

JOHN POTASH

Actor, Producer, Wildlife Wrangler

PROFILE

John Potash is a lifelong animal lover and advocate who has spent the past few decades working in many various capacities including keeping, training, breeding, educating, rescue and lobbying. John currently owns and operates Get Rattled – Rattlesnake Avoidance Training for dogs (as well as skunk, porcupine and poisonous toad avoidance) and Animal Talent Unleashed – Providing animals for film and photography.

He has over 35 years of experience working with a huge variety of animals from domesticated animals to wildlife to all manners of small and large exotic animals, specializing in reptiles and insects including venomous snakes, specifically rattlesnakes which have been featured in many films!

He was first introduced to the film industry by providing interviews, consulting and live animals for news stations, local TV shows, documentaries, modelling photography, commercials, music videos, and feature films.

While not new to being on stage, presenting for hundreds of people, or on camera, he has recently had a new passion ignited for acting and production!

He has been described as “always professional, pleasant and helpful on set” and “a natural on camera”.
