Prairie Street Brewhouse

You're in good company.

Welcome to Real. Original. Rockford: a little city with big life.

Home of Cheap Trick, Sock Monkeys and Swedish pancakes.

Our Peaches were a ragtag team of WWII-era women whose passion and courage made us baseball fans.

Our IceHogs, the AHL affiliate of the Chicago Blackhawks, with their skill and speed, have made us hockey fanatics.

A 66 million-year-young T. rex with a dangerous grin inspires awe and gives us perspective.

Our reputation is so green we've earned two verdant nicknames: "The Forest City" and "City of Gardens."

You're always In Good Company here with locals who are passionate about their city and want you to love it as much as they do.

With this Visitor's Guide in hand, we hope you will get a sense of our city through the stories and voices of the good people who live here.

We invite you to discover our great city and region through their eyes. And, please come experience Real. Original. Rockford first hand very soon.

They call Rockford Sportstown USA, but it's getting to the point it could just as easily be called Craft Beer City, as well. Winnebago County has three breweries per capita, which is well above the state average.

The oldest brewery in Rockford is also the youngest. In 1849, an Englishman named Jonathan Peacock bought a beautiful Greek Revival home on Prairie Street overlooking the Rock River. He intended to brew beer - and hoped to do it at a large scale. But, like many fledgling brewmasters, he started small, grinding malt in a hand-powered coffee mill, brewing mash in a washtub and delivering his ale in a wheelbarrow. It wasn't long before Peacock's brewery outgrew its capacity, and he built the looming brick edifice to the brewing arts at 200 Prairie Street that today houses the modern day Prairie Street Brewhouse.

The actual history of the original brewery almost seems clearer than the origins of the new one. When asked how Prairie Street Brewing Co. got started, Reed Sjostrom, one of a triumvirate of owners also including Dustin Koch and Chris Manuel, jokes, "we ask ourselves that all the time.

I think we all just woke up one morning after a particularly animated late night conversation and said, 'did we just start a brewery?'"

Looking around Prairie
Street's aged wooden timbers, brick walls and gleaming fermenters, it's pretty obvious the unanimous answer was, "yes."

Prairie Street Brewhouse is a skillfully and lovingly restored mixed use building that also houses an architect's studio, an engineering firm, loft apartments, expansive meeting and wedding spaces and two bars/restaurants. Oftentimes, weddings and other events spill out onto the otherwise peaceful docks overlooking the flowing waters of the Rock River.

"We're so happy to be part of bringing people to the water," said Sjostrom, watching a gaggle of kayakers paddling around the boat ramp adjacent to the Brewhouse. "It's a perfect spot for what we're doing. Absolutely perfect. You can come here by car, bicycle, on foot or by boat. All we need now is a helicopter pad. Ha. Just kidding."

What's no joke is how popular Prairie Street Brewhouse's weekly "Dinner on The Dock" has become since inception in 2013. Held each Thursday night, it combines craft beer, good music and good food - all served up with the Rock River and downtown Rockford as the eye-popping backdrop.

Inside, you'll enjoy a spacious tap room serving up to 16 award-winning ales and lagers as well as lunch and dinner. Try the Black & Blue Kolsch - perfect on a hot summer day with just enough natural blackberry and blueberry to make it spectacularly unique. On the opposite end of the palate is the West Coast IPA. Snappy, hoppy and smooth. Just opened in 2015 at Prairie Street Brewhouse downstairs at river level is Dockside Taproom, where you can watch the river roll by and imagine yourself sipping Jonathan Peacock's tasty nectar way back in the day. Dockside has 12 of PSB's brews and 12 guest taps flowing at all times.

Pig Minds Brewing Co., the brain child of Creative Pig Minds owner Brian Endl, is nothing if not, well, creative. But Endl does NOT serve pig. Or beef. Or chicken, for that matter. Pig Screw City Beer Festival won the Illinois Governor's Award for Best New Event in 2011. Get tickets early; it sells out fast.

Brian Endl of Pig Minds Brewing Co. enjoys coming up with offbeat names for his beer almost as much as brewing. Try the Sweep The Leg IPA. Minds' taproom restaurant is famous for dishing out some of the tastiest vegan food you'll find anywhere.

Try the sloppy joe. In a blind taste test, we guarantee you'd never know it's not meat.

Pig Minds' brew names are creative, too, with some of our favorites being Southy Bitch Slap, a hearty Irish Red; Squeal & Deal, an American Double/Imperial Stout; and Sweep The Leg, an American IPA with a slightly elevated ABV. Hoppy goodness abounds in this amazing little craft brewery, and even the most ardent meat eaters should approach with minds wide open. Chances are you'll find something to satisfy your hunger as well as your thirst. Local hint: Try the Fried Pickles. Ridiculously good.

Newcomers aside, when it comes to Rockford's modern day craft brewing culture, Carlyle Brewing Co. is the granddaddy of them all. Don Carlyle and his partner Rocio Perez opened the doors in 2003, when downtown Rockford was in desperate need of its first brewpub. Carlyle himself is the on-site brewmaster, having embarked on a worldwide mission many years prior to learn his craft from European and stateside masters.

"When I got out of high school, I was a little adrift," mused Carlyle. "I worked in automotive repair for ten years before I finally realized what I really wanted to do was brew beer for a living. So, I quit my job. After my last shift, a buddy drove me to O'Hare and I boarded a plane to Brussels on a mission to learn about brewing in Belgium and Germany."

He came home a few months later, fully stoked with passion, but equally aware he needed more training. Carlyle immediately enrolled in the world famous Siebel Institute in Chicago where, among his classmates were the future head brewer at Sierra Nevada in Chico, Cal. and students from Ireland's Guinness. It wasn't long after graduating from Siebel that he opened Carlyle Brewing Co. in downtown Rockford.

"There's nothing more gratifying than hearing people say they like my beer," said Carlyle.

Listening to Carlyle's regulars rave about his brews, it's easy to imagine him hearing that sort of thing a lot.

Web developer Adam Tobias, a frequent patron of Carlyle, is often seen enjoying an Irish Red while doing light reading on C++ and other programming languages at the taproom bar.

"I like all three breweries in town. But I'm extra attached to this one because I was one of the Don's first 'MugClub' members," said Tobias with a wink. "That gets me my own personal mug, which is a couple ounces bigger than the other glasses in circulation here."

Highly rated by Beer Advocate, Carlyle Brewing Co features some of Rockford's beer geeks' favorite brews: a super hoppy India Pale Ale playfully named Humulus Lupulus (the latin name for hops) and the beloved Black Walnut Stout, which is brewed too infrequently for many fans.

"The Black Walnut Stout is my Mom's favorite," said Carlyle. "She didn't use to like beer, but now she's a beer geek."

Carlyle Brewing Co also serves some of the tastiest, most distinctive thin crust New Haven style pizza this side of the Connecticut state line.

Just west across the Rock River in downtown's Main Street District, Kryptonite is not a brewery. But, it features very carefully curated craft brews and is the only local restaurant/bar that also has its own annual beer fest: Screw City Beer Festival. "Krypto's" owner, Chris Wachowiak, is an enigma: part bar/restaurant owner, part music promoter, part festival creator and part whirling dervish. He's always in motion.

"I look at what we do here as trying to create and sustain culture," says Wachowiak. "It's all meant to enhance quality of life. I love the craft that is applied to good beer, to craft whiskey, to our hand-crafted pizzas and brats, to music...to everything. I identify with artists and craftspeople and want to support them. And, I want to make our customers feel welcome and happy. I want to do what I can to make our city awesome."

If you want to attend Screw City Beer Festival in the fall, by the way, we suggest you buy your passes early because it is indeed awesome and sells out well in advance each and every year. Speaking of festivals, another travel-worthy, and ever-evolving event is Tour de North End, hosted by Zak Rotello of Olympic Tavern on North Main Street on Rockford's near northwest side. Designed to showcase Rockford's North End Neighborhood on bicycles, TdNE is held the first weekend of August. The more establishments you ride to and the more stamps you collect, the better your chances to win a coveted Fat Tire cruiser bike. More than 900 thirsty cyclists are expected for the annual event. Proceeds go to bike-related causes benefiting the Rockford community.

