GOLDMINE

- During all Week 13 games in 2017, NFL players had the chance to share the causes that are important to them as part of the NFL's My Cause, My Cleats campaign. Born and raised in Las Vegas, NV, Toomer wore custom-designed cleats in support of the Las Vegas shooting victims this past season. Toomer's spikes promoted the "unified" message with the #VegasStrong hashtag. An active volunteer in his local community, Toomer raised awareness and funds for the tragedy that struck his hometown. The tragedy personally affected Toomer, as both of his parents reside in Las Vegas and work in law enforcement. His father, Kyle, works as a police detective and was at the scene of the shooting and his mother, Pamela, works as a correctional officer. "Just for my family to be out there and at the scene, it was tough to see. I had to call and check on people and make sure they were all okay," Toomer said. "That was one of the main reasons I wanted to make those cleats and honor my hometown."

- Toomer and his brother, Kameron, who is a linebacker at the University of Nevada, have always embraced competition. As kids, the Toomers were constantly going head-to-head in just about everything. Yet, the biggest competition came in the front yard, where their father, Kyle, who played football at UNLV, threw passes to the two as they took turns playing receiver and cornerback with the first to ten claiming the victory. "We would go to Dairy Queen after and the winner would always get a big cone and the loser would get a small cone," Toomer said. "Those moments were very funny because we always made jokes about it but it was still very competitive. I always wanted to beat my brother."

TOOMER'S GOLDEN NUGGETS

- A native of Las Vegas, NV, Toomer's family was directly impacted by the tragic mass shooting in Las Vegas in 2017. His father, Kyle, is a police detective and was at the scene of the shooting. "Just for my family to be out there and at the scene, it was tough to see," said Toomer. During Week 13 of the 2017 season, Toomer wore cleats with the #VegasStrong hashtag. "The main reason I wanted to make those cleats was to honor my hometown."
- Football runs in the Toomer family, as his younger brother, Kameron, is currently a junior LB at Nevada, and his father, Kyle, played at UNLV.

GOLDMINE (CONTINUED)

- This past offseason, Toomer partnered with Zappos for his "Playing Big" event, which took place in Las Vegas on April 28th. The event focused on uniting children and young adults in environments that promote self-success. Toomer spent time with children and delivered an inspirational message in his hometown.
