Acute Care Physical Therapy Residency Program

The Lee Health Acute Care Physical Therapy Residency Program is a 13-month, full-time program designed to prepare physical therapists for advanced practice in the acute care hospital setting. The program integrates mentored clinical practice with structured didactic education to develop advanced clinical reasoning, evidence-based practice, interprofessional collaboration, leadership, communication, and patient management skills. Lee Health's Acute Care Rehabilitation Department spans four adult hospitals and one pediatric hospital within an integrated health system. Residents rotate through diverse acute care environments, working with experienced clinicians and interdisciplinary teams while gaining exposure to a wide range of patient populations and medical complexities. Through progressive clinical experiences, dedicated mentorship, and targeted educational activities, the program prepares residents to contribute meaningfully to high-quality, patient-centered care within the hospital environment.
