JSI HEALTH ENHANCES KINDERA, ELEVATING COMFORT AND VERSATILITY IN PATIENT SPACES

JASPER, Ind., April 13, 2026 — JSI Health continues to advance its commitment to human-centered healthcare design with a series of thoughtful enhancements to its award-winning Kindera recliner. Building on a strong foundation of innovation, including its patented Trans4rm™ system, these latest updates are designed to further support the evolving needs of patients and caregivers in today's care environments.

Originally developed to rethink the role of the healthcare recliner, Kindera brings together patient comfort and caregiver efficiency. This latest phase expands its versatility and ease of use, shaped by feedback from healthcare professionals and design partners.

New enhancements to Kindera include:

- Glider Recliner introduces a gentle motion that promotes calm and comfort
- Integrated Folding Table supports everyday activities with added convenience
- Continuous Footrest provides uninterrupted support while maintaining cleanability
- Pull-out Foot Tray offers on-demand support and tucks away when not in use
- Massage Functionality adds a restorative element to support overall well-being

Each addition reflects JSI Health's focus on balancing emotional comfort with practical performance, supporting better outcomes through thoughtful design.

"Kindera has always been about designing for the moments that matter most," said Audrey Meyer, Market Strategist at JSI. "These enhancements are a direct response to how care is delivered today, bringing more flexibility, comfort, and intuitive support to both patients and caregivers."

Already recognized by the healthcare design community for its innovation, Kindera continues to evolve as a solution that adapts to the dynamic nature of care environments. From patient rooms to infusion spaces, the enhanced Kindera recliner supports a more connected, responsive care experience.

As part of JSI Health's growing portfolio, these updates reinforce the company's broader mission: delivering purposeful, reliable solutions that improve the healthcare experience for everyone involved.
