

THE Daf HaKASHRUS

A MONTHLY NEWSLETTER FOR THE OU RABBINIC FIELD REPRESENTATIVE

TAKING THE SHOW ON THE ROAD

Three-Day OU Halachic Adventure wins raves and draws big audiences in Los Angeles, after similar success in New York.

BY STEPHEN STEINER, Director of Public Relations

Joe Hurliman, Master Wine Maker, explains kosher wine production at the Herzog Wine Cellars in Oxnard, CA.

It was called the Three-Day Los Angeles Halachic Adventure, and was devoted to exploring "The Mesorah (tradition) of Kosher Birds and Animals" through lectures, food tasting and site visits for kosher professionals, but don't let the "Los Angeles" designation fool you – the impact of the event held earlier this month at OU West Coast Region headquarters, the Prime Grill Restaurant in Beverly Hills, and processing plants in Oxnard, Fullerton and Corona, went far beyond the confines of Southern California.

Much to the delight of OU officials – both from the West Coast Region in Los Angeles and from national headquarters in New York who came west for the event – the Harry H. Beren ASKOU Mesorah Conference, as the Halachic Adventure was officially known, drew full houses to each of its sessions, with participants hailing not only from Los Angeles but from Tucson, Vancouver, Houston, Miami – and even from New York, where the event originated and was held twice in recent years.

"Amazing," declared Rabbi Yosef Grossman, Director of Kashrut Education at the OU and coordinator of the Mesorah programs in Los Angeles and New York, when considering both the turnout for the West Coast sessions and the distances traveled to get there. As director of the various Harry H. Beren Foundation programs – which are supported by the Lakewood, NJ foundation named after Mr. Beren – Rabbi Grossman has been accustomed to large and enthusiastic audiences back east, but was uncertain how the event would draw in the summertime in Los Angeles. He didn't have to be concerned.

Post-event written evaluations showed that participants were rewarded for attending. "Great," "Just wonderful," "Very Informative," "Most interesting," and in several cases the same word Rabbi Grossman used – "Amazing" – were used to describe their reactions.

Taking a Los Angeles perspective, Rabbi Alan Kalinsky, Director of the OU West Coast Region, declared: "The excitement and enthusiasm that had been building for months reached their apex at the three-day event. Our Region was very gratified that OU Kosher, based in New York, realized how meaningful and appropriate it would be to take this wonderful program that had been presented in the New York area twice and bring it to the West Coast."

Rabbi Kalinsky expressed his appreciation to OU leadership; to Rabbi Dr. Ari Zivotofsky and Dr. Ari Greenspan ("The Two Ari's") for their development of the mesorah conference concept; to the Prime Grill Restaurant for hosting the food tasting event; and to the faculty members, including Rabbi Seth Mandel, the OU meat expert, who delivered the various presentations.

Rabbi Menachem Genack, Chief Executive Officer of OU Kosher, who participated in the Los Angeles adventure, was delighted as well with the results. "There is a growing emphasis in OU Kosher to take our programs on the road and to bring them to North American audiences wherever they may be," Rabbi Genack declared. "Our rabbis travel widely not only as part of their certification responsibilities, but as part of OU Kosher's growing list of educational initiatives as well."

"For example," he explained, "we will send a rabbi to a synagogue or a yeshiva wherever it may be to address a topic of mutual interest. But the Halachic Adventure is in a class by itself in terms of size, complexity and cost. Thanks to the work of Rabbi Grossman, Rabbi Kalinsky and his staff, and the support of the Harry H. Beren Foundation of Lakewood, NJ, we were able to bring the Halachic Adventure to Los Angeles. We look forward to presenting OU Kosher programs on the West Coast as often as possible because that Region is extremely receptive and the community wants to learn as much as possible about our kosher laws and traditions."

Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Chart

This serves as a quick reference guide. Please refer to the OU's new Guide and do not rely on this summary alone.

