My name is Xavier Ishmael Lewis. I was born and in West Palm Beach, FL. I grew up with Christian upbringing. Raised by a strong single mother with my older brother. I was taught to treat others the same no matter who they are and background. As well, to treat strangers the with respect, because you never know when you're entertaining and angel.

1. Been described as a kind, Bright, beautiful soul. My High School teacher nickname me her "precious little lamb". Also described as someone that can be trusted, humble, and strong.

Extremely optimistic personality. Half empty? Half full? If there was a third option I would say overflowing.

- I'm a hard worker and willing to learn anything new, easily can get along with others. Definitely a team player, as well if need be, work alone. Can listen, and follow instructions. Will definitely dot my i's and cross my t's. I'm compassionate, and intellectual, which are character traits that the world desperately needs right now, and will be helpful to others and your business. I'm a firm believer in do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

I'm also a lover of writing, sketching photography, singing, and acting.

Willing to relocate to: New York, NY - Los Angeles, CA - Atlanta, GA

Authorized to work in the US for any employer

April 2019 to March 2020

I work in the media department at Freedom House Church International Ministries. I would work with a team and work on the sound board for the the choir team, as well as the Pastor and First Lady. I would have to make sure the microphone were working correctly before service started. Also work on the camera, which they had three set up for different angle shots when filming. Also lighting, as well as using the projector to display the scriptures on the screen.

Rotating Internship

The Covington News - Covington, GA
September 2016 to December 2017

My position at The Covington News paper, was as described. I was a rotating intern. I was hired for my passion for writing, so I started off as an journalist writing a few articles for the Covington News. From there, I went on to write a few more on the town and local events happening in the square, and bands that were playing at these particular revenues. Continue expand on other side work such photography, working in archives, picking up the mail, going to the bank, then finally settling as an receptionist. Overall, I loved my experience there, learn a whole lot, made great and beautiful souls while working there. Always eternally grateful for that job and experience, and thank God for Blessing me with such a opportunity! One more thing, there was a side project that needed to be done, and was asked if I could do it. I accepted of course, but really didn't know how to pull this off. So I prayed about it, and God Bless me with the idea on how to do it. To Him be the Glory! Limited resources mind you, it was all from what available. So, I thank God for His help, and that was something that I felt a significant accomplishment for.

- Psalms of Love is the sum total of poems, love letters, and hymns written by Xavier Lewis, to the give the reader hope, and encouragement in they're day to day life, and fill them with passion and enthusiasm. The Author wrote these letter during he's dark period of loneliness, uncertainty, heartache, and confusion. Like the Psalmist David, Xavier took the dark period of his life to paper and to praise God in the midst of his troubles. To encourage himself about past hurts, learning to let go, trust God, to forgive, to love, and to boast in the Glory of his Lord in times of trouble and uncertainty. Xavier Lewis hope is that these Love letters help those who are going through the same thing he went through, and to give them hope, and encouragement.
