

ABOUT THE TRANSFER

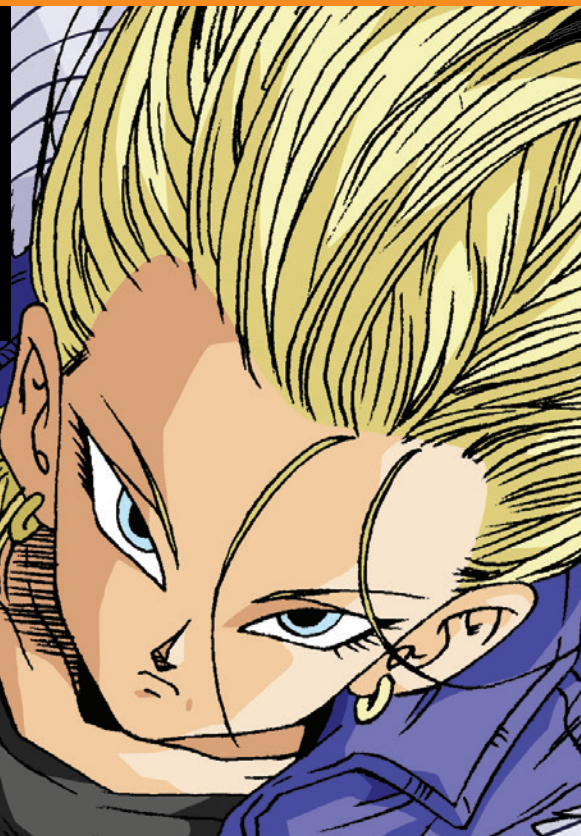

To accomplish the Dragon Ball Z remastering process, FUNimation worked with Video Post & Transfer, a Dallas-based post-production house. The original Japanese film masters were transferred via an industry-standard Spirit DataCine, passing through a Digital Vision DVNR1000 to remove film grain, and then receiving a further round of processing using a Teranex VC600 video computer. These digital noise-reduction units each helped to remove thousands of instances of dirt, scratches, and debris.

The cleaned footage signal was then run through a da Vinci 2K Plus color system to ensure that the colors were true to the original film prints. The da Vinci 2K Plus is an industry standard system used for color correction in feature films and broadcast, and was primarily used in this instance to set the levels of the whites and blacks in the film in order to present the colors in a manner faithful to the original prints.

The final media for transfer was Sony's HDCAM, a high-definition digital tape. The film was laid to tape at 1080p HD, at 24 frames per second. The frame-rate is important to note, as it allowed the film, which was originally created at 24 frames per second, to be transferred to tape frame by frame. This frame-rate prevented any unnecessary data from being added to the final video, and preserves the film masters at the highest quality possible.

DRAGON BALL Z

★ Garlic Jr.

Garlic Jr. is an evil being with keen mental powers and devilish plans to take over the universe. He can transform from a diminutive being into a large, monstrous tyrant.

His biggest desire is to destroy the Namekian guardian of Earth, the wise and pure Kami, in order to rule the Earth. Garlic's father had competed for the position of Earth's guardian, but he was stopped when Kami discovered his evil intentions. Garlic Jr. was granted immortality by the Eternal Dragon Shenron after collecting Earth's seven Dragon Balls, but he is locked in the Dead Zone, a black void of his own creation.

★ Spice Boys

The Spice Boys consist of four evil warriors who are under the command of Garlic Jr. They are strong, brave and evil, and are totally devoted to Garlic Jr. They give the saga a bit of a comical edge with their names: Mustard, Spice, Salt and Vinegar. The leader is Spice, a white-haired villain and the most handsome of the four. Salt is a short and stubby orange-colored rogue. Both Vinegar and Mustard are large, brawny, muscle men.

★ Frieza

Frieza was destroyed by Goku and his friends and now that he's back to life he wants revenge! This time Frieza has a powerful partner—his father, King Cold. ★ King Cold

King Cold is a massive monster with evil ambitions. He is Frieza's father, and is similar to Frieza in many ways. King Cold "resurrected" Frieza following the destruction of Namek, when all believed Frieza to have been destroyed. Now, King Cold travels to Earth to help his son on his quest for revenge!

★ Androids

The evil scientific genius Dr. Gero has created his most destructive inventions ever. Androids 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 are out to destroy the Earth. 16 is an experimental model. He is a big, muscled red haired brute who's been programmed to be a perfect killing machine. He doesn't say much at all; he is simply super strong.

17 and 18 are teenage androids. They are the ones responsible for the future destruction of the Earth and Trunks has to come from the future to stop them. 17 is a black-haired boy and 18 is a cute blonde girl.

19 is an overweight doll-like android with a funny outfit. He is very passionate about killing our heroes and uses all the weapons he can.

Android 20 is Dr. Gero himself as an android. He is the most vicious android of all and won't give up fighting. This android also knows how to activate the others.
