

California Dreamin'

Get your own Hollywood star with one of these Los Angeles homes

Manhattan Beach

2804 The Strand • $15 million

2,932 SQUARE FEET • 3 BEDROOMS • 5 BATHROOMS

No experience says “California” more than watching the sun set over the Pacific, and you can do so every evening at this beachside home. Perched right on the Manhattan Beach Strand, this house is perfect for the outdoorsy family, offering easy access to biking, beach volleyball, and more. It might be hard to leave the Pacific Rim-inspired interior, though, with its beautiful custom walnut and zebrawood cabinetry and Brazilian marble counters. Inviting friends over? The expansive deck with fireplace and outdoor kitchen will come in handy, as will the wet bar and temperature-controlled wine room. Cheers! compass.com

Beverly Hills

Four Seasons Private Residences Los Angeles • 9000 W. 3rd St. #8B/802 • $8.5 million

2,500 SQUARE FEET • 2 BEDROOMS • 2.5 BATHROOMS

Rising right from the beating heart of Beverly Hills, this 12-story tower boasts 59 residences offering everything a movie star could ask for. Enjoy an interior conceived by celebrity designer Martyn Lawrence Bullard—who lines the walls with works by California artists and channels Mid-Century Modern style with sleek furnishings—or step out onto the patio to take in panoramic views of the city skyline and the Hollywood Hills. Ownership also gives you access to all manner of Four Seasons Residences amenities, including an indoor-outdoor Harley Pasternak-designed fitness and wellness center, a tiled saltwater pool, a private 18-seat IMAX theater, and much more. reflectionsofla.com

Downtown Los Angeles

1850 Industrial St. #703 • $6 million

4,300 SQUARE FEET • 2 BEDROOMS • 2.5 BATHROOMS

The Arts District is the trendiest part of the City of Angels, and you can make the DTLA scene yours with this seventh-floor penthouse. The historic 1925 building was once home to the West Coast headquarters of Nabisco, and this loft later served as the base of operations for a film production company. Take in 360-degree views of the San Gabriel Mountains and the Pacific from the rooftop deck, or stay in and enjoy the spacious three-floor interior if it rains. (Who are we kidding? This is Los Angeles!) You'll really want to get out of the house, though, to hit such hot spots as Bestia, Soho Warehouse, and the Institute of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles. compass.com
