop appropriate solutions under the guidance of an academic supervisor.
- record and analyze existing (research) literature appropriate to the topic of their bachelor's thesis.
- prepare a detailed written elaboration in compliance with scientific methods.

Contents

- The bachelor's thesis must be written on a topic that relates to the content of the respective major field of study. In the context of the bachelor's thesis, the problem, as well as the scientific research goal, must be clearly emphasized. The work must reflect the current state of knowledge of the topic to be examined by means of an appropriate literature analysis. The student must prove their ability to use the acquired knowledge theoretically and/or empirically in the form of an independent and problem-solution-oriented application.

Colloquium

Course Code: DLBBT02

Study Level	Language of Instruction and Examination	Contact Hours	CP	Admission Requirements
BA	English		1	none

Course Description

The colloquium will take place after the submission of the bachelor's thesis. This is done at the invitation of the experts. During the colloquium, students must prove that they have independently produced the content and results of the written work. The content of the colloquium is a presentation of the most important work contents and research results by the student as well as the answering of questions by experts.

Course Outcomes

On successful completion, students will be able to

- present a problem from their field of study using academic presentation and communication techniques.
- reflect on the scientific and methodological approach chosen in their bachelor's thesis.
- demonstrate that they can actively answer subject-related questions from the subject experts (reviewers of the bachelor's thesis).

Contents

- The colloquium includes a presentation of the most important results of the bachelor's thesis, followed by the student answering the reviewers' technical questions.
