

A girl (Jen) is walking along a road at night. She sees a public bathroom. She enters the bathroom.

INT. Public Bathroom.

Inside the bathroom there is an attendant dressed very smartly in a little jacket. Despite the rest of the bathroom being very dark and dank, the corner that the attendant stands in is tidy and well lit.

Jen is washing her face in the sink, she looks up at her face. She sees in the reflection behind her there is a woman in a delicate white dress holding a large egg staring toward her. Curious, Jen turns around but finds nothing behind her. Jen is confused but not scared.

Jen turns to leave but the attendant stops her. Jen is taken aback, not expecting a fancy attendant to be in a bathroom like this and not entirely sure how to behave. The attendant cleans her hands for her, perhaps gives her some perfume or other such fancy things they give you at expensive bathrooms that have attendants.

JEN

Thanks

The attendant stares at Jen expectantly, smiling. Jen gets some cash out to pay the clerk. The clerk puts the money away and then puts their hand out to offer Jen an egg.

JEN

Huh, what?

The attendant places the egg directly into jens hand and closes her fingers and smiles.

JEN

Uh, thanks..

EXT. Streets Night.

Jen Is walking along streets at night. It is noisy, windy and cold. Jens posture is hunched over and compact in an attempt to keep warm. Eventually they come up to a tunnel/bridge.

Jen retrieves a cigarette from the new pack as she walks toward the tunnel and lights it up as she steps inside. When she is a little way into the tunnel she stops and all the outside noise stops.

Jen takes a drag from the cigarette and notices that everything around her is quiet and still. The smoke from the cigarette floats straight upward.

Jen looks ahead and sees an old pram, as she walks towards it she looks inside and sees a baby. But it's not an ordinary baby, it's a strange alien monster eraserhead baby. The baby has an egg shaped indent in its chest.

Instinctively without thinking, Jen places the egg in the baby's chest. When she does this, she is transported to a strange otherworldly room.

INT. Dream Space.

This room is empty, perhaps the walls are pitch black or it is surrounded by space. At one end across from where Jen is standing is a window or perhaps it is a mirror; but not a mirror that reflects, one that shows the true world on the other side.

Curious, Jen walks over to it and peers through. On the other side of the window/mirror she sees the public bathroom. She stares for a minute, confused.

Suddenly Jen hears a woman giggling behind her. She turns around and sees the woman from the reflection, she is no longer holding the giant egg. The woman smiles politely and performs a small curtsy.

Jen turns back around to face the mirror and finds herself back in the bathroom staring at herself in the mirror.

INT. Bathroom.

Jen stands alone in the bathroom, the attendant is no longer there. Jen stares at herself in the mirror, then at the space behind her where the woman stood then at the corner where the attendant stood. She turns and leaves the bathroom.

EXT. Streets

It is now much quieter outside than before but still night. But there is still discernible background noise of cars and sirens and such. Jen walks until she reaches the tunnel from before.

Jen stares into the blackness of the tunnel, the blackness of the tunnel stares back.

She decides to go around.

EXT. Trainstation

Jen arrives at a small train station. It is empty. She takes a seat and waits for the train to arrive. Jen hears the train arriving from a little way away but as the train gets closer the sound stops and there is no wind as the train speeds into the station.

Jen is confused and then has a strange sense of realization, she looks to her left and sees the attendant sitting next to her. The attendant reaches out their hands as if asking for something.

Instinctively, Jen reaches into her pocket and pulls out the egg. She places it into the attendants outstretched hands. As soon as she does so, she finds herself back in the dream space.

INT. Dream Space

Jen is now sitting in an armchair in the dream space but the space is otherwise unchanged. Jen hears the woman in white giggle and then the woman is standing across from her.

This time she is holding the egg again. Jen, as if possessed, stands up and walks toward the woman, but before she reaches her, she disappears and her clothes fall to the floor.

The woman in white giggles. The egg in her hands begins to crack open and the baby creature appears from inside.