SHAPED BY HISTORY

The backstory to Trent Park unveils its legacy and legendary status. On these grounds, Royalty hunted on horseback. In the Mansion House, the highest of society celebrated and in its rooms British Intelligence brought down the enemy. This timepiece legacy is now writing its next chapter.

Moments in History

As PLACEMAKERS we are both guardians of the past and visionaries for the future.

RICH IN HISTORY

Named after Trento, the location in Northern Italy where the life of King George III's younger brother was saved, Trent Park is deeply rooted in history and now ready to write its next chapter in full colour.

1066

Trent Park once formed a small part of Enfield Wood. The earliest known lord of the estate was Ansgar, 'Staller' or High Constable to Edward the Confessor, who inherited the land from his Danish ancestors.

1399

The estate passed into the hands of Henry IV in 1399 who converted the land into a royal game reserve. This was subsequently passed on to his son Henry V and from 1421 was administered by the Duchy of Lancaster; Enfield Chase had passed into royal ownership.

1777

George III leased the site to Sir Richard Jebb, his favourite doctor, as a reward for saving the life of the King's younger brother, the then Duke of Gloucester. Jebb chose the name Trent, because it was in Trento, Italy, that the King's brother had been saved.

1909

Sold to Edward Sassoon - a Baronet, an MP for Hythe, friend of Edward VII and the head of an international merchant banking firm. The Sassoons were descendants of Baghdadi Jews who had emigrated to India. The family eventually established a head office at Leadenhall Street, London and were quickly accepted into British high society.

1837

After passing through several hands, Quaker David Bevan bought a lease for the property and transferred this to his eldest son Robert Bevan. Further extensions were undertaken to Enfield Chase including a tower on the east side of the building. Much of the landscaping was also created including an avenue of lime trees on the main drive.

1912

Following the death of Sir Philip Sassoon's father in 1912, he inherited his estate. A flamboyant, glamorous, well known socialite and politician, Sassoon built his very own aerodrome on Trent Park. During this time he covered the house in the rose-red bricks that you see today. Sassoon planted a million daffodil bulbs that became known as the famous Daffodil Lawn.

1920-1930s

A quintessentially English country retreat for the next 8 years. Hosting the most extravagant parties with guests such as Sir Winston Churchill, Charlie Chaplin, George Bernard Shaw and John Singer Sargent.

TRENT PARK was used for spying, bugging and eavesdropping. Vital intelligence was gathered at TRENT PARK on Hitler's secret weapons programme and the atomic bomb.

1939-1945

After the death of Sir Philip Sassoon, Trent Park was requisitioned by the War Office for the secret British Intelligence unit MI9.

1947

The estate became a Ministry of Education emergency training college for male teachers, then in 1950 a co-educational training college.

TODAY

In 2015 Trent Park was purchased by Berkeley Homes. The vision for Trent Park is to restore where possible the historic buildings, and create new homes and a museum.

1974-2012

Trent Country Park became part of Middlesex University.

GRANDEUR OF THE PAST

15

THE SOCIALITE'S PLAYGROUND

In 1912, Sir Philip Sassoon took ownership of Trent Park soon after the death of his father, Sir Edward Sassoon. This heralded the start of an extraordinarily flamboyant era.

Sir Philip Sassoon

For the trendy, glamorous and super rich 23-year old Sir PHILIP SASSOON, taking over TRENT PARK was the start of legendary parties and his reign as the ultimate socialite.

SIGNIFICANT GUESTS

Sir Philip hosted parties at Trent Park for some of the most famous guests of the 20th Century; Sir Winston Churchill, Charlie Chaplin, Lady Cynthia Asquith, and Mr & Mrs Neville Chamberlain.

A PLACE TO ENTERTAIN

SOCIETY PARTIES

Politicians, prime ministers, royalty and famous personalities frequented these stately grounds and grand rooms. For some, it was a weekend retreat to revel in divine company and a place to be wowed and entertained.

