IF YOU HAVEN'T 'HERD'

FOLLOWING 'POPS'

Growing up, Coleman was mentored by 14-year NFL vet Ray Crockett.

Crockett took Coleman under his wing after being introduced by a family friend and serving as his track and basketball coach. They became so close that Crockett eventually became Coleman's godfather and Coleman refers to him as 'Pops'.

"He helped show me the bigger picture," Coleman told ESPN in 2015. "You see a lot of people growing up with a lot of talent, but they don't make it. I pictured myself living the way Ray does in Southlake, and that pushed me even harder to stay out of trouble and distance myself from anything and anybody that might lead to trouble."

Coleman followed in Crockett's footsteps on the way to playing football at Baylor and has since followed him to the NFL.

Outside of football, in 2017, Coleman hosted Thanksgiving dinner for the Broadway Boys and Girls Club in Cleveland.

PERSONAL

The son of Cassandra Jones, Coleman majored in health, kinesiology and leisure studies while at Baylor. Has a brother, Jonathan, who was a defensive back at Kansas State.
