MY PROFILE

Brooklyn native, Infinite "Ivvy" Johnson has always had a knack for dance since she was a child growing up in the early 90's, dancing around her house to anything with a catchy beat or a rhythmic tune. Since then, dance has always been apart of Ivvy's life, self taught, she studied styles such as hip hop, dance hall, bellydance, contemporary, experimental dance and street dances like Bruk up and Flexn. Ivvy has even furthered her studies by taking what she learned and created her very own way of expression incorporating movement from tribal fusion belly dancing and traditional Indian and Hindu dances, which is a perfect blend with Bruk up, Flexn, and Dancehall that is dominating within the street dance battle scene. One of Ivvy's mission is to spread women empowerment through expression and movement with an unapologetic attitude and creativity. As of now Ivvy has worked with Elton John, Sean Paul and Tanisha Scott. She has also went as far as freelance modeling, capturing her degrees of her personality with fluid movement and daring Japanese hip hop street fashion.
