STAR TURN

Fashion's favourite firebrand, Prabal Gurung, on artfully combining style with sensibility

Text by BUTOOL JAMAL

Photographs by CYRUS DALAL

Prabal Gurung is a one-man wolf pack. He is a crusader, a man on a mission. A feminist. A designer with a conscience. Known for his dynamic vision, he treats fashion as a cultural medium of sorts to address larger causes. He has campaigned for Hillary Clinton. And he focuses his free time on his pet project, the Shikshya Foundation Nepal, which seeks to provide education to underprivileged children. Last year, Gurung, who grew up in Kathmandu, collaborated with Toms, the philanthropic shoe company, to support his foundation's work. That's not all.

When the devastating earthquake struck Nepal in 2015, Gurung used his social media platforms to mobilise over $1 m for the victims. He expressed gratitude by opening his Spring 2016 show, which was deeply influenced by his intrinsic cultural ties with Nepal, with a group of monks chanting traditional prayers. Fashion and feminism collided in Gurung's Gloria Steinem-inspired Spring 2017 collection. He had key quotes from famous writers—Rupi Kaur, Susan B Anthony, Emily ▶

“Challenging convention in a sly, subversive way has always been one of the most forceful arguments for the Falguni & Shane Peacock influence in fashion. These are looks intended for glamorous nights, partying after dark with the style-setters of the world. Adding a dose of witty cheek fulfils my longtime obsession with the age-old ‘old wisdom of baddie’ women.”

15th Anniversary

VISHAKHA BHARDWAJ

Background: A national-level basketball player from New Delhi, Bhardwaj came into the spotlight after being crowned the most beautiful woman in India and then the host of the Grazia Cover Girl Hunt.

BIG Break: "Grazia Cover Girl has been lucky for me. People took note of me, which eventually led to my biggest campaign till date—the Sabyasachi one."

Next BIG step: "I'm anticipating my next big campaign to be shot in Europe at the end of this year."
