

Mom

So sad it is that those we need and love the best
Are the ones that God calls home so early to rest.

Now memories and grief we share

When the family meets and you're not there.

If we could say: "Hello Mom" in the same old way;

To hear your voice and see you smile,

To sit with you and chat a while.

To walk with us through this life,

To keep us safe from harm and strife.

Gone are the years we used to share,

But in our hearts you're always there.

With toil worn hands and hair so gray

You're our guiding light along the way.

A wonderful mother's love woven in gold;

This is the memory we tenderly hold.