"Beer is a communal beverage," said Zak Rotello. "It's meant to be enjoyed with friends, together. Why not mix in a little cycling with your heer?"

Communal is a good way to describe the Rotello family's Olympic Tavern, as well.

"It started with my Grandpa in 1945," said Zac. "He came back from WWII, bought a tavern, changed the name to The Olympic - and the rest is history. We're always tinkering, adding things. We're up to 28 craft beer taps now. We've got a cool outdoor deck. We even host 'Doggie's on The Deck' on Tuesdays in the summer. Bring your dog!"

The good brews news doesn't end there, thirsty ones. The Rockford Region's craft brew scene goes on and on. Many local clubs, pubs and eateries have dived into the craft business with all taps on deck. The Oasis, Old Chicago, Granite City, Rural on Tap, Tavern on Clark, Aero Ale House, alchemy and many more hotspots serve it up cold and crafty on draught.

The moral of the story? If you like beer, Rockford is worth the trip from just about Anywhere, USA.

NEED A JOLT

Visiting breweries can wear you out! Fortunately, Rockford has many high quality coffee purveyors. In addition to several Starbucks, you'll find...

Rockford Roasting Co. boasts unique pour-over coffee, espresso and outdoor seating that has it humming with hipsters.

Octane Interlounge fuels many local movers and shakers as they discuss the issues of the day with excellent espresso and drip coffee.

Wired Café, nestled along a cozy corridor of eclectic shops, restaurants and offices, will get you re-wired and happy in no time.

Katie's Cup, located in Rockford's Midtown District, is the kind of coffee spot where the locals sit, sip and read the paper.

Meg's Daily Grind has several popular locations throughout the city and an ever-rotating blend of delicious brews.

JavaMania is a local coffee "food truck" that keeps festival-goers and farmers market shoppers smiling and energized.

A Foodie Town on The Rise

It's not just the talent and effort spent getting pizza dough just right. It's not just the elbow grease applied to precisely muddling craft cocktails. It's not just the love of ethnic food that starts down deep in the soul. It's all of the above that makes a visit to Rockford tasty when it comes to breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Paul Sletten, the talented young chef recently made famous on WTTW Chicago's Check, Please!, said, "this town is crazy food-talented for its size. So many great places to eat, on and off the grid." OK. Duly noted. So, where do you like to eat when you're not hard at work, sweating the details of your own creations, Mr. Sletten?

"Anthony DiTullio is hands-down the hardest working guy in the food and beverage business in Rockford," he laughed. "His passion is for real and so is the food at DiTullio's Italian Market Cafe. I LOVE his Italian sandwiches for lunch. Check it out. You will. too."

"Octane is another place I can't stay away from. Patrick Alberto, the head chef, is killing it there. You can tell he's doing it because he wants people to get excited about the food. That's the only reason in my book, because this business is hard. You should enjoy it," said Sletten. "I just like the vibe. And owner Daniel Minick has been such a stalwart of downtown Rockford for so long."

"I love Bamboo, and not just because it's right across the street from my places, Social and Abreo. It's a favorite because it rocks. The flavors are amazing, the service is friendly and the value might be tops in town."

Friendly competitor Al Castrogiovanni of Alchemy, Big Al's and Giovanni's agreed. Bamboo is my kind of comfort food. I love it. Best Pad Thai in Rockford."

Castrogiovanni is also a fan of Sletten's Social, which he says offers an, "authentic farm-to-table experience. No wait staff. The bartenders and chefs do all the serving. It's friendly and fantastic and fun. Even the cheese curds are out of this world. Paul's an innovator. Social is on my 'anytime' list."

What else does Castrogiovanni recommend?

"Man, Rockford has so much! Bing's Drive-In on South Main takes me back to my childhood with burgers in a little white wrapper and chocolate malts and root beer. They come to your car and hang a tray on your window. It's like living a memory. Same thing with Zammuto's, another great old fashioned place on Rockford's west side. Grandpa used to take me there for icy granitas after church. They make great, fresh fast food, too."

"Stockholm Inn is like this awesome Swedish pancake factory but everything is so great. I love to take the kids there for breakfast when I want to let my wife sleep in. That place is off the hook. They serve the best Swedish pancakes to like 500,000 people a year. It's amazing. Five Forks is my favorite lunch spot on Saturday. It's a small plate sort of place. I like their little touches, like fresh bread and olive oil that they bring out, the little retail wine shop where you can grab an inexpensive bottle of awesome, carefully selected wine and open it in the restaurant for a small corking fee."

"Oh! And Pig Minds Brewing Co. in Machesney Park. I'm NOT a vegan, but I respect Brian Endl's decision to do an all-vegan menu and man, it is fantastic. Highly recommended. I could go on... Dandy Donuts on Riverside in Loves Park. Big Papa's Barbeque on North Second Street in Machesney Park - that's like a trip down to Nashville with its kitschy atmosphere and real deal pulled pork burnt ends. The list goes on..."

Josef Barbados Steakhouse & Oyster Bar

Josef Barbados is the brainchild of noted Austrian chef, Josef Schwaiger, whose ties to the magical island of Barbados and a track record of opening more than 12 restaurants in his lifetime are known worldwide. His partner in Josef is Cherri Rittenhouse, a Rockford native, his wife and an accomplished painter and Professor of art at nearby Rock Valley College.

Josef is known for its elegant, art-enhanced ambience, sophisticated menu and some of the best seafood and steaks you'll find anywhere in the U.S. The bar features granite table tops, leather highboy chairs and a leaping sailfish on the wall.

"Since I designed my first 'gasfhof' in Austria...my philosophy has always been the same."

"Even when I began working on my more ambitious ocean-view restaurants in Barbados, I always put the emphasis on guest experience. The food, music and art must come together and allow our guests to be transported: to make a real connection with a special place," said Schwaiger.

Unlike Chicago's deep dish or New Haven's charred, crispy crust Rockford doesn't really have a signature pizza style. What we have is a lot of pizza lovers and many pizza places to serve them. Here are just a few.

John's Restaurant & Pizzeria

is a Real, Original, Rockford favorite that has been doing its thing on 11th Street (on your way to the airport) for decades. The pizza's great and it feels like the kind of place where you might run into your long-lost Uncle Vinnie. From pizza to pasta to seafood to prime rib, John's does it all.

Nunzio's Restaurant in Loves Park is known for two things: family friendly Italian food (and pizza, of course) and generous portions. If you've got an appetite - or your child's soccer team in tow - the huge pizzas will serve you well. If you order the "Sinatra Steak," be prepared to bring some home to Spot.

Pino's on Main is super popular among the locals in its northwest Rockford neighborhood. The sauce is known for it's perfect blend of tang and sweetness and the perfect blend of cheese and toppings. Folks love the flaky thin crust option, and Pino's calzones and Italian beef sandwiches are fan favorites, as well

Franchesco's Ristorante

Don't let the list of classic Italian dinners, appetizers, and sandwiches throw you off. Try the Stefano or the Cordon Bleu two of their signature specialty pizzas, and you will not be disappointed. Since 1986, they have blended old-world traditions with contemporary flavors to the delight of Rockfordians and visitors

The bartenders know what they're doing, so order a classic cocktail. If you're hungry, try the Josef Burger. Much more than a burger, it's ground Angus topped with a delicious prime rib confit and comes with crispy thin pommes frites. Many say it is the best "burger" they've ever had.

In the restaurant proper, steaks and seafood are served by a gracious professional staff. If you like dishes like bouillabaisse, duck and rack of lamb, you will be well-satisfied with Josef's skill in recreating such Euro-masterpieces in the Midwest. Arrive on Supper Club Saturday and you can choose a prime rib special that is to die for, beautifully garnished with Yorkshire pudding, iced Crudités and includes soup or salad.

