RACING & HEAT PROTOCOLS

- Heats will be held around Ngamiland to allow competitors an opportunity to come and race. These will be advertised ahead of time.
- Entry to the heats and finals is free.
- Competitors will be responsible for getting themselves to and from the heats.
- During the heats, all competitors will be required to register and receive a race number.
- During registration, the Omang or other identity document will be used to capture the competitors details.
- A race number will be pinned to each competitors shirt - this is not to be removed.

- All competitors will be asked to nominate a VDC or Community Trust who will be eligible for a prize should the competitor win. The VDC or Trust cannot be changed later.
- NO competitor will race unless they have signed an indemnity form at the registration table.
- Competitors are allowed to wear any clothing of their choice, but no indecency will be tolerated.
- A selection of mokoro and nkashi will be made available but polers are allowed to bring their own mokoro or nkashi to use. They will be responsible for getting their equipment to the start line.
- Mokoros will be poled empty with no other matter/items/people inside the boat.
- The Race Marshall will show each competitor the route before racing, which will be a round trip route.
- Each competitor is given one chance to race their mokoro along the route and set a time.
- Time will be captured electronically by a qualified time keeper. The time will be captured on the sound of a whistle when the competitor passes the start and finish line.
- The time set by each competitor will not be shared and will remain confidential until such time as all the heats are completed. Thus each poler will not know what their time is until it is published onto the event facebook page.
- Once at the start line, the competitor must listen to and comply with the race marshall.
- Each competitor will be started approximately 3-5 minutes apart so as to give the time keeper an opportunity to enter the race number and to give each poler space to complete the route.
- Overtaking other competitors is allowed, should the opportunity arise.
- The finalists for the main event in August will be determined once the heats are complete and will be determined based on the results of the time trials from all the heats. The race organisers will contact those individuals who have qualified for the finals via telephone by 7 July 2023.
