ABOUT YSI

We're a global community of students, young professionals, and researchers from across the globe, pursuing new and critical ways of thinking about the economy.

Perry Mehrling is a Professor of International Political Economy at the Pardee School of Global Studies, Boston University, where he teaches courses on the economics of money and banking, the history of money and finance, and international money, the first of these is available online.

He currently serves on the Academic Council of the Institute for New Economic Thinking (New York) and the Committee on Global Thought (Columbia University) and has served as visiting professor at the Scuola Superiore Sant'Anna, University of Nice, Paris X (Nanterre), and the Sloan School of Management, MIT.

He has a BA from Harvard College, an MSc from London School of Economics, and a PhD from Harvard University.

Rebecca Ray is a Researcher at GEGI. She holds a PhD in economics from the University of Massachusetts-Amherst and an MA in international development from the Elliott School of International Affairs at the George Washington University. Since 2013, she has focused her GEGI research on Latin America, including the annual China-Latin America Economic Bulletin Series, and the book projects China and Sustainable Development in Latin America: the Social and Environmental Dimension and Development Banks and Sustainable Development in the Andean Amazon.
