Takeaway

Through a simple act like sharing a meal, Jesus broke social and religious barriers, teaching us that the Gospel is for everyone. Our tables, like His, should be places of radical inclusivity and transformation.

Discussion Questions

1. Jesus broke social norms by dining with tax collectors and sinners. What groups tend to be marginalized or avoided in our culture today? How can we reach out and connect with them?
2. Zacchaeus' life was transformed after one meal with Jesus (Luke 19:1-10). Have you ever experienced or witnessed huge changes in someone after an encounter with Christ?
3. What does it look like for a church to fall into the "exclusivity trap"? How can we guard against that and keep an open invitation?
4. Jesus calls us to be "workers for the harvest" (Matthew 9:38). What simple acts of service can you do this week to help bring people to Jesus?
5. The sermon calls our dinner tables places of "radical inclusivity and transformation." Who is one new person or group you can invite to eat with you this week?
