

Campaign 1: Elephants are mistreated by human society due to the lack of elephant accessible buildings in the world. Just a few months ago, an elephant by the name of Elmer Forster was trying to visit the Department of Motor Vehicles to update their driver's license and was unable to do so due to the physical limitations of the building. Elmer proceeded to bring their case before a court of law and ultimately lost as elephant accessibility is not listed under accessibility rights and laws. Elephants deserve to be in buildings and have access to services in society just as much as anyone else.

Campaign 2: Dolphin cultural influence is running rampant around the world and affecting the development of the hearts and minds of young people around this country. Your goal is to get pro-dolphin literature banned from elementary school libraries. Dolphins are mischievous by nature, have been stealing and interfering with the fishing industry around the nation, and to top it off are just plain noisy. Their influence in culture has gotten so widespread that a child, Ashley Ricks, watched them on television and saw them on a field trip and decided to become one and drowned tragically. We cannot allow others to think that this path to “dolphinhood” is proper.
