

WHY DO BIG CATS AND OTHER VICTIMS OF THE EXOTIC ANIMAL TRADE NEED REFUGE?

Legislation regarding Big Cat ownership varies from state to state and, as of October 2017, there are still no federal laws prohibiting ownership of these dangerous animals. As laws are enacted to protect victims of the exotic animal trade, more and more animals will need to be rehomed to legitimate sanctuaries like Turpentine Creek Wildlife Refuge.

As a non-profit organization, your admission and lodging fees; gift shop and membership purchases; and donations and sponsorships allow us to be a proactive voice for all victims of the exotic animal trade. And it is because of your support that we are able to provide refuge and compassionate care to these majestic animals.

Atop the Ozark Mountains on over 450 acres, Turpentine Creek Wildlife Refuge in Eureka Springs, Arkansas is one of only a handful of legitimate large carnivore sanctuaries in the nation. Since 1992, our mission has been to rescue and care for Big Cats and other dangerous animals that have been bought or sold – by individuals and organizations – through one of the most lucrative global industries in the world; the exotic animal trade.

While at the Refuge you'll learn about our mission, and have the opportunity to hear large carnivore vocalizations, view natural predatory behaviors, and watch our animals as they explore their large, grassy habitats.

Each of our animal residents has a unique story to tell. So plan your visit, share your experience, and...

“Help us, help them.”