Not surprisingly, perhaps, Lino's has been owned and operated by members of the same native Italian family since the beginning, more than 40 years ago. Mike Batista and his wife Pat (Grisanzio) are still on site everyday.

Vince Grisanzio, brother to Pat, is still behind the making of Lino's famous lasagna. Dominic Grisanzio, another brother to Pat who's well into his 80s. still hand-cases the delicious sausage daily. But the day-to-day restaurant operations are handled by brothers Joe and Jim Batista, who took over the business years ago. And there's a third generation in training: Joe's daughters, Celeste and Noel, along with Joe's son-inlaw. Charlie.

A recipient of the 2015 "Delicious Destination" award from Enjoy Illinois, Lino's has been an award winner in the hearts and minds of hungry Rockfordians for generations. The pizza is a local favorite, of course, as is the Special Salad, which is almost a meal in itself, with slices of sausage, hard-boiled egg and tomato, topped with vinegar and oil, black pepper and parmesan cheese. Lino's is known for sending people home smiling and with plenty of money still in their pocketbooks.

"We strive to provide excellent value for the money."

"We've worked hard to maintain the excellence our family established so many years ago. In a way, time stands still here. We hope it stands still forever," said Mike Batista.

Capri Restaurant

Dating back to 1963, Capri is another of Rockford's wonderful old-fashioned family style Italian restaurants, and it even has family ties to rival Lino's. Capri is in the heart of Rockford's growing downtown food scene.

Walk in the carry-out door and you can still talk to Capri's founder, Vito Grisanzio as he assembles every single pizza that goes out the door and is served in the dining room. Vito's wife Janette (Smith) still plays a major role in restaurant

alchemy @ Giovanni's

Al Castrogiovanni, the acclaimed and talented young chef of Giovanni's and Big Al's on Rockford's far east side, was faced with a dilemma: how to expand - into a parking lot - and still be cool - without just making a food truck. Castrogiovanni decided to create a new urban dining experience that allowed the outside in and the inside out.

The tricky part was not interfering with Giovanni's banquet business that can serve up to 1,000 people at a time.

He succeeded spectacularly with alchemy the garage-door enhanced pizza, pasta and craft beer emporium that now graces Giovanni's front entrance. From the custom craft cocktails that are half science, half magic and 100% delicious to an adventurous menu that features everything from hand-tossed, artisan pizza to fantastic fish tacos to high-end tater tots to an ever-changing menu of craft beer on draft and in bottles. alchemy is an experience. And it's an experience better experienced than explained.

But, a very talented admirer of Castrogiovanni's, Paul Sletten, owner of Rockford's famed Social Urban Bar & Restaurant and Abreo had this to say, "Al is by far one of my favorite chefs in town. His food is elevated. But a little messy. It's comforting. But classy. I love the idea of serving sandwiches in a bowl of broth. Who thinks of that?"

Al Castrogiovanni does, and you'd be well-served to visit alchemy and taste for vourself.

Local Advice: The happy couple sitting at the corner of the bar - a smiling man who looks like he might have been a boxer back in the day (he was) and an equally cheerful blonde companion might be Al Castrogiovanni's parents and coowners, Joe and Sue. Say, "hi." They love talking with guests and always have great menu advice.

GreenFire

Hailing from Montpellier in the south of France, just a few miles north of the Mediterranean Sea, Philippe Forcioli is his popular restaurant, GreenFire, is in his adopted hometown, Rockford.

Forcioli is a supremely talented chef who has cooked in some of the world's most famous restaurants for some of its most famous people.

"GreenFire is my dream," he says. "But my friends - actually this community of Rockford - made it a reality. I could not have done this anywhere else in the world. It's a $3 million restaurant that we were able to open on trust, love, unsecured loans and sweat equity. Every vendor gave me good terms. Friends brought their skills and love. I am so happy to look around and see what we achieved. Smells good, too, doesn't it?"

It certainly does. And, it smells like success.

"We keep breaking records. This last Mother's Day alone, we served 950 people."

What makes GreenFire unique? Beyond the rustic, upbeat surroundings, all the food is cooked in brick and wood fired ovens. There is not one range or microwave in the building.

"I always liked cooking outdoors on a fire," said Forcioli. "So, when I came across these amazing ovens that cook at 700-900 degrees, I thought it would be cool to learn an all-new way to prepare food. It was funny when I was interviewing staff for the kitchen. They were all like, 'where are the ranges? How do you cook here?' We all learned together!"

"Also, I had all these years of experience of seeing all the things people can use as excuses for restaurants being slow. So, I just designed all those things out of the plan. GreenFire is a restaurant with no excuses," he said. "There is no excuse for us to be anything but excellent and for our guests to have anything but a great experience."

Forcioli sources as many ingredients as he can locally, has display cases stocked with exquisitely crafted desserts, and maintains a small market with wine. liquor, and other treats inside the restaurant.

"GreenFire is not fine dining, but it is fine," said Forcioli. "You can bring your kids' soccer team here and feed them burgers and wood fired pizza while you have a nice glass of wine and a delicious cowboy steak. Perfect. No excuses for anybody to do anything but smile."

Get Up, Get Out and GO!

West Rock Wake Park

West Rock Wake Park is Dan Jarrett's personal passion, and one of Rockford's newest, coolest attractions. Jarrett spent 10 years in New York City plying his trade as a model, but wanted to come home to Rockford and bring the sport he loves to beginners and longtime enthusiasts.

"I grew up waterskiing at a nearby lake where our family has a cabin," said Jarrett. "I noticed that here in Rockford, if you don't have a boat and access to the Rock River, you were out of luck. No skiing or wakeboarding for you. I wanted to fix that and bring wakeboarding and waterskiing to anyone and everyone - in a safe, affordable, environmentally friendly way. We're doing it right here in Rockford on Levings Lake."

West Rock has developed a reputation as an awesome place for beginners to learn the sports as well as a solid following of experienced skiers and boarders who enjoy the no-boat, low-environmental-impact dynamic fun of being pulled around Levings Lake by powerful cable technology.

Dan Riffe is a Chicago resident who grew up in the Rockford area. He owns an expensive skiing boat on Lake Michigan. And that's just where he leaves it when he drives to Rockford with friends to wakeboard and waterski at West Rock.

"We can drive to Rockford and wakeboard here for less than filling my boat with gas on Lake Michigan." "West Rock isn't just cool," said Riffe. "It's an amazing value - and it's a great workout. What's NOT to like about that?"

For advanced riders, West Rock has an assortment of features from rails to jumps and kickers to ensure everyone gets a challenge. And, with the park's twin-tower design, folks can ride almost continuously for hours. Jarrett even hosts a summer school for kids ages 7-15 who want an intense learning experience in a day-school environment - at an affordable cost. Best of all, the equipment you'll need is included in the bythe-hour fees. Of course, you can bring your own gear if you prefer.

If you want a more placid experience, rent a stand-up paddle board for a relaxing water-top workout. Great for your abs, your balance and your peace of mind.

Alpine Hills: Golfing & Zipping & Sliding

Alpine Hills Adventure Park and Golf Center is a centrally-located, 52-acre adventurous urban wonderland where kids and other family members can do everything from learning to golf to launching themselves off terrain park features on skis and snowboards to screaming through the air on zip lines 65 feet in the sky.

Brought to you by fully-licensed, Rockford-based EBL Zipline Tours, Zip Rockford's treetop canopy experience is as good as it gets in the Midwest. The safe but thrilling experience is enhanced by dual racing zips, double decker zips, and a super-wobbly, super-fun Indiana Jones suspension bridge to test your balance.

"The guides are all highly trained, certified and very encouraging," said Laurie Anderson, Deputy Director of Recreation for the Rockford Park District. "The experience can get pretty hairraising, but it's always safe."

"The turnout so far in the first two summer seasons has been amazing. People absolutely love it," she said. "And the team and character-building benefits of adventure activities like zip lining are well known."

