

HOBBS STATE PARK - CONSERVATION AREA

As Arkansas's largest state park, Hobbs State Park – Conservation Area offers diverse recreation opportunities while encouraging a spirit of adventure and the joy of discovery. Once a flat, limestone sea bed, the land has been uplifted and eroded by creeks, disappearing streams, springs, and seeps to form a multifaceted array of hills and hollows. Because of these numerous special features and a diversity of natural communities, HSP-CA has been labeled a “natural” park.

For several hundred years, Native Americans lived and hunted buffalo, deer, turkey, elk and bear in this area. After the Indian Removal Act of 1830, white settlers moved west from eastern states to benefit from this region's animals, plants, streams, and rivers.

Today, over 12,000 acres of HSP-CA are jointly managed by Arkansas State Parks, the Arkansas Natural Heritage Commission, and the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission. The park is named after a local businessman and conservationist, Roscoe Hobbs, who owned the property for almost 40 years prior to the Arkansas Department of Parks and Tourism acquiring the fragmented tract in 1979.

The focus for this park is not one large mountain, lake, river, forest, historical event or the myriad plants and animals. It is some of all of these. It is diversity. With awareness of the natural world, the diversity of life here inspires wonder and discovery. What can't be seen just driving down the highway is a great abundance of plant and animal species, concealed within the forest, living here both above and underground.

The forest is classified generally as oak-hickory/short-leaf pine overstory trees. The understory is thick with dogwood, redbud, sugar maple, low bush blueberry, deer-berry, legumes, and greenbrier. Spice bush is the most prevalent under-story plant in the wider based, moist hollows.

The park has a fascinating history centered around the Peter Van Winkle industrial mill complex, large antebellum home, and slave quarters. During the 1870s, the largest steam-driven saw mill in Arkansas operated here, providing huge amounts of lumber for the reconstruction of northwest Arkansas following the Civil War. Most of the lumber for the Victorian-type houses you see today in nearby Fayetteville, Bentonville, and Eureka Springs, as well as the lumber in “Old Main” at the University of Arkansas, came from this mill.

All these features together in one park, in one corner of the fastest growing region of the state, form a mosaic of enjoyment. It is from these valuable and unique resources that the park's mission is derived:

To provide enriching educational, and recreational experiences in harmony with resource stewardship. Balancing the ever-increasing need for recreation while protecting the ecosystem as a whole presents an ongoing challenge for park management.

Just 10 miles from Rogers and 21 miles from Eureka Springs, the park provides a special resource for many people; hikers, mountain bikers, equestrians, and hunters. Hobbs is the only Arkansas State Park that allows seasonal hunting.

If nature exploration or bird watching is for you, then a peaceful hike on our 35 miles of backcountry trails may provide adventure and discovery. Also available is a modern, outdoor gun shooting range with an environmentally-friendly bullet trap.

FACILITIES/RECREATION

Within the Park:

Visitor Center ♦ Opened in May 2009, this state-of-the-art facility is the park's orientation point. Interactive exhibits and educational programming offer an Ozark experience. In 2010 the center was recognized with a Silver LEED Certification for sustainable design.

Picnicking ♦ Ten picnic tables are at the visitor center and five are at Van Winkle/Sinking Stream Trailhead.

Nature hikes ♦ On 5 separate trails: Ozark Plateau (Visitor Center) – .5 mile, Sinking Stream Trail – .5 mile, Shadox Hollow – 1.5 miles, Pigeon Roost – 8.4 miles, and Hidden Diversity Multi-Use Trail – 24 miles. Interpreter-guided tours available.

Historic trail ♦ The .5 mile Historic Van Winkle Trail is wheelchair accessible with a paved parking lot and tunnel under Hwy 12. Here, on interpretive panels with pictures, the story is told of an early industrial center. Self-guided or group interpreter – guided tours available.

Camping ♦ Five primitive campsites for backpackers are located on Pigeon Roost Trail. It is a 4-mile hike to these sites. Some overlook Beaver Lake.

Gun shooting range ♦ 25, 50, 75, 100 yd. target stands. Covered shooting bench with five stations, including one barrier-free station. Shotguns prohibited, paper targets only, and wooden clothes pins required.

Managed hunting seasons ♦ Deer, wild turkey, and small game. See state Game & Fish regulations. Special Hobbs permit required for some hunts.

FACILITIES/RECREATION

Outside the Park:

Lodging-Cabins ♦ There are numerous motels and hotels nearby, but none within the park.

Food Service ♦ Deli-store type businesses operate near the park.

Camping ♦ Hundreds of class-A campsites are available at U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Beaver Lake as well as at two private campgrounds nearby.

Volunteer Opportunities

Whether you enjoy trail maintenance, historical or flora and fauna research, program development, interpretive presentations, building trades, grant writing, bird inventories, small mammal surveys, etc., volunteer opportunities are numerous at HSP-CA. Contact our volunteer coordinator at the park office (479) 789-5009 or via internet at www.FriendsofHobbs.com.
