

TANACH

תנ"ך

The Hebrew Bible an abbreviation

(the Law), Neviim (the Ketuvim (the Writings). There are a total of 24 books in Tanach, although at first glance it may look like more (Samuel, Kings and Chronicles are each divided into two volumes, but they are in fact each a single book; Ezra and Nehemiah form a single book and the twelve "minor" prophets collectively constitute a single book).

The Books of the Prophets are generally divided into two sections: the Early Prophets (Joshua, Judges, Samuel and Kings) and the Later Prophets (Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and The Twelve). The Writings are divided into the philosophical "Books of Truth" (Psalms, Proverbs and Job, whose Hebrew initials spell out "emet," truth), the "Five Scrolls" (megillot) that are read on various holidays (Song of Songs, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes and Esther), and the historical books of Daniel, Ezra-Nehemiah, and Chronicles.

The Books of the Torah were dictated word-for-word, directly by God to Moses. The Books of the Prophets were revealed by God prophetically. The Books of the Writings were written with Divine inspiration, rather than through prophecy.

KEY:

Hebrew Name – English Name

(# of chapters)

Author, approximate year written

Contents of the book

Years covered by the text

*Other notes and comments

Please note: The years the books were written are sometimes "best guesses." For example, the period of the Anshei K'nesset HaGedola, the Men of the Great Assembly, lasted approximately 130 years. We have chosen to list books compiled by the Great Assembly as "circa 3450 (311 BCE)," in the midpoint of their era. While this estimate may be off by as much as fifty years, it is provided primarily to give readers a context as to whether a book was written contemporary with events described within it or hundreds of years later.