"This summer, a mom brought a troubled foster son to Zip Rockford. After his adventure, we received the most heart-warming letter of thanks," said Anderson. "She told us her foster child was hesitant and unwilling to try new things but had such an amazing time zipping, and gained so much confidence, he immediately went home and asked other kids in the neighborhood if he could join their soccer games."

"The experience helped transform her foster child. That's pretty cool."

Another cool thing is the new vertically enhanced wintertime Gateway Snow Park at Alpine Hills: a snow-making equipped, inner city terrain park that's a perfect place to learn to tube, ski or snowboard - or brush up on your mad snow sport skills.

"People of all skill levels come here," said Anderson. "From beginners to experts. It's just so convenient and inexpensive. They're coming from Chicagoland, Milwaukee, Madison, Freeport and elsewhere for the fun and convenience of playing in the snow at Alpine Hills. The surface lift is easy for anyone to get on and off of, and the warming house is great, too. Lots of people have been having birthday parties at Alpine Hills."

The snow park is typically open from mid-November through April.

Golf Heaven Right Here on Earth

So, golf is your true religion? Welcome to, "Illinois' Holiest City," where flagsticks grow like trees.

From awesome little Sinnissippi Golf Course, a quaint nine-holer in an east-side residential neighborhood to Aldeen Golf Club, the Golf Digest Magazine 4.5 Star-Rated championship gem on Rockford's far east side, the Rockford Region has a veritable embarrassment of golfing riches.

Ingersoll Golf Course, built in 1922, has narrow fairways lined with mature trees. At less than 6,000 yards from the back tees, its narrow confines have added more than a few strokes to many a player's handicap over the years.

Elliot Golf Course, also on Rockford's east side was built on relatively open, hilly farmland in 1968. It features wide fairways, distinct elevation changes and a solid mixture of straight and doglegged holes. Elliot recently added foot golf and other new-fangled golfing attractions that kids absolutely love.

Sandy Hollow Golf Course is a hilly, challenging parklands design with no two holes alike. The greens tend to be just a shade on the slow side, but the golf course itself is fun and the greens fees are low. If you have a morning tee time, show up a little early and enjoy one of Linda's delicious egg sandwiches or other breakfast delights with a cup of steaming coffee.

Jeff Miller, an accomplished local golfer who's played every local track from private to public, said, "we're blessed here, absolutely blessed. So many golf courses, so little time."

"Our only problem is too little time. I grew up on these golf courses and still can't get enough of them," said Miller. 1 Aldeen Golf Club has water hazards in courses in the U.S.

2 Cateway Snowpark at Alpine Hills offers hours of snow sport entertainment right in the heart of the city, and value that'll have you jumping for joy.

Other notable area courses are Macktown, The Ledges and Atwood - all operated by The Forest Preserves of Winnebago County, and each with its own memorable character in beautiful rural settings. Alpine Hills Adventure Park & Golf Center has a five-hole golf course designed by The First Tee for beginner children that's open during summer.

Rock Cut State Park: A Lakeside Paradise

From greens to green space; on Rockford's northeast side, just a turn off I-90, lies the 3,092-acre best-kept secret of many outdoor enthusiasts: Rock Cut State Park. It's the kind of place local folks would rather we didn't boast about, but we really must share its secrets for active visitors seeking fresh air and natural surroundings.

A local center for active and silent sports of all kinds, Rock Cut features Pierce Lake, the 160 acre man-made heart of the park. The lake is a reservoir that didn't exist when the park was home to Iroquois, Potawatomi, Chippewa, Ottawa and other tribes of native Americans. Today, though, it's home to a menagerie of fish species including surprisingly large northern pike and walleye. It is aggressively fished, but well-managed; fishing enthusiasts seldom go home skunked.

Canoeists, kayakers and the occasional windsurfer all call Pierce Lake home.

A variety of watercraft can be rented at the park's excellent concession stand, which is also a great place to grab a meal, ice cream and supplies.

"I've done everything at Rock Cut. Skiing. Road cycling. Mountain biking. Hiking. Kayaking. And just taking my dog for a walk," said local Maggie Eytalis. "It's so close, but you really get an outdoor experience, no matter what you do. There's always an 'ahhhhh' when you pull into Rock Cut."

Rock Cut is also home to campers, picnickers, birders, fishermen, horseback riders and an abundance of flora and fauna - including over 100 types of wildflowers.

Scores of people camp at Rock Cut each year. In fact, if you'd like to occupy one of its 276 campsites, particularly on a summer holiday weekend, we suggest reserving early. A surprisingly high number of campers consider Rock Cut a home away from home and look forward to returning each year to its hardwood forests.

Steve Forss, a Rockford-based racing cyclist, takes his kids camping at Rock Cut and many of the local forest preserves, as well.

"Sure, it's fun to go up to Wisconsin to ride bikes and camp. But we have so much right here, pretty much right outside our back door," said Forss.

Forss brought his son Miles and Miles' friend Henry on a recent one-night camping trip to avoid a sleepover hosted by Miles' sister, Zoe, back home. Was it fun?

"Best move we ever made," said Miles. Forss agreed.

"Camping is much better than staying home during a girls' sleepover. That's an easy one for any kid – even big ones like me."

SPORTING ROCKFORD

Nothing quite gets the adrenaline pumping like watching a great sporting event in person. Look no further than Rockford for some great professional and amateur athletic events.

Rockford IceHogs - An affiliate of the Chicago Blackhawks, the IceHogs have been gliding along the ice at the BMO Harris Bank Center since 1999. The intimate seating at the BMO means you get to be right up on the action and the great crowd interaction gets the place rocking.

Rockford Aviators - The Rockford region has a long history with great baseball, from Albert Spalding to the Rockford Peaches to several MLB affiliates throughout the years. The current semi-pro team, the Aviators, began in 2013 and plays throughout the summer in the Frontier League.

Amateur Sports Tournaments - It seems not a weekend goes by where there isn't a tournament or game taking place at Sportscore One or Sportscore Two. Large events like the Puma Cup and smaller tournaments alike bring visitors by the thousands to the Rockford region to compete. Indoor facilities thoughout the community like Carlson Ice Arena also play host to a variety of events. Where to Have Fun With the Fam

The Discovery Center: A Childhood Dream Come True

It has long been said that Real. Original. Rockford is a family town. For proof, look no further than Discovery Center Museum, a bastion of fun and educational excellence dedicated to enhancing the lives and minds of children. Ask any mom, dad, grandma or grandpa and they'll agree; kids have so much fun at the Discovery Center they scarcely realize they're learning.

Discovery Center is the fourth finest children's museum in the country according to Family Vacation Critic, and the only one rated in the Top Ten in the state of Illinois.

"When we say Rockford is a great place to raise a family, we mean it," says Sarah Wolf, executive director. "And that makes Rockford a great place for families to visit."

"At Discovery Center, we make it our mission to improve our city's family friendliness all the time for residents and visitors, alike."

The Discovery Center was Wolf's brainchild and has grown from a virtual baby in 1981 to a big sister on the downtown Riverfront Museum Park campus boasting 18,000 square feet of interior exhibit space and an 8,000 square foot Rock River Discovery Park, an outdoor science play park.

What, exactly, can kids do at The Discovery Center? Visit the planetarium and a flight simulator and pretend they're astronauts. Climb a spiral staircase with a giant mouse hole maze. See their endless reflections in the infinity tunnel. Build robots in the robotics lab. Impress themselves and see the video results on the giant pinscreen. Hunt for dinosaur fossils in the dino dig (and much more) in the outdoor Rock River Discovery Park.

A typical year sees nearly 250,000 visitors and the museum currently has enrolled more than 2,000 family memberships. Students from far and wide make field trips. Buses arrive constantly from cities in Illinois and Wisconsin. Kids pile out by the hundreds to have hours of fun, then pile back in for the return trip home, trading stories and new knowledge.

Centrally located in Rockford's downtown Riverfront Museum Park campus, parking is free and admission is family friendly. Special programming is featured weekly. Many frequent out-of-town visitors spring for family memberships because they're so affordable and their kids literally can never get enough. If you're visiting Rockford with your kids, don't miss the Discovery Center. If you left your children at home, go get them right now!

