A dance production that i choreographed and performed for in Uganda.

Ms Sheetal Erapapda, a professional dancer and choreographer from Nairobi, Kenya, said dance is an important career like others.

“Shyam is a good friend. I told him performing on video and performing on stage is different. Dance production is different from stage production, so I came here in May and I visited every group to assess their needs,” she said.

She further noted that through her visits, she found that the children lacked education, books, and homes where to stay and most of them do not know that dancing is an equally important career such as education.

Throughout her 15-year-dance career, Sheetal noted that she was impressed with the Triplets Ghetto kids after watching their performances and in the process ended up following them on Instagram.

She believes that if they are fine-tuned, they can shine on the international stage.
