The Briarcliff Elementary School located at 18 Tower Hill Rd., Shoreham, New York, is an architecturally unique North Shore property. This distinctive, multi-level building constructed in 1908, spans 32,000 square feet and is set on a secluded 10.54-acre tree-covered property in the Incorporated Village of Shoreham. With close proximity to local beaches and the North Fork Wine Trail, Shoreham is also the home to the Tesla Science Center located just a short distance away.

Referenced in Ludwig Bemelman’s children’s book, “Madeline,” the property up until recently was used as an elementary school by the Shoreham Wading River School district. With secure points of entry and full accessibility, it provides an ideal environment for professionals, non-profit organizations, and specialized service providers catering to individuals with diverse needs.