Magic Waters: A Million Gallons of Fun

"Kids love the water—it's really as simple as that," explained Zack McIntyre, Director of Magic Waters when asked why families from all over the Midwest come to splash around at Magic Waters

Nicholas Conservatory & Gardens is beautiful inside and out: a lovely tropical respite for plant lovers and anyone simply seeking relaxation and beauty.

Waterpark. "They get excited because there are so many great ways to beat the heat."

With the liquid distinction of being the second largest publicly owned water park in the United States, this 43-acre water retreat is a staple for residents and out-of-town families escaping the sometimes-oppressive heat and humidity of Midwestern summers.

Whether slithering down 15 slides, tubing in the Lazy River or just soaking up rays, fun is the order of the day.

If you measure fun gallons, the total is impressive: 1,000,310 gallons of fun, to be exact.

One fan-favorite attraction is Tsunami Bay, the 707,000-gallon wave pool, with its undulating waves that send heads bobbing like buoys and ripples of laughing swimmers towards shore.

Shrieks of delight whistle like seagull calls throughout the venue. Among the main culprits: The Splash Blaster, which slings riders' tubes up and down through a maze of swirling pipes. The two-minute ascent to the top sets the stage for 45 seconds of dizzying descent. Another ride that earns high shriekability ratings is the Double Dare Drop, which drops sliders 75 feet in a matter of seconds, making it the steepest slide in northern Illinois/southern Wisconsin.

Easily accessible off I-90 and I-39, Magic Waters' convenient location is a major advantage for families.

Best of all, you won't get soaked by the fees. Rates are as family friendly as the fun itself, and take-in coolers and picnic lunches are welcome. had from a variety of concession stands. Also, don't miss out on terrific "Splash & Lodge" hotel packages, which include discounted tickets to the park.

The Little Museum That Could: Burpee

Of course, there's delicious food and drink to be

The Little Museum That Could: Burpee Museum of Natural History

2002 was the year that leaders of Burpee Museum decided the Montana Badlands were all good. The Hell Creek Formation in Montana is where their team of paleontology enthusiasts excavated Jane, a stunningly complete juvenile T. rex skeleton that lived 66 million years ago - and is now on display at Burpee in her own expansive exhibition.

"Jane is one of the top ten finds in the history of paleontology," said Peter Larson.

Larson, who led the team that discovered Chicago's famous Sue, said, "Jane led a tough life. It's fascinating to see the evidence of it so well-preserved and presented by Burpee's team."

Although there are few paleontologists in the world who wouldn't give his or her favorite rock hammer—and the arm that swings it—to have found Jane, she is just one star in Burpee's constellation. There's much more to do and see at the "Little Museum That Could."

Homer's Odyssey: From Badlands to Burpee is a fascinating, in-depth look into the life of a Triceratops named Homer, also discovered and expertly excavated and presented by Burpee's amazing staff and volunteers. The Ordovician Sea is a fascinating look back to the days millennia ago when our region of the midwest was an ocean.

No wonder renowned Paleontology expert Robert Bakker said, "pound for pound, Burpee is the best natural history museum in the country."

When you visit Rockford, make time to experience this intimate, world-class museum. But hurry; at 66 million years-old, Jane's not getting any younger.

Relax in Klehm Arboretum & Botanic Garden's Historic Beauty

The history of Klehm Arboretum & Botanic Garden is as substantial as the trunks of the many bur oaks that grace its grounds. From humble beginnings as a nursery planted by the Taylor family in 1910, Klehm has grown to a one-of-akind haven for plant life and animals boasting over 1,000 different species of trees, shrubs and perennials. It is one of the oldest and most diverse such facilities in the Midwest.

"I was attracted to Klehm by the arboricultural value of the trees and plants," said past board chairman John Richards. "To me, there is no finer tree than a bur oak, and we have many beautiful specimens here. They alone are worth the visit."

Carl Petersen, a regular Klehm visitor, has his own renewing passion. "I see something new every time. It's never the same twice. The plants are always evolving. For me, this is a big, beautiful, organic stress-reliever."

The centerpiece of the collection is what staff members call the Sentinel Oak – the tallest and one of the oldest oaks in Illinois at more than 250 years of age. So unique and precious is this treasured bur oak that it is wired with lightning resistant cable for protection.

"The Sentinel Oak, to me, like all bur oaks, is a sacred tree."

"It was a 'witness tree' used by early surveyors staking out Rockford," said Richards. "And in the shade of that tree and others in the grove, you'll find rhododendron, azalea and umbrella magnolia thriving."

English oak, white oak, American chestnut and a one of a kind Greek fir (rare to the Midwest) are just a few of the varieties of wild trees you can see at Klehm. Because most of the collection was planted around the turn of the last century, many Klehm samples dwarf specimens at other Midwest arboretums.

"Another wonderful thing about Klehm Arboretum," said Dan Riggs, executive director, "is that we're situated on the Mississippi Flyway. So in the spring you'll see all manner of migratory birds: warblers, finches, orioles, scarlet tanagers, indigo buntings, white pelicans and more. Many birds winter here, too."

An additional form of wildlife that love Klehm are kids. They have fun in the Children's Garden, Grass Garden, Butterfly Garden and Fountain Garden water feature. Klehm's programming schedule is as varied and colorful as the grounds themselves. There truly is something fun and educational going on every week, from the spring Garden Fair to the summertime Woodsong music series on select Sunday nights and much more.

The seasons may change, but the beauty and variety of plant life the Taylor brothers planted ages ago just keeps getting more beautiful. No doubt they would be very proud to see their old nursery now.

Rockford Speedway: Still Putting Its Pedal to The Metal

Jody Deery was a registered nurse when she and her husband bought a stake in Rockford Speedway in 1959. By the mid '60s, they were sole owners and her nursing career had been in her rearview mirror for years.

"We had no experience promoting races. Heck, I hadn't even seen a race when we bought this place," said Deery. "I guess I've seen my share now."

Founded in 1948, Rockford Speedway is the only NASCAR-sanctioned track in Illinois other than Chicagoland Speedway. Families (many for generations) flock to it for a thrilling mix of local, regional and national events. Known as "Mid-America's Finest Racetrack" it is renowned for hosting major events like the National Short Track Championships.

And, of course, the quarter-mile oval also hosts crazily entertaining demolition derbies in figure eight patterns and other fan-favorite specially themed events.

If you assumed that Jody Deery, now 89 years young, has taken a backseat and let one of her children run the Speedway by now, you'd be mistaken.

"What? No, no, no! Mom is still running the show," said Sue Deery, Speedway Comptroller and a veteran of the family business since she was 8 years-old. "She is amazing. She's intimidating, really."

"She drives herself and the Speedway just as hard at 89 as she did when she was 33."

"We've been doing this - parents and brothers and sister together - for decades," said Sue. "Sometimes I'll feel like I'm about to run out of gas, and just then I'll see a fan smile. Or someone tells me how much their grandparents loved coming here. Or a young kid wins a race. And bam, just like that I'm ready to run hard again, just like Mom."

"The Speedway is Americana, really. The cars on the track go fast, but time stands still," said Sue. "It's just like it was back in the day. It doesn't really 'bring me back,' though, because it's always been here, just like this."

The Head of The Rock Regatta: It's Not Just A Race, It's an Institution.

Come the second weekend of October on the east bank of the Rock River, ducks and geese find themselves in competition for shore space as 1,700 plus rowers from across the country convene for head-to-head competition at the Head of the Rock Regatta. From prep and collegiate teams to club teams of all ages, the Head of the Rock is a premier national rowing competition and muchanticipated spectacle for Rockfordians and visitors alike.

Oarsmen and women from more than 60 clubs and universities racing over 400 boats share the 2.5 miles of the Rock River's prime racing length each year, witnessed by thousands of spectators. Major universities represented in both men's and women's events have included Purdue, University of Iowa, Northwestern, Marquette, University of Minnesota, University of Michigan, Notre Dame and others.

