The bride is wearing a white lace dress and the groom is wearing a dark suit with a kilt and a sporran. They are both smiling, and numerous pink and white rose petals are falling around them. The scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.

“ We were so well looked after, given such a good feel of the hotel and all it can offer and would highly recommend Trump Turnberry and all its extra features for a most beautiful wedding.

DESTINATION AYRSHIRE

Trump Turnberry is steeped in over 100 years of history and tradition. With an illuminating coastal location overlooking the Irish Sea, it is a destination to remember for a day you will never forget – and it's all just one hour from Glasgow.

Ayrshire itself is a land of myth and legend, with the King of Scotland, Robert the Bruce born here at Turnberry and the famed Scottish poet, Robert Burns, spending his life writing some of the world's most revered poetry a few miles from the resort, inspired by this enduring region.

Romantic and enchanting, with the Isle of Arran in the distance, surrounded by a dramatic coastline, Ayrshire provides a spectacular backdrop. As the sun sets over your perfect day, when the sky lights up with an array of vivid, fiery colours, you'll be glad you said 'I do' to Trump Turnberry.

ACCOMMODATION

Trump Turnberry has a selection of luxuriously appointed bedrooms through the hotel and Turnberry House, each elegantly furnished with rich mahogany and gold leaf. Sparkling chandeliers feature in every room alongside unrivalled marble bathrooms. Four signature suites are also available in the hotel, some featuring private balconies.

Perfect for newlyweds is The Turnberry Lighthouse Suite. Standing at almost 80ft tall, the Turnberry lighthouse was designed by relatives of the author and poet Robert Louis Stevenson. The foundation of the lighthouse sits on the ruins of the 13th century castle of Robert the Bruce, where the King of Scots was born.

Situated on the dramatic Ayrshire coastline on the cusp of the Irish sea, The Turnberry Lighthouse Suite is located between the 9th and 10th hole on the Championship Ailsa course. Elegant in its décor and grand in its aura, it offers breathtaking views to the Isle of Arran and beyond.

With two bedrooms, each with its own private balcony, the rooms are tastefully decorated and complemented by indigenous fabrics and furnishings.

“For us, it was the best day of our lives. From the first meeting to our last dance, getting married at Trump Turnberry was the most amazing experience.

TESTIMONIAL

Caroline and Peter Gallacher

Caroline, originally from Ayr, and Peter, from Glasgow, met while studying at university in Edinburgh. Following a five year romance, they got engaged just before New Year, on 30th December 2015.

For Caroline and Peter, there was really only one choice of venue to host their special day – Trump Turnberry, a Luxury Collection Resort, Scotland.

“We had 15 months to plan the wedding and I just knew that we would choose Trump Turnberry, as well as visiting as a child, Peter and I had stayed in the hotel on a few occasions and just loved it.

The hotel had been refurbished and we just loved the overall elegance The Caledonia Ballroom was so beautiful but it also provided a blank canvas for the decor which allowed our theme for the day to come through.

Everyone was in agreement that Trump Turnberry really is somewhere special and we can't imagine having had our wedding anywhere else.”

TESTIMONIAL

Amy and Harry Sheddon

Despite living in the same South Ayrshire town of Girvan, Harry Sheddon, 29, and Amy Scobie, 25, had never actually crossed paths until Amy's aunt stepped into play matchmaker.

After a three year romance, Harry popped the question to Amy and they began planning the wedding of their dreams.

“We couldn't have asked for a better person than Carrie to help guide us through our wedding experience at Trump Turnberry, she gave us lots of great advice.

We did our food tasting on Valentine's weekend at The Chef's Table, which was a lovely touch, and the kitchen team were able to tailor our menu so it was exactly what we wanted.”

We were wowed by how incredible the ballroom looked, as were our guests.

We just knew we'd made the right decision in choosing Turnberry. From the staff, the service and the setting, it really was the perfect destination for us to become Mr & Mrs.”
