Capitalizing on competitor weaknesses

PROJECT BRIEF:

Nelson MacNeil Rayfield is an Oregon-based law firm with offices in Portland, Albany, and Corvallis. Looking to improve site traffic and consultation requests through organic search, they needed a well-rounded SEO strategy to compete against longstanding firms in a highly saturated vertical.

With much of it's audience residing in neighboring cities, we knew the campaign needed to focus on building positive reviews and creating content that addressed frequently searched questions by locals.

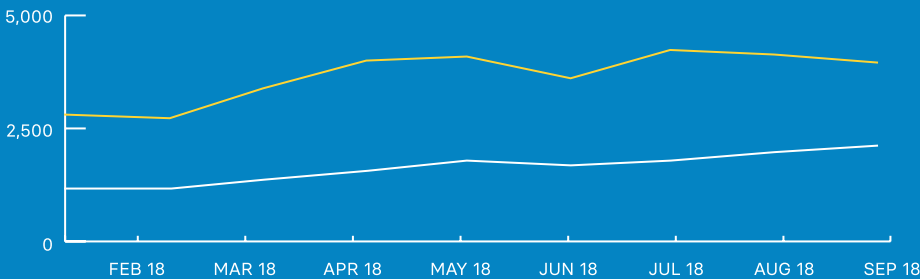

THE RESOLUTION:

- + Prioritized local 3-pack rankings by achieving reputable local directory citations, high quality reviews and content syndication through Google Posts and Facebook.
- + With many competitors lacking basic SEO fundamentals, the team made technical SEO optimizations a priority and focused on site speed.
- + Created content to address frequently searched questions related to law, as well as build on keyword themes related to high-value practices.