"We have the best rowing water in the United States."

"We started this race in 1984," said Dennis Kaderabek, founding race director. "I cannot tell you how many coaches and athletes have told me they're jealous of our Rock River course."

Not the least of the Rock River's advantages for racing is its spectator-friendliness. The riverside Recreation Path, which runs the length of the course on the east bank, affords terrific views of the action, as do positions on the Auburn Street, Jefferson Street and Riverside Boulevard bridges - Auburn Street being the best of the three.

Thirty years and counting - and the Head of the Rock keeps growing in the hearts and minds of returning athletes and spectators. See why for yourself the second week of October on the banks of the Rock River in Rockford, Illinois.

Nicholas Conservatory & Gardens: Are We Above or Below the Equator?

Nicholas Conservatory, an 11,000 square foot indoor wonderland of beautiful tropical plants, is the third largest conservatory in Illinois. Enhanced by the melodious sounds of water features, peaceful seating areas, sculptures and a majestic riverside location, Nicholas Conservatory is home to thousands of beautiful, ever-changing tropical plants, sculptures and, oftentimes, hundreds of live butterflies.

The beauty continues outdoors, as well. The conservatory has a unique living green rooftop which you can book for semi-private catered meals and enjoy a spectacular view. The grounds embrace Eclipse Lagoon, which features two fountains (it freezes come wintertime and becomes a favorite haunt of pond hockey players), a waterfall, a pedestrian bridge, and a gentle walkway connecting the conservatory grounds to the lovely Sinnissippi Rose Garden. Best of all, Nicholas Conservatory offers special programming throughout the year, from weekly art walks to wine tastings to special exhibitions of varying themes.

We all know how quickly tropical plants grow, so it won't surprise you to know that the conservatory rarely looks the same during two consecutive visits. It's always growing, always evolving. Come step into its vibrant, tropical world; chances are good you'll want to come back.

Rockford City Market: A Weekly Gathering For Good

Launched in 2010 with high hopes of creating activity, jobs, entrepreneurs and a world class experience, Rockford City Market is the place to be on summer and fall Friday afternoons and evenings. Visitors shop for produce, prepared foods handcrafted goods and more. And it's all for a good cause – revitalizing downtown Rockford.

Founder Peter Provenzano and his cohorts couldn't have imagined how quickly City Market would inspire tens of thousands of residents and visitors to look forward to summer Friday afternoons and evenings.

"We almost made the mistake of holding it on Saturday mornings," said Provenzano. "But what we really wanted to do was create a farmers market-meets block party vibe. So, we decided on Friday afternoons. That was the secret. It's been a good thing for the community and a good thing for our downtown economy."

City Market is nestled in the midst of the city's historic commercial district along the Rock River's east bank. Many restaurants, bars and other businesses are within walking distance, some of which were incubated at City Market in past years.

"We brought things full circle - although I don't think they had live music and craft beer back then," said Provenzano, standing amidst the swirl of Market activity one Friday evening.

Partially sheltered by a beautiful new steel pavilion, City Market happens rain or shine and features local growers and other vendors selling natural, locally grown and produced products including vegetables, fruits, eggs, meats, cheeses flowers, herbs, baked goods, wine and healthy snacks. Others include talented artisans and makers of fine handcrafted goods and craft brewers. A beer garden with live music takes place under the pavilion's shelter.

In fact, if you're still thirsty after the Market closes, two of Rockford's outstanding craft breweries, Carlyle Brewing Co and Prairie Street Brewhouse, are within a stone's throw of the grounds.

Silent Sports Are Gaining a Voice in Rockford, Illinois

Mary McNamara Bernsten ran for a seat on the Forest Preserves of Winnebago County Board because she cares about our natural heritage and truly wants to see more people, especially children, enjoy it. She won, and now she's living that ethos along with her husband and kids.

"We're enjoying fishing, camping, hiking - just the sheer pleasure of driving a short fifteen minutes from our home, getting out of our car and being confronted by an expanse of wildness and green and clean water," she said. "It's liberating and wonderful for locals and it's a real treat for visitors, too. Just walking along the shore and searching for little clamshells is such a fun adventure for our family. And, almost all of what the Forest Preserves offer is absolutely free.

Winnebago County's forest preserves feature 10,300 acres of woods, prairie, wetlands, rivers and ponds.

"It's all about access," said McNamara Bernsten. "You can go camping, hiking, picnicking, canoeing, kayaking, snowshoeing, cross country skiing, bird watching, fishing. As a matter of fact, call the Forest Preserve District office and we'll even lend you a fishing pole - just like checking out a library book. For free."

Freedom is what it's all about for Don "Big Bird" Miller, too, Miller is a noted naturalist and Director of Education and Research at Severson Dells Nature Preserve. He has spent a lifetime paddling the waters of Winnebago County, hiking the banks of its rivers and streams, and sharing his knowledge with everyone who wants to learn.

Miller has many tips for fellow lovers of lakes, rivers and streams...

"The Kishwaukee River runs 63 peaceful miles from Woodstock, Illinois to Rockford, where it empties into the Rock River. It is clean and beautiful, a Class A river whose watershed includes prairies, savanna, wetlands, sloughs and forests - and quite a lot of farmland. The name Kishwaukee is derived from a Native American word for "river of the sycamore," Miller said.

"The Pecatonica River flows 194 miles from southern Wisconsin to northern Illinois, where it meets the Rock River in Rockton. Pecatonica is an anglicization of two Algonquin words: bekaa (slow) and beckaaniba (slow water)," he said. "In the Rockford Region, four Forest Preserves operated by the Forest Preserves of Winnebago County line its waters: Pecatonica Wetlands FP, Crooked River FP, Macktown FP and Trask Bridge FP. Also, Natural Land Institute owns and operates two preserves along the river called Pecatonica Woodlands and Nygren Wetlands."

"I love the Sugar River," he said. "It's a tributary of the Pecatonica, 91 miles long from the southern terminus of the last North American glacier southwest of Madison, WI to northern Winnebago County, where it joins the 'Pec' near Shirland. Three forest preserves flank it along the way: Sugar River FP, Sugar River Alder FP, and Colored Sands FP.

"Then there's Kilbuck Creek. a lovely little 28 mile-long tributary of the Kishwaukee River. It's our third largest by volume. Its mouth is located about a mile north of Kilbuck Bluffs Forest Preserve, which consists of 224 acres of woodlands and a ridiculously beautiful display of spring wildflowers and mature sycamore trees. Kilbuck Bluffs features easy water access points for fishermen, canoeists and kayakers, so that's a handy one to get to know." said Miller.

To the Sauk and Fox native Americans, the Rock River is known as Sinnissippi for its "rocky waters."

"The Rock River is a tributary of the Mississippi that starts up north in Wisconsin and gathers strength from almost all the rivers and streams in the region. Lots of forest preserves, parks and recreational assets line the banks of the Rock here, such as Atwood Forest Preserve, Sinnissippi Park and the 10 mile Rock River Recreation Path," Miller

Miller's favorite places to paddle, in no particular order, because he treasures them all. are:

The Sugar River from Yale Bridge Road to Two Rivers Forest Preserve. A 2.5 hour float featuring clean water, excellent wildlife viewing, seclusion and

The Kishwaukee River from Kishwaukee River Forest Preserve to Atwood Park, passing Kishwaukee Gorge Forest Preserve, much scenic beauty and abundant wildlife.

ROCK RIVER TRAIL FLOWS THROUGH ROCKFORD

The Rock River Trail, spearheaded by Frank Schier, owner of the Rock River Times newspaper that calls downtown Rockford its headquarters, has quickly become a leader in promoting the Rock River as a destination. The Trail, which was established in 2010 to promote the river as a multiuse trail of recreation, scenic and historical interests runs a total of 320 miles through Wisconsin and Illinois and has been designated as a National Water Trail. In Rockford, the Rock River acts as a natural corridor for the community and is the perfect backdrop to many of the region's great events Learn more about the Trail and the opportunities to hike, bike, boat or drive the great river at rockrivertrail.com

Kishwaukee River from Baumann Park in Cherry Valley to Atwood Forest Preserve.