Sir Philip Sassoon flying his Percival Q6 over Trent Park

FLYING IN GUESTS

Extravagant Sassoon entertained guests with flights over Trent Park after tea. He was the first person in the UK to privately own a plane, building his own aerodrome to house his pride and joy, the Percival Q6, a 1930s British communications aircraft.

ELEGANT INTERIORS & LANDSCAPED GARDENS

Sassoon transformed Trent Park Mansion House and gardens in the early 20th century, planting a million daffodil bulbs and creating The Daffodil Lawn, a now protected area and one of the largest displays of daffodils in London.

Sir PHILIP SASSOON hosted parties which rapidly gave him the reputation of being one of the greatest hosts in Britain. If you were in the know, this was the place to be.

A TOUCH OF ROYALTY

Henry VIII, Elizabeth I and James I took to regal horses to hunt deer through these ancient woodlands, where Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II visited as a child, to play, roam and escape into the estate's splendour.

Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon

UNCOVERING THE SECRETS OF WAR

In 1939, Trent Park was requisitioned for 'secret purposes' and became one of the most important intelligence sites of WWII. During the war, German prisoners were tricked into giving away vital information that aided the British to win the war in the air, on land and in the sea.

From 1942, Trent Park became home to captured German Generals. Living in relative luxury, they believed that King George VI had given them the stately home as befitted their status as military men. It was all a big deception plan. They relaxed and talked freely about Nazi Germany's most closely guarded secrets, little realising that their conversations were being recorded. They spoke about battle plans, rockets, flying bombs, submarines and the atomic bomb.

"Had it not been for the information obtained from this centre, it could have been London and not Hiroshima that was devastated by the atomic bomb".

Thomas Kendrick's colleague

During WWII

The rooms at TRENT PARK had been equipped with hidden microphones. Even the tennis racquets used by the captured German generals were bugged. This allowed the British to listen in to the conversations of enemy prisoners.

SECRETS OF WAR

OFFICERS AT TRENT PARK

By the end of the war, Trent Park was holding 59 German Generals and 40 senior German Officers. Their conversations gave away intelligence that the British could not have gained from interrogation. One General was recorded saying: "We have the best Generals and are losing the war!" The deception plan was working.

Written by Helen Fry, Author and Historian

SECRET LISTENING DEVICES

Concealed in the basement of the Mansion House, teams of secret listeners worked every day of the year to record intelligence from the bugged conversations. They had fled Nazi Germany and were now spying for the country that had saved them.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE

The whole bugging operation by British Intelligence is now recognised as 'being of national and international significance for winning the war on a par with Bletchley Park.' Historic England report, 2017.

A PLACE FOR EVERYONE TO ENJOY

A founding partner at Murdoch Wickham, John Murdoch heads up the design team, with particular experience in Landscape Masterplanning and hard landscaping. He has worked on many award-winning developments around the world.

John Murdoch sketching landscape detail of Trent Park.

The vision for Trent Park is to create a truly holistic response to the site and its varied attributes, including the broader landscape setting and value to the community.

LANDSCAPING VISION

Q) WHAT IS YOUR VISION FOR THE MASTERPLAN?

A) The Masterplan seeks to create a sense of place for the future residents by creating a series of cohesive neighbourhoods. These neighbourhoods have a range of traditional architectural styles which allow them to appear to have evolved naturally over time, just as a traditional suburb would have done in the past.

The important Listed buildings on the site are enhanced and together with the parkland setting itself they inform the arrangement of the roads, services and buildings on the site.

Q) WHAT INFLUENCES INSPIRED YOUR VISION?

A) The Garden Suburb movement of the early twentieth century which resulted in schemes such as Hampstead Garden Suburb are a major influence in the development of the Masterplan.

Traditional architectural styles found in local buildings from the last two centuries as well as the early twentieth century's Arts and Crafts Movement of Lutyens, Parker and Unwin are big influences.

“At TRENT PARK, we have made every effort to create a truly accessible environment in which people of all ages and abilities will feel free to interact.”

John Murdoch