Fresh Vegetables	Type of Insect*	Location of Insect	Method of Inspection
ARTICHOKE 	Aphids and thrips	Deep between the leaves	Artichoke leaves: Examine one by one. Heart of the artichoke: Spread apart the artichoke leaves; carefully examine around and between the leaves. If no sign of insect infestation, wash thoroughly. Due to the difficulty involved in checking, they are not allowed in OU restaurants. Solid artichoke bottom: No inspection. Rinse prior to using.
ASPARAGUS 	Thrips	Under triangle parts along the stem and in the tips	Green asparagus: Shave down the tips; remove the triangle parts along the stem and in the tips. White asparagus: Wash thoroughly before using.
BEANS 	Worms, when stored prolonged or improperly	Can be in the middle of the bean	Soak for approximately 1/2 hour; remove wormy beans that float to top of water.
BROCCOLI 	Aphids, thrips or broccoli worm; may appear brownish after parboiling	Lodged in the floret head, or at the base of area connecting the floret to the stem	Fresh broccoli, stems: Wash thoroughly. Fresh broccoli, whole: Parboil for no more than 1 minute. Segregate each head individually. Look carefully at the branched area of each floret, in the crevice formed by two branches forking out from a single trunk like a Y; spread apart each floret head and look through the florets, into the branch area; if 1 or 2 insects are found, continue examining the remaining sections of head; if 3 insects are found, the entire head should be discarded.
CABBAGE 	Thrips or cabbageworms	Most often in the outermost six leaves	Green cabbage: Detach loose leaves; discard; core the cabbage and split head in half. Peel 3 layers; carefully check these 6 leaves under direct light; check both sides. If 1-2 insects are found, they and the remaining leaves of the head may be used without further checking providing the remaining leaves are tightly packed together; it is recommended that the remaining leaves be washed before use.
	Thrips or cabbageworms	Most often in the outermost six leaves	If 3 or more insects are found, the remaining leaves must be washed and checked before use. Red cabbage: Detach loose leaves; discard. Core and split the cabbage in half. Wash both sides of each leaf; wash in colander if shredded; no inspection necessary.
CAULIFLOWER 	Thrips or small orange insects	Inside or between small thin white branches	Separate and remove florets from stem. Take several pieces and examine the under part of the floret; wash thoroughly.
CELERY 	Thrips, flies or worms	On inside and outside of stalk, especially close to base or on leaves	Remove all leaves; hold celery firmly under heavy stream of water; brush down both inside and outside of stalk with finger or a vegetable brush; if a worm burrow is spotted, slit open celery stalk, remove worm, and wash thoroughly. Leaves must be washed with soapy solution.
ENDIVES 	Thrips	On leaf	Remove leaves and wash, no visual inspection needed.
HERBS 	Aphids or thrips	On surface of leaves or stem	Soak in cold water; add several drops of concentrated, non-scented liquid detergent or vegetable wash; agitate herbs in the water, removing all foreign matter and soap from leaf surface; alternatively, a vegetable brush may be used on both sides of leaf. Check each leaf on both sides under direct light. If one or two insects are found, rewash the herbs.
ICEBERG LETTUCE 	Aphids or thrips	In the folds and crevices of the first four layer	Detach loose leaves; discard; core lettuce; split head in half; peel 4 layers off the head; carefully check these leaves by holding the leaf under direct light; check both sides of each leaf. If 1-2 insects are found, the head may be used without further checking provided the remaining leaves are tightly packed together; it is recommended that remaining leaves be washed before use; if 3 or more insects are found, the remaining leaves must be washed and checked before use.
MUSHROOMS 	Small white or red worms	Imbedded in under part or in inner sections of mushroom	Shiitake and Button: wash thoroughly. Oyster: Break apart in several places, especially the base, examine inner sections. If insects are found, discard mushroom. Portobello: remove stem, examine detached cap. Remove entire brown fan-like under-part. Wash thoroughly.

Fresh Vegetables	Type of Insect*	Location of Insect	Method of Inspection
OPEN LEAF LETTUCE  (e.g., green/red leaf, Boston, chicory, bok choy, romaine, etc.)	Aphids or thrips	Found even in the inner leaves due to its open growth	Cut off lettuce base; soak lettuce in cold water with several drops of concentrated, non-scented liquid detergent or vegetable wash; agitate leaves using a heavy stream of water to remove all foreign matter and soap from leaf surface or use a vegetable brush on both sides of the leaf; check leaves under direct light.
ONION 	Thrips	Tips or outer layers	Cut off onion tips; peel off inedible and loose layers of skin; wash thoroughly.
SCALLIONS 	Light-green or brown thrips	Mostly in upper area of bulb, also between branches and occasionally on outside and inside of shoots	Cut scallion root from top to the bottom of bulb; examine between thin layers where they merge from the bulb. If no insects are found, the remaining scallions may be consumed after thorough washing. If insects are found, the entire head must be checked carefully.
SPINACH & ARUGULA 	Thrips or worms	In curls and inside of leaf	Soak in cold water; add several drops of concentrated non-scented liquid detergent or vegetable wash; agitate leaves in water to wash their surface; use a heavy stream of water to remove all foreign matter and soap from surface of the leaf; check leaves under direct light.

Frozen Vegetables	Type of Insect*	Location of Insect	Method of Inspection
ASPARAGUS	Thrips	See "Fresh"	Not recommended.
BROCCOLI (spears or florets only)	Aphids, thrips, or worms	Lodged in the floret head, or at the base of area connecting the floret	Allow to thaw completely; look carefully at branched area of each floret, in the crevice formed by two branches forking out from a single trunk like a Y; inspect inside the floret from the top into the branch area. If 3 insects are found, the entire package should be discarded. Frozen broccoli is difficult to check; it is therefore best to avoid uncertified product.
CAULIFLOWER	Thrips	See "Fresh"	Same as fresh.

Canned Vegetables	Type of Insect*	Location of Insect	Method of Inspection
ARTICHOKE HEARTS	Aphids or thrips	Deep between leaves	Avoid completely.

BLUEBERRIES 	White maggots	Cultivated: Generally insect-free Wild: On surface or in center of berry	Cultivated: place in a strainer or colander and wash thoroughly under running water. Wild: Cut open and carefully examine on white cloth after washing.
RASPBERRIES 	Thrips or mites	On surface of berry and in open cavity	Gently drop raspberries onto a white cloth or light box to dislodge the insects; if insects are found, do not use pint of berries.
STRAWBERRIES 	Aphids, thrips, or mites	Under green leaf or on surface	Remove tops and place in soapy solution. Agitate in water and soak for several minutes. Rinse and rub each berry individually under a strong stream of running water. Visually inspect each berry.

Dried Fruit	Type of Insect*	Location of Insect	Method of Inspection
DATES 	Worms	Inside of date	Slice lengthwise and examine. No checking necessary when using pitted dates.
FIGS 	Wasps or worms	Inside of fig	Cut fig horizontally and split in half; check for obvious signs of insect damage or dark colored worms.

Dehydrated Herbs	All dehydrated herbs may be used without checking.
------------------	--	--	--

* Aphids – size of a pin head, light-green, round insects; Thrips – size of a "1" in a dollar bill serial number; linear, black or grayish insects.

 When checking leafy vegetables or herbs on a light box, both sides of each leaf must be checked.