"The Sugar is my favorite river in the county," he said. "it can be a little soily at times due to farm run-off, but you can't beat it for feeling secluded and for viewing wildlife. There are sand bars where you can stop for a shore lunch - and you won't see a lot of other people."

"The Kishwaukee River is my other favorite. It's known for clear water, a nice steady current, bald eagles, warblers of all kinds, pileated woodpeckers, mink, otter, deer, the soft-shell Blanding's turtles and more. And, if you don't have a canoe or kayak, you can rent one."

Severson Dells Nature Center is a perfect resource for information about the Rockford Region's natural world, and Miller invites you to call the office any time. "Folks are welcome to call us for advice and special events. We're always organizing canoe excursions and exploratory hikes, so give it a try if you're looking for something organized."

Speaking of hikes, Miller's favorite place to explore nature on foot is Deer Run Forest Preserve, with six miles of bluebell-bedecked trails along the lovely south branch of the Kishwaukee River.

"There are bluebells, orange butterfly milkweed and more. It's easy hiking and you can even bring your dog, on a leash. Plus, it's so easy to get to, just south of Cherry Valley."

Rick Barton is another noted, longtime silent sport practitioner. He's currently General Manager of Rocktown Adventures outdoor outfitters on Madison Street in downtown Rockford, just about a block south of Prairie Street Brewhouse, right across from the Riverview Ice House.

"I love to paddle the Rock River. There's such a wide variety of stuff to see."

From the downtown skyline near Barton's shop to forests and parks and golf courses, you can put in from Macktown Forest Preserve you can paddle for almost three hours downstream to Atwood Forest Preserve. "Easy in, easy out," Barton said. "We're so lucky here."

"During the summer months, at Rocktown Adventures, we're doing scheduled trips where we'll transport you north to Sportscore One with rental kayaks, paddles and life preservers so you can paddle back downstream to Prairie Street Brewhouse for Dinner on the Dock on Thursdays or City Market on Fridays."

"We don't miss a beat when the snow flies. Come wintertime, there are so many places to cross country ski and snowshoe - from right in the middle of the city to out in the country. We really have an amazing silent sport vibe going on here in the Rockford Region," he said.

Rockford Art Museum: It Would Be Amazing Anywhere

"RAM is truly incredible - and not just for a mid-sized city. It's just incredible, period," said Carrie Johnson, Curator. "Our permanent collection is growing in both scope and quality and has been for decades. There are many, many important works by people such as Ed Paschke, Roy Lichtenstein, Warrington Colescott, Ansel Adams, Lorado Taft, Bertil Vallien, Ulrica Hydman-Vallien and many more."

"I think what really sets us apart is the quality of our self-curated exhibitions," said Executive Director Linda Dennis. "The breadth and depth of the subject matter our staff undertakes - and the quality of the execution - is quite impressive."

A recent example was the colorful and dynamic Printmakers Ball, which featured 14 printmakers pushing the boundaries of the art world by exploring new methods of printing and expression, from portable presses to complex installations, often addressing social and political issues head-on – and always leaving their skilled mark. The exhibition included a live printing demonstration and guided tours of the woodcuts, screenprints and large print installations on display.

Boasting 17,000 square feet and several galleries of exhibition space, RAM is one of the largest art museum in Illinois outside of Chicago.

Originally founded as the Rockford Art Association in 1913, RAM's permanent collection now contains over 1,900 individual works consisting of modern and contemporary American art from the 19th and 20th centuries through today, from American Impressionist paintings to Chicago Imagist works to outsider art in new and mixed media; sculpture; photography; and contemporary glass. RAM is also committed to the local art scene and Illinois artists remain a steadfast focus.

Important museum collections include the Arnold Gilbert Photography Collection, Hager Collection of self-taught African American art, Stevens Collection of contemporary art and the Wilken Collection of studio glass. RAM's Francis and June Spiezer Collection is called "the most significant collection of Chicago art, inside or outside the city" by art critic Paul Klein.

No matter when you visit, you're likely to find something to engage your mind, something to inspire your spirit - and a warm memory or two to take home - at Rockford Art Museum. Don't forget to visit the well-appointed gift shop.

The Laurent House: A Frank Lloyd Wright Masterwork

In August of 1948, a Rockford resident and U.S. Navy veteran who became a paraplegic following WWII, wrote a letter to Frank Lloyd Wright. He wanted the famous architect to design a home for him that would accommodate his unique needs.

In his letter, Kenneth Laurent wrote, "To give you an idea of my situation, I must first tell you that I am a paraplegic. In other words, due to a spinal cord injury, I am paralyzed from the waist down and by virtue of my condition, I am confined to a wheelchair. This explains my need for a home as practical and sensible as your style of architecture denotes."

After many fits and starts, punctuated by letters of impatience from Laurent and pleas for patience from

Wright, the plan was committed to paper nearly a year after the initial request was made.

One night in July 1949, after Wright's apprentices left the drawing room to attend a performance at the Taliesin Theater, Wright went to work. When the apprentices returned a scant two hours later, they found the entire floor plan and perspective drawing of the house complete.

The house was completed nearly three years later in 1952. The end results allowed Kenneth Laurent to realize his full potential and give him unrestricted access to everyday living.

Literally and figuratively, Wright gave him the level playing field many take for granted. Laurent and his wife, Phyllis, raised their family in the home and lived there happily from 1952 until 2012 when it was purchased by the Laurent House Foundation. Soon thereafter, the home was added to the National Register of Historic Places.

"I suppose it was the unpleasant thought of the community missing a chance to preserve a unique architectural treasure that moved us to act," said John Groh, a foundation board member. "Wright is known as America's greatest architect. One of his favorite buildings - one created for a special client under unique circumstances - could have been purchased at auction, disassembled and moved. We didn't want to see that happen. The Laurent House was destined to be here in Rockford forever."

Wright himself referred to the Laurent House as, "my little gem," and visited it on more than one occasion after it was completed. He was so proud of it, in fact, he encouraged friends and clients to travel to Rockford to view the home. Wright remained a friend of the Laurents for the remainder of his years and often invited them to parties and functions. He himself oversaw the design of an addition to the house, which was completed shortly after his death.

Along with renowned masterpieces of architecture such as Taliesin, Fallingwater and the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, The Laurent House is featured in Bruce Brooks Pfeiffer extraordinary book Frank Lloyd Wright: The Masterworks, as one of the Wright's 38 favorite designs.

This single-story Usonian home is both functional and beautiful, decades ahead of ADA accessibility requirements. It features a solar hemicycle footprint, patio, fish pond, carport, and organic outdoor connectivity to the natural landscape. In his wheelchair, Laurent had access to the whole house inside and out. The modest home is built of Chicago Common Brick and Red Tidewater Cypress and much of the labor and materials were sourced locally from Rockford.

Despite its diminutive size, despite its single story height and perhaps because it was made for a man who was earthbound in a wheelchair, The Laurent House is a towering example of Frank Lloyd Wright's exceptional creative genius.

Tours are generally available on the first and third weekends of each month, or by appointment. Group tours are available on request.

Anderson Japanese Gardens: Inspired by The Land of The Rising Sun

As you wander the peaceful, narrow pathways that snake through verdant trees and foliage of Anderson Japanese Gardens, you won't see signs describing the plants' species or their meaning in Japanese culture. The same holds true for the bright golden fish whose flashy colors catch your eye as they glide through the ponds or the lovely Japanese gate that welcomes you into the garden's heart. You won't find names and information on these things because Anderson Japanese Gardens isn't about facts or figures or even species. It is an organic sanctuary, a place to collect one's thoughts, reflect on the beauty that surrounds you and, most of all, a place to leave the outside world behind.

The Laurent House, an amazing architectural treasure designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, and the only home ever created by the great master specifically for a disabled person.

"The garden is presented purely as a Japanese garden. We are not here to tell people what this garden means," said Garden Curator Tim Gruner.

