

A portrait painting of Paula Modersohn-Becker by Boris von Brauchitsch. The subject is a woman with reddish-brown hair pulled back, looking directly at the viewer with a neutral expression. Her hands are raised, with fingers spread, in front of her chest. The background is composed of dark, textured brushstrokes in shades of grey and blue. The lower portion of the image, behind the text, features a pattern of red and brown brushstrokes. The overall style is expressive and painterly.

BORIS VON BRAUCHITSCH

PAULA MODERSOHN
BECKER

BIOGRAFIE INSEL