TRAIL GUIDELINES

- We are a partner with the Leave No Trace Center for Outdoor Ethics and encourage our visitors to practice their seven principles for responsible recreation
- All plants, animals, and rocks found in the park are protected by law. Please don't disturb them, just appreciate them and leave them for the next visitors to enjoy.
- Glass bottles and littering are prohibited!
- Pack out what you pack in.
- Take nothing but photographs, leave nothing but footprints.
- To preserve the fragile environment you will be passing through, we ask you to please stay on the trail.

TRAIL NAVIGATION

Distinctive round metal blazes as well as rectangle paint blazes of varying colors have been placed on trees at eye level to guide you along each trail. A double paint blaze means the trails turns sharply. Look closely for the next blaze to stay on the trail and avoid damaging the wildlife habitat. As you walk the trails you will notice narrow paths leading in many directions. These are "game trails" created by our abundant wildlife.

We ask that you DO NOT follow these paths.

Staff sometimes moves trails to new areas. This allows an old trail to recover its natural beauty, and offers returning visitors new vistas to enjoy. Please follow the trails as marked to prevent permanent loss because of overuse.

LOVER'S LEAP TRAIL

Length: 1 mile total, 1 hour
1/3 mile to viewing platform

Difficulty: Moderate to Strenuous

Blaze: Yellow

This trail begins behind the Lover's Leap Trail sign across the railroad tracks, at the tree line. The first 1/3 of the trail is a nice stroll along the north slope of Rich Mountain. With bridges, stairs, and benches to rest on, you can easily make the gentle climb to the wooden overlook and be rewarded with a panoramic view of the south slope of Rich Mountain and Powell Valley.

Beyond the overlook, the trail is a little more difficult due to elevation changes, rocky areas, and steep slopes. Just past the overlook, the Ouachita National Recreation Trail turns left; this intersection is well marked. The Lover's Leap Trail continues to the right at this junction. It descends along the south face of the mountain through the rich hardwood forest and back to the south side of the lodge. The climb up to the lodge may be strenuous.

RESERVOIR TRAIL

Length: 2/3 mile round trip,
45 minutes

Difficulty: Moderate to Strenuous

Blaze: Orange

This trail begins south of the lodge at the stairs, and continues 1/3 of a mile down the hill to a stone reservoir. The reservoir was part of the water system for the 1898 hotel. Just up the hill from the reservoir is an excellent spring that was said to have curative powers.

WALK-IN CAMPSITE

A walk-in campsite is located on a short spur from the Reservoir Trail. The campsite is primitive. It consists of a fire ring, lantern hanger, and a level spot for tents. No water or electricity is available at the site. Register for the site at the front desk in the lodge.

SPRING TRAIL

Length: 1/2 mile one way
20 minutes

Difficulty: Easy

Blaze: Red

Beginning behind the stage at the amphitheater, you'll walk west 100 yards to the spring. This was a favorite gathering place for early mountain settlers and is still a great oasis of relaxation and reflection. The trail continues past the spring for about 1/2 mile and comes out on State Highway 88 across from the west end of the campground. You may return by the same trail, or cross the road into the park.

OUACHITA NATIONAL RECREATION TRAIL

Length: 225 miles
1 1/4 miles to Pioneer Cemetery

Difficulty: Easy to Moderate

Blaze: Blue

This Arkansas-Oklahoma cross-country hiking and backpacking trail begins at Talimena State Park in Oklahoma and ends at Pinnacle Mountain State Park west of Little Rock, Arkansas, a distance of 223 miles. There is a trailhead on the Talimena Scenic Drive just past the west end of the Queen Wilhelmina State Park campground. Parking is available at the lodge. Pinnacle Mountain State Park, near Little Rock, is approximately 170 miles east of Queen Wilhelmina State Park.

For a short hike you'll enjoy 1 1/4 miles of Ouachita Trail between the park and the Pioneer Cemetery. It is of moderate difficulty and passes near several historic sites.

The Ouachita Trail enters Queen Wilhelmina State Park at the west boundary, goes through the campground to the lodge, and continues east along Lover's Leap Trail. Beyond Lover's Leap overlook, the Ouachita Trail splits to the left and goes east out of the park. If you travel the Ouachita Trail east from this junction, in two miles you will cross State Highway 88. The trail then drops off the north side of Rich Mountain to State Highway 270. There is a developed trailhead with parking at that location. Several guide books and maps are available in the Lodge Gift Shop.