"The garden hopes to speak to you and take you down to something elemental: perhaps a puddle of water on top of a boulder. Or noticing the sound of the waterfall or a chickadee. Or, the color of a flower contrasting with the foliage. It's nice to lose yourself in these things."

One fact that shouldn't be lost on anyone is that this spectacular treasure was rated one of the finest Japanese gardens in North America according to a survey of Japanese garden specialist from around the world. The survey, conducted by the Journal of Japanese Gardens, ranked over 300 gardens on the continent in terms of natural beauty and overall quality.

The seed of inspiration to develop a Japanese garden in Rockford was planted in businessman John Anderson's imagination while traveling to Japan in 1966 and later upon seeing the Japanese garden of Washington Park in Portland, Oregon. That seed blossomed when the garden was built

"He had a vision of bringing something to his home in Rockford that had inspired him personally," said Anderson's son, David Anderson. "He wanted the people of Rockford to feel the things he felt walking in such incredible places."

Designed and built by renowned landscape architect Hoichi Kurisu in the Kamakura style, the visitor is intended to become a part of the garden so that it unfolds at one's own pace - and becomes his or her own experience. Subtleties of meanings aside, there is no doubt that the bond between the physical beauty of the gardens to the mental and physical well-being will carry over to life outside.

"I feel my spirit lifted when I leave here."

"Taking a walk in these gardens rejuvenates both mind and body," said Mary Conacher, a frequent visitor.

It's lifting more spirits than ever.

"The community and visitors have embraced the gardens. About 45% of our patrons come from Chicago, Milwaukee and Madison. Many of them return time and again. We have busloads of kids coming some weekdays from school districts all over Illinois and Wisconsin. We're running children's programs for locals and visitors, alike. It's very gratifying to see," said Anderson.

While Anderson Japanese Gardens has always been music to the eyes, it has recently become music to the ears, as well. The wildly popular summertime Tuesday Evening in The Gardens concert series has brought bands from as far away as the Bottle Rockets from Festus, Missouri to as nearby as Rockford's own Bun E. Carlos Experience and Miles Nielsen & The Rusted Hearts.

Another new development in 2015 is Fresco at The Gardens, an organic/locally sourced restaurant, juice bar and coffee house serving breakfast and lunch in easily the most spectacular - and literally green setting in the city.

"We wanted to create a restaurant to bring food of the same high quality as the gardens' visitor experience," said Michelle LaMay who leads operations for Franchesco's Ristorante, which operates the venture.

"Of course, it makes total sense to do it in the most natural way possible. If we can't find our ingredients locally for seasonal reasons, they will at least be organic. The meals are beautifully prepared and presented, as befits a lovely atmosphere like the one these garden views afford."

"Folks can stop in after a garden tour - or just stop in," said Jake Ziegler, Fresco's on-site manager. "We have our Java Lounge with powered high-top tables where people are welcome to plug in their laptops, sip some local, freshly roasted coffee or freshly squeezed juice and get some work done. But be careful not to get too distracted by those views. They really do blow you

Just like the gardens outside the panoramic picture windows, you won't need a sign to tell you how to enjoy the dining experience, either.

Starlight Theatre: Giving Birth to Stars, Under The Stars

Starlight Theatre, Rockford's home to musical theater, sits among the green, rolling hills on the campus of Rock Valley College. It is as much a Rockford institution as high school basketball - and if you know Rockford, that's saying a mouthful.

Here's another mouthful: 30 "graduates" of Starlight Theatre's summertime musical productions are currently prowling the stages of Broadway, including such luminaries as Marin Mazzie, Jodi Benson, Kevin Stites and Tony nominated director Joe Montello. You might say Starlight Theatre is to Broadway what the minor leagues are to major league sports.

"Starlight Theatre has afforded thousands the opportunity to say things like, I saw Marin when..."

Since 1967, founding artistic director Mike Webb has presented it all, from the classics to contemporary musical productions and everything between. Given the fact that the actors and musicians are all volunteers (including the many professional members of each cast). Webb is free to spend freely on costumes and sets - not to mention livestock. Actors were joined by live camels during the '95 and '96 staging of Joseph and The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat.

Webb presents his works in a world-class, landmark building designed by the renowned architects of Studio Gang, the founder of which hails from nearby Belvidere. Starlight Theatre is graced with a mechanical roof that blossoms dramatically on starry nights like a wood and steel moonflower. Starlight Theatre is a true Real. Original. Rockford summertime treasure. It is community theater with a professional edge.

Coronado Performing Arts Center: Some Never Want to Leave

The Historic Coronado Performing Arts Center leaves many first time visitors slack-jawed in wonder. Its ornate lobby, lavishly gilded architectural details and soaring main auditorium leave no doubt why this Real. Original. Rockford has been known for decades as, "Rockford's Wonder Theatre." Its overwhelming beauty and sheer historic significance has been know to upstage the very shows it has hosted since opening

"There are very few theaters of the Vaudeville era remaining, and fewer still restored to the their initial glory like the Coronado. None are as remarkable as the Coronado, in my opinion," said Craig Thomas, chairman of Rockford Area Venues and Entertainment Authority, which manages the Coronado.

"It's a time capsule of history and epic beauty,"

Moorish, Spanish and Roman architectural influences are seen at every turn in the 'atmospheric' design that mimics Spanish and Italian villages, complete with a deep blue ceiling twinkling with hundreds of miniature lights standing in for stars.

"It literally takes your breath away," said Marty Mangas, longtime Coronado historian and member of the Land of Lincoln Theatre Organ Society, which gives frequent Mangas and her group have played a major role in preserving many of the Coronado's original precious artifacts. She recently acquired the tuxedo worn by the very first conductor of the house orchestra, a man named Maurice Hazzard. Hazzard's daughter stopped by one day to visit the theater (she was about 90 years old at the time) and donated the tuxedo to the building where she said her father was at his happiest.

Luis Lara, Senior Event Manager and fifteen-year veteran of the building has seen it all. "Everyone starts with 'wow' and just goes on from there. And, I mean everyone - audience members, cast members, stars. I always have to give the performers personal tours of the building. We had to hold the house one night for a half hour while I gave Bryan Adams a tour of the Van Matres' apartment."

The man who built and owned the Coronado, Willard Van Matre. lived with his wife in a state-of-the-art custom-designed art deco apartment behind the theater's lighted marquee. They resided there from 1927 until about 1953 and enjoyed hidden entrances, a gigantic walk-in closet, many built-ins, a circular bathroom and countless other memorable features.

"The stars always want to party in that apartment; it's just so cool and historic. Todd Rundgren and his band invited us to drink some rice wine there one night, but we had to decline because we were on duty," Lara said with a laugh. "They didn't seem to want to leave. They were in there for a long time!"

Others have been there longer.

"We definitely have ghosts here at the Coronado," said Lara. "I have felt them near me. I have heard them. And, I have seen them. It's something you don't get 100% used to, but you try. That's why we have the Ghost Light."

The Ghost Light, a single light bulb atop a simple pole in the center of the stage is lit day and night when the stage is not in use.

"It's not really dead-center - no pun intended," said Lara. "We tried that at first, but every morning we'd come in and the light was knocked over and dragged across the stage. We finally figured out they like the Ghost Light centered between the wings, but closer to the apron

The diverse list of performers, politicians and touring acts that have appeared at the Coronado adds to the sense of history that beams from the twinkling stars in the auditorium ceiling. Knowing acts as diverse as the Marx Brothers, Al Jolsen, Louis Armstrong, George Gershwin, Bob Hope, Johnny Cash, John F. Kennedy, Jerry Seinfeld, John Prine, Jackson Browne and of course Rockford's own Cheap Trick have performed here makes any visit to the Coronado all the more surreal.

No wonder the Coronado Performing Arts Center was named the "First Wonder" of the United States in 2010, out-ranking the St Louis Arch, Mount Rushmore and Yellowstone National Park. Come see a show in its majestic surroundings soon. All the locals will know you're a first-timer just by the look on your face.
